

Albany Directory

This is good advice: "If you live in Albany, trade in Albany; if you live in some other town, trade in that town." But in these automobile days many residing elsewhere find it advisable to do at least part of their buying in the larger town. Those who go to Albany to transact business will find the firms named below ready to fill their requirements with courtesy and fairness.

Jag, Whoopie! Jail

While the Globe theater was illustrating the results of breaking all the ten commandments, Thursday night, at Albany, John Ehrenreich and a female companion smashed several of them and some windows and other things at Brownsville.

The pair registered at the hotel as Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Wright, but it appears that in this instance Wright was wrong. The pair left their room after a while, both of them boozed, and the man tried to crank up his machine, which stood in front of the hotel, but Lizzie balked. Then he threw some bad language, but that didn't move her. He smashed the windshield, but still she wouldn't go. He had some bottles, empty by this time, and these he hurled through the windows of nearby stores. The couple then returned to their room. "The morning after" the city marshal arrested them and Deputy Sheriff Chandler furnished a car that would go without a cursing and took them to Albany and assigned them very safe quarters.

Ehrenreich is an Albany youth known to the police. The woman is Viola Edwards and also of Albany. She slipped out of the hotel by a side door and started for Halsey, but was caught. Halsey would not have been a congenial refuge for her under the circumstances.

Geo. Maxwell and wife were in Albany Thursday.

HOW TO SOLVE A CROSS-WORD PUZZLE
When the correct letters are placed in the white spaces this puzzle will spell words both vertically and horizontally. The first letter in each word is indicated by a number, which refers to the definition listed below the puzzle. Thus No. 1 under the column headed "horizontal" defines a word which will fill the white spaces up to the first black square to the right, and a number under "vertical" defines a word which will fill the white squares to the next black one below. No letters go in the black spaces. All words used are dictionary words, except proper names. Abbreviations, slang, initials, technical terms and obsolete forms are indicated in the definitions.

CROSS-WORD PUZZLE No. 1

"STEPPING STONES"
If you like them easy this one will suit you, for the interlock helps you over the stickers. If you're in the expert class you can find an unusual word or two. This puzzle contains every letter in the alphabet except "k".

Electricity on the Farm
(The Open Window)
Interest in rural electric service over the territory of the Oregon Light and Power company, with headquarters at Baker, is rapidly increasing, and several rural communities are planning co-operative movements to secure electric service.
Owing to the sparsely settled nature of eastern Oregon the cost of such service is in most cases uneconomical unless the farmers undertake to use electricity for other purposes than lighting. So the chief endeavor of the company is to educate farmers in the use of power for agriculture and in the home.
Many rural surveys have been made and extensions are expected.

Forty-two per cent of the farmers in the United States blame their financial difficulties on the low prices of farm products, according to the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation, which has completed a study of the primary factors affecting the financial difficulties of the farmer based on a survey made by the United States Department of Agriculture. Seventeen per cent of the farmers feel that high taxes are the direct cause of the farm depression, eleven per cent blame the high costs for farm labor, ten per cent feel that high freight rates are responsible, ten per cent blame the high interest, six per cent credit the depression to reckless expenditures during boom period, and four per cent think it was too much credit.
An inquiry made by the Department of Agriculture through both bankers and farmers shows that on an average 5 per cent of the farm owners in 15 corn and wheat-producing states lost their farms through foreclosure or bankruptcy during the late depression. Four and a half per cent more had turned over their farms to creditors without legal process, making a total of about 9.5 per cent who had lost their farms with or without legal proceedings. An additional 15 per cent were really bankrupt, but were holding on through the leniency of their creditors. By groups of states the percentage of owner-farmers who lost their farms since 1920 were as follows: Five East North Central states, nearly 6 per cent; seven North Central states, over 9 per cent; and for the three Mountain states nearly 20 per cent. The percentage of tenants who lost their property ran materially higher.
Records of the Department of Justice indicate that in the pre-war years, 5 per cent of all the bankruptcy cases were farmers. During the deflation 14 per cent of all bankruptcy cases were farmers. In some of these states where in pre-war years the farmer bankruptcy cases represented about 7 per cent of all such cases, this percentage in 1922 had risen to nearly 30 per cent.
These losses have not been due to inefficiency on the part of the farmers, points out the Agricultural Foundation, as practically all of them were incurred by men who had been doing fairly well until they entered the period of drastic deflation.

No church service ever better taught religion and morality or that "the wages of sin is death" than did "The Ten Commandments" at the Globe theater, Albany, last week. The attendance, too, was about up to capacity.

Clarence Boggis bogged clear down Friday, when a jury at Albany convicted him of complicity in the Shedd bank robbery, and shuddered and sobbed where he sat. Neilson was convicted with him. Sitters got a sentence of 15 years and Replogle, who is under 18, was turned over to County Judge Payne in the juvenile court.
