Halsey Happenings

Harold Stevenson of Brownsville was a Halsey caller Monday.

Roland Marks and De Los Clark were home from O. A. C. for the week end.

Gilbert Carey, who is attending school in Portland, came home Friday evening.

Alice Sturtevant was on the sick list all last week and unable to attend school.

At the thirtieth anniversary of the Freerksen marriage, reported elsewhere, a noteworthy feature was the presence of six friends who were at the original wedding.

Bert Minckley was in Portland the last of the week and incidentally attended the livestock show.

Howard Reeves of Eugene was down Sunday, calling on his sons, Willis and Charles, who live with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Rector.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Moore of Brownsville called on the latter's mother, Mrs. M. M. Ward, and sister, Mrs. Albert Miller, Sunday.

T. J. Skirvin was all smiles and suavity Saturday as he trundled a wheelbarrow up and down Second street amid cheers and clapping of hands. J. C. Walton was the lone passenger in the vehicle. It was an election bet.

Mrs. C. B. Stalnaker of Corvallis left here for Albany Sunday. There she met Mr. Stalnaker and spent the day with relatives. Mrs. Stalnaker had been with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. P. Patton, for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. James Bond passed through Halsey Saturday on their way to Albany from Harrisburg where they had been visiting their daughter, Mrs. J. W. Moore, and family. Mr. and Mrs. Bond are living in Newport this winter and had some money in the bank there when it closed its doors.

T. J. Skirvin is building a commodious new chicken house.

Mrs. Herman Steinke and little son were visitors at the P. J. Forster home Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. B. M. Miller and Gardie spent Sunday at the home of Miss Beulah Miller.

Mr. and Mrs. Gansie and daughter Leila and Mrs. Adda Ringo drove to Eugene Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Hill, Mrs. Ada Corcoran and Mrs. Ben Holt were in Albany Saturday.

The ladies of the Christian church, who served dinner at "Dad and Mams" restaurant on election day, cleared $35. They served an excellent meal. Some night lunches were also served.

The newly-elected officers for Vine Maple Circle No. 691 of Halsey are: Past guardian neighbor, Amanda Hill; guardian neighbor, Laura Bramwell; adviser, Louisa Taylor; clerk, Nellie Isom; banker, Adda Ringo; magician, Ada Corcoran; attendant, Maggie Bressler; captain of guard, Edith Robnett; inner sentinel, Mary Miller; outer sentinel, Delilah Miller; musician, Sarah Robertson.

Managers, Elizabeth White, Eva Pittman and Addie Leeper; flag bearer, Louise Robnett.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Parker and children were Harrisburg visitors Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Hill drove to Harrisburg Sunday to visit their son, Glen Hill, and family.

Mrs. Marcella Kirk of Portland arrived Saturday evening, for a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Corcoran.

William Corcoran and Carl Hill came over from Corvallis Tuesday evening by motorcycle and in the rain to cast their vote for president and deserve due credit for their interest and patriotism. They made the trip back that night.

While hunting Sunday, Albert West was shot through the calf of the leg by the accidental discharge of a gun carried by Andrew Falk, son of Fred Falk, when he stumbled and fell. West was taken to an Albany hospital and the small bone was found to have been shattered by the shot, making a serious injury. He is doing well, but the red polled cattle which he had on exhibit at the livestock show in Portland.

Pride Helps to Improve Cream

Creamery in Northwestern State Resorts to Novel Way to Reform Patrons.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.) An interesting example of the use of psychology in securing cream of better quality from patrons was recently observed at a creamery in one of the northwestern states. Attempts at grading at the creamery met with but indifferent success. The manager of this creamery talked better quality to the patrons, but with little effect; and even a differential in price of 3 to 4 cents a pound butterfat in favor of sweet cream delivered at the creamery failed

Sweets to the Sweet
 The age of the girl doesn't count when it comes to candy; big and little, they all love it. The candies that we sell are made of pure unadulterated sugar and flavorings, and consequently no matter how much is eaten there can be no harmful effect. Take home a box knowing that it is the purest candy made.

surgeons say a more grafting operation will be necessary.

Mrs. George Starr spent Wednesday at the G. F. Schroll home.

Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Penland drove to Albany Thursday.

C. H. Davidson was at the livestock show in Portland.

E. E. Gourley went to Portland Wednesday for the livestock show.

O. W. Frum was in the hills the last of the week looking after his cattle.

H. C. Davis was looking after business matters in Sweet Home Thursday.

Miss Emma Carlton of Albany was a guest at the G. W. Laubner home Sunday.

Clarence Williams and son Junior attended the livestock show in Portland the last of the week.

J. J. Corcoran and George Maxwell purchased a 500-pound hog from Clarence Evans and had a hog-killing Monday.

Gilbert Carey came down from Portland, where he is attending school, and spent the week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Carey.

F. H. Porter returned Monday with his prize-winning herd of Farmers Need Baby Chicks.

WHY? Money interest and family necessities come high. Big business is helping your dairy out the wrong way. Better prices below cost of production. Get in the chicken game. They have no substitute yet.
 I will take orders up to the 1st of January for baby chicks from the O. A. C. WHITE LEGHORNS at 12¢, cash at the farm, and I guarantee a good, strong chick.
 I hatch only from my own stock. They are as good egg layers as I can get. Order now. Have been in the business for eight years, raising chickens to lay eggs. You will be pleased.

to secure the desired change in quality.

Interest in Scheme.
 In the fall of 1923, when the manager was repainting and repairing the creamery, he decided to paint one of the three cream vats a dark red, with the other two vats a spotless white. Naturally such a color scheme aroused the patrons' interest. Upon inquiry they were told that the red vat was to be used for the sour, poor cream. They were also informed what particular patrons brought in the cream that was being put into this vat. When a patron found out that his cream was being placed in the dark-red vat and that it was common knowledge that his cream was of poor quality, this knowledge acted as a spur and an incentive to try to have his cream placed in the other vat.

Improvement Soon Seen.
 Inasmuch as only a limited number of patrons delivered their own cream, routes being operated to bring in the greater number of the patrons' cream, the manager carried out the idea of using different colored paint to reach the route patrons. Twenty-gallon jacketed cans were being used by route operators, so when these cans were repainted one can on each route was painted a bright yellow and taken on the route each day. Naturally this can of outstanding color caused comment and inquiry, especially on the part of the women folks, while the hauler was weighing and sampling cream. As a result of this scheme the women, who generally attended to the cream, set about to improve the quality, and often within a week cream that formerly had arrived at the creamery sour and in poor condition began to arrive sweet and in good condition. Within two weeks 75 per cent of all cream received at the creamery was sweet, when before the system was inaugurated only about 40 per cent had been so.

Substantial Structure
Best to Preserve Corn
 It matters but little what kind of a silo is erected. So long as it is an air-tight and substantial structure, it will preserve the corn crop without any loss nor trouble. However, from the economic standpoint, embracing such features as permanence, safety, fireproof features, and resistance to the wind and weather, some kind of masonry silo is to be preferred, for it will not rot, it will not blow down and it is permanent.

On the other hand, if it should ever be desired to move a silo from one site to another, the man with the masonry silo is at a decided disadvantage, for once such a structure is erected, it must stay there. A wood stave silo is to be preferred in case it may ever be moved. It may also blend more effectively with the other buildings on a farm than a masonry silo would under certain conditions, and it might coincide much better with the condition of the purse at this time.

It looks like the income tax had been swamped. In the face of this result, how can anyone say that advertising does not bring results? If friends of the income tax had seen fit to spend half the amount of money in advertising that the opposition did, it would never have been defeated. The opposition had only one argument, viz: "It keeps capital out of the state." They didn't need any other. In fact it suited their purpose best to have but one argument. They kept that argument so continuously and persistently before the people that the people were convinced. If business men would profit by the example of these men they would have no cause to complain that "advertising does not pay." It was systematic and consistent advertising that accomplished the result.—Exchange.

SINNERS in HEAVEN
 by CLIVE ARDEN
 COPYRIGHT BY THE BOGGS-MERRILL COMPANY

Without doubt this story is the work of a master. The characters are real human beings. They were faced with a thrilling situation involving a problem too trying for the average sinner and probably too great for a saint to handle; nevertheless there were smug individuals ready to condemn them.

If you regard black as always black and white as always white, you may decide that the first word of the title is most appropriate; but if you can see varying shades of gray between black and white, you will be able to observe the peculiar fitness of the last word of the title. Any way you view it, it is a great story.
