LAND BUYERS ARE WARNED

Speculators Advised State Condemnation Possible in Columbia Basin. Spokane, Wash. — Warning against land speculation within the area of the Columbia basin irrigation project was issued here by Harvey Lindley of Seattle, president of the Columbia Basin Irrigation league, and Roy R. Gill of Spokane, chairman of the board of directors of the league. They pointed out that under the law of eminent domain of Washington the land might be condemned at its fair appraised value before, not after, the water had been turned on it. They also predicted that the policy of the interior department, which they said had held in the case of other irrigation projects, would be invoked in the Columbia basin project whereby individual holdings would be limited in acreage and any surplus would have to be turned over to the department at a fair appraised value.

C.—Twenty-five aspirants will begin Monday a course of study in the government's new foreign service school, created recently by President Coolidge to provide trained personnel for the American diplomatic service. wholesale beef and pork when wholesale beef and pork was a new game in Chicago. Now look at him!

"Still, you will admit there's something in knowing when," he argued.

Paula stood up. "If you don't know I'll tell you. Now is when. I've got Grandfather and Dad and Theodore to work with. You can go on being an architect if you want to. It's a fine enough profession. But unless you're a genius where'll it get you? Go in with them, and Dirk, in five years—"

"What?" They were both standing, facing each other, she tense, eager; he relaxed but stimulated.

"Try it and see what, will you? Will you, Dirk?"

"I don't know, Paula. I should say, my mother wouldn't think much of it."

"What does she know! Oh, I don't mean that she isn't a fine, wonderful person. She is. I love her. But success! She thinks success is another acre of asparagus or cabbage, or a new stove in the kitchen now that they've brought gas out as far as High Prairie."

He had a feeling that she possessed him; that her hot eager hands held him though they stood apart and eyed each other almost hostilely.

As he undressed that night he thought, "Now what's her game? What's she up to? Be careful, Dirk, old boy."

As he lay in the soft bed with the satin coverlet over him he thought, "Now what's her little game?"

He awoke at eight, enormously hungry. He wondered, uneasily, just how he was going to get his breakfast.

She had said his breakfast would be brought him in his room. He stretched luxuriously, sprang up, turned on his bath water, bathed. When he emerged in dressing gown and slippers his breakfast tray had been brought him mysteriously and its contents lay appetizingly on a little portable table. There were flocks of small covered dishes and a charming individual coffee service. A little note from Paula: "Would you like to take walk at about half-past nine? Stroll down to the stables. I want to show you my new horse."

The distance from the house to the stables was actually quite a brisk little walk in itself. Paula, in riding clothes, was waiting for him.

She greeted him. "I've been out two hours. Had my ride. You ride, don't you?"

"I used to ride the old nags, bareback, on the farm."

"You'll have to learn. Then I'll have some one to ride with me. Theodore never rides. He never takes any sort of exercise. Sits in that great fat car of his."

They went into the coach house, a great airy white-washed place with glittering harness and spurs and bridles like jewels in glass cases. It gave Dirk a little hopeless feeling. He had never before seen anything like it.

Paula laughed up at him, her dark face upturned to his.

Something had annoyed him, she saw. Would he wait while she changed to walking tights? Or perhaps he'd rather drive in the roadster. They walked up to the house together. He wished that she would not consult his wishes so anxiously. It made him sulky, impatient.

She put a hand on his arm. "Dirk, are you annoyed at me for what I said last night?"

"No."

"What did you think when you went to your room last night? Tell me. What did you think?"

"I thought: 'She's bored with her husband and she's trying to vamp me. I'll have to be careful.'"

Paula laughed delightedly. "That's nice and frank. What else?"

"I thought my coat didn't fit very well and I wished I could afford to have Peel make my next one."

"You can," said Paula.

Poultry and Swine Tuberculosis Cure

Infected Fowls and Animals Were Disposed of.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.) With the widening knowledge concerning the nature of tuberculosis, live stock owners are rapidly putting methods of eradication into practical use. The close relationship between fowl and swine tuberculosis is illustrated by a recent occurrence in Michigan. The facts were obtained by the Michigan Agricultural college in cooperation with the United States Department of Agriculture.

A shipment of hogs from a certain farm proved to be badly infected with tuberculosis. An inspector who visited the farm applied the tuberculin test to the remaining hogs and found practically all of them tuberculous. He also found the chicken flock on the farm badly affected. Acting on the inspector's advice, the owner disposed of the entire flock of chickens, restocking with day-old chicks in the spring. Meanwhile he had also disposed of the tuberculous hogs and cleaned and disinfected the premises, especially the poultry buildings and yards.

The Enterprise one year for one dollar

The Paper will Stop Coming at the end of the term unless the subscription is renewed. The money will be used in making a better paper for the subscriber during the life of the subscription, not in improving it for the benefit of somebody else the next year.

Cutting Out Waste Credit is waste. Bookkeeping and collecting consume time, and time is money. Some debtors die, some move away, some go bankrupt and some are downright dishonest persons. Those who pay $1.50 cover these losses.

Any Linn County Farmer not now taking the Enterprise can have it on trial and it will stop coming to him when the time expires unless he orders it continued. One or two copies might not give a fair idea of the work the paper is doing, but after 25 weeks' acquaintance subscriber will know whether or not it is worth $1 a year.

We pay cash to school pupils who procure these trial subscriptions from farmers in Linn county. Write or call for particulars.

Those who have farmed fifty years have learned something every year. None of us knows it all. Every Linn county farmer is invited to tell the Enterprise of any worth-while experience. Some of those make suggestions worth more to you than several years' subscriptions.

The Enterprise will continue to improve as fast as receipts from its patrons make improvement possible.

Linn County Farm Features will continue to be given prominence. Every farmer can learn something from some other farmer under similar conditions of soil and climate that it will be profitable for him to know.

In Other Lines The weekly discussion of the international Sunday school lesson will appear regularly. The paper will also carry more than twice as much local news and good-natured gossip as can be found elsewhere.
