terrace, flooded in the red gold of the setting sun. Barbara sat upon the low parapet. Croft flung his long legs over and drew out his cigarettes. Presently she found his glance fixed upon her. "Well?" he asked, without preliminaries. "What about our little trip?"

Farmers Need Baby Chicks.

WHY? Money interest and family necessities come high. Big business is helping your dairy out the wrong way. Butter price below cost of production. Get in the chicken game. They have no substitute yet.

I will take orders up to the 1st of January for baby chicks from the O. A. C. WHITE LEGHORNS at 12c, cash at the farm, and guarantee a good, strong chick.

I hatch only from my own stock. They are as good egg layers as I can get. Order now. Have been in the business for eight years, raising chickens to lay eggs. You will be pleased.

Have you counted all the risks?"

"Risks? No! Or I might never get there!"

His quick look of approval was lost on the girl, as she glanced away with a laugh.

"When there is a chance of getting your heart's desire, would you count risks?"

"No!" he ejaculated warmly. "That's my creed."

From the determined lines of his well-cut lips, she judged this to be the truth.

"But your heart's desire?" he went on; "what do you mean by that?"

She flushed faintly; the shy reserve in her nature ever made personal talk difficult.

"Surely you have that?" he suggested boldly, waving his cigarette toward the diamond scintillating on her finger.

"Oh, yes. Yes. I have, of course in that way," she replied hurriedly.

The band struck up a stirring jazz tune, a medley bringing hints of tomtoms, drums, rattling castanets, the uncouth music of the East.

"Oh!" she cried involuntarily, starting up; then sitting down again. "But you could never understand," she muttered.

"What?" He watched her closely, his cigarette burning forgotten, between his fingers.

"The craving to live—really live!—for a time! To get out into the world; to— to experience everything instead of just reading about it all; to— feel life itself! In huge cities, among vast crowds. I want to find out—"

She hesitated, looking away over the meadows, with a puzzled frown. "Something seems lost, missing in some way. I—I can't explain." She turned back to him, the color in her face heightened. But he did not laugh as Hugh would have done.

"Huge cities?" he queried slowly. "You think you will find it in them? Why not in remote villages?"

"Oh, no!" she cried. "Nothing ever happens in them! Villages are only full of little obscurities. I want to sample bigger things."

Resolutions of Respect

In memory of our departed brother, Robert S. Winniford, who died Oct. 22, 1924.

Again that unwelcome yet relentless, visitor, death, hath entered the portals of our lodge room and summoned a dear brother to the beautiful home beyond. His zealous work in the interest of our beloved order and his life, laden with gentleness and kind deeds, has won for him the plaudit of the good Master, and will cause his name to be cherished in the affectionate memory of our lodge.

And whereas, The All-wise Father has called our beloved brother to the new Jerusalem where "happily he hath heard the signal of his release on the bells of the Holy City, the chimes of eternal peace," and he having been a faithful and ardent worker in the teaching of friendship, love and truth, therefore be it

Resolved, That Purity Rebekah Lodge No. 130, in testimony of its loss, and to express its Rebekah love, cause the charter to be draped in mourning for thirty days and that we tender to the family of our deceased brother our sincere condolence, and that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, Inez Freeland Edith Robnett Charity Clark Committee.
