

Albany Directory

This is good advice: "If you live in Albany, trade in Albany; if you live in some other town, trade in that town." But in these automobile days many residing elsewhere find it advisable to do at least part of their buying in the larger town. Those who go to Albany to transact business will find the firms named below ready to fill their requirements with courtesy and fairness.

Under supervision of Tom Craig, assistant to Matt Ryckman, acting superintendent of hatcheries, 1,817,000 trout were planted last week in the McKenzie river, creeks flowing into it and nearby lakes.

Frank Way, wealthy central Oregon sheep owner, was found guilty of manslaughter by a jury at Klamath Falls following his trial on an indictment charging him with the murder of Timothy Murphy, Klamath sheepman.

Whether the so-called loopvent plumbing system permitted by the Portland plumbing code is of sufficiently high standard to comply with the state plumbing code is to be determined by a committee of three competent plumbers.

Evidence of what is thought to have been a murder, perhaps committed within the past year, was unearthed by road laborers on the McKenzie pass highway near Lost lake, when the skull of a man and a pair of overalls were dug up by the workers.

Business of mills of the West Coast Lumbermen's association was not so active in the week ending September 5 as for the preceding week, 107 mills reporting sales amounting to 100,491,914 feet, manufacture of 103,134,746 feet and shipment of 97,659,036 feet.

A total of 3605 persons visited the battleship Oregon in Portland harbor in July, according to a report filed with the state treasurer. Accompanying the report was a remittance of $901.25, which has been credited to the battleship Oregon commission. Under the law money received from persons who visit the battleship is applied toward maintenance of the craft.

J. M. Myers, superintendent of construction of the North Umpqua road, has received orders to complete the forest development road into the Steamboat ranger station, a distance of two miles from Williams creek, to which the road has now been built.

Forest fire danger is not yet over in western Oregon notwithstanding the recent heavy rainfall, according to Nelson F. Macduff, supervisor of the Cascade forest.

The city of Gresham has filed with the state engineer application covering the appropriation of water from Hiney Spring and seepage from a gulch tributary of the Willamette river for a municipal supply. The cost of the proposed development is $15,000.

All surveys of the Oregon Trunk railway between Bend and Klamath Falls have been completed, according to officials of the northern lines. The surveying crews have been withdrawn and the blueprints are ready for submission to the interstate commerce commission.

W. R. "Jinks" Taylor, Pendleton chief of police, colorful figure of the old west and ex-sheriff of Umatilla county, died in the St. Anthony's hospital at Pendleton as a result of injuries sustained when his horse fell with him and a fracture was sustained at the base of the skull.

Oregon brought the total of its surfaced roads under state highway supervision up to 3014 miles at the end of 1924, having surfaced or built up to grade 389 miles during the year, the bureau of roads has announced. As the total mileage of the state highway system is 4339.7, there remain to be completed by surfacing 1325 miles.

The public service commission has rescinded an order issued recently suspending indefinitely the new tariff filed by the Amity Mutual Telephone company. As a result of the order issued by the commission the new rates adopted by the telephone company will become effective immediately.

Persons affected by a law enacted at a recent session of the legislature providing that penalties, interest and costs accruing on taxes levied for the years 1921, 1922 and 1923, shall be remitted, may recover such penalty, interest and costs provided they were paid through error after the act became effective.

Plans for the proposed new guard tower at the Oregon state penitentiary were approved by the state board of control. The tower will be of brick and cement construction and will be located near the main gate and outside of the prison enclosure. The cost of the tower was estimated at approximately $500.

On verification of reports that the Klamath Indians have experienced three bad crop years, Secretary of Interior Work has authorized a general payment to them of $200 each out of the tribal reserve receipts from timber sales. The aggregate payment to the tribe members will amount to $245,200 and 1226 Indians will participate in it.

The total registration in the Portland public schools will reach the highest peak in the history of the system in this school year, in the opinion of C. A. Rice, acting city superintendent of schools. On the basis of present attendance records, Mr. Rice believes 48,000 students will be enrolled in the schools of the city as compared with 45,139 last year.

Edward Stack, secretary of the Oregon State Federation of Labor, and other officials of the organization appeared before the state board of control and requested an adjustment of salaries affecting firemen and assistant engineers, employed at the state institutions. It was requested the salaries of firemen be increased from $67 to $130 a month and that the wages of the assistant engineers be advanced from approximately $100 to $160 a month.

All options on the proposed site of the Southern Pacific terminal and car shops west of Eugene were taken up when cash for the Eugene terminal bond issue was received from Portland and deeds to the property were immediately turned over to the Southern Pacific company. The Southern Pacific company, in return, transferred deeds for approximately 250 acres of its Springfield property to the city of Eugene. The terminal site west of Eugene comprises about 209 acres.

Judge Percy Kelley of the Marion county circuit court has been assigned by Chief Justice McBride of the state supreme court to go to Klamath county and preside at the trials of E. L. Elliott, district attorney and William Levens, state prohibition commissioner. Mr. Elliott is accused by an indictment returned against him in Klamath county of malfeasance in office in connection with the disposal of some sugar confiscated in a liquor raid. Mr. Levens is charged with the theft of a revolver from a Mexican resident of Klamath Falls.

Pre-Adamites (?) Buried in Ohio

Chillicothe, O.—Colorful costumes of 2000 years ago were found in the magnificent pearl-strewn tombs of mound builders near here, Professor H. C. Shetrone, curator of the Ohio Museum, said.

Knee-high royal tunics of intricate design were found near four skeletons—probably two men and two women of royal lineage.

On the walls and floors are "more pearls than the United States will produce in a decade," Shetrone declared. Over the skeletons was a large canopy of logs, uprights and cross pieces over which a less permanent roof work had been built. The logs had rotted and turned to carbon, but were solid enough to be removed in large pieces.

Many tortoise shell ornaments were found in the ancient burial place. All were intricately etched and polished the prevalent design being those of birds.

The findings also indicated the dwellers who buried their dead in those tombs were peaceable. No weapons were found.

OREGON'S FLAG GIVEN UP
G. A. R. Post at Retell, Wash., Returning Banner to Warship.

Salem, Or.—Schofield Hayden post Grand Army of the Republic, with headquarters at Retell, Wash., has notified Sam A. Kozler, secretary of state that an old flag which was part of the equipment of the battleship Oregon at the time it passed around the horn will be returned to this state and restored to the warship, which is anchored in Portland harbor.

The flag has been in the possession of Retell post for many years it was said, but was relinquished to the state of Oregon at the request of W. B. Day, sergeant-major of the organization.

of winter.

3. They give us many medicines to cure our ills and nurse us back to strength.

4. They furnish protection and nesting places for birds that destroy insects and sing for our entertainment.

5. They make our homes, schools and cities more beautiful.

6. They furnish us with books, papers and pencils we use in our homes and business.

7. They furnish employment to many thousands of men and women and are a source of wealth in our forests.

8. They furnish wood, the most important and extensively used material in the construction and furnishing of the home in which we live.

9. They cover our hills and valleys with a forest growth that helps to store the rain water we drink, which might otherwise become torrents, washing away the fertile soil, filling up our wells.

$320,000,000 is Due on Incomes

Washington, D. C.—Uncle Sam will collect about $325,000,000 from taxpayers when the third installment of income taxes falls due, treasury department officials estimated.

Revenues received from income and profit taxes during the first eight months of 1925 totalled $1,059,421,209.32 and more than $300,000,000 in checks and money orders will pour into the government coffers from the third installment.

The 65 revenue collectors throughout the country have finished mailing out "due" notices to taxpayers who elected to pay their taxes in four installments and the machinery is now ready for collection of the third payment.

Two thousand trained sleuths, all qualified income tax investigators, are now engaged in checking up returns, assessing delinquents and rounding up tax dodgers and evaders. Latest figures reveal that there are about 20,000 income tax delinquents while there are nearly 10,000 persons who failed to make returns this year for payment of miscellaneous taxes.

Prohibition Faces Supreme Test

Washington, D. C.—A belief that prohibition in the United States is facing a supreme test, with the final outcome in doubt was expressed in a report compiled after months of investigation by the research and education department of the Federal Council of Churches.

"No one can say with positiveness what the ultimate outcome of the test will be," said the report. "No cocksure optimism is warranted, nor is pessimism or 'defeatism' justified by the facts. Much seems to depend upon the development of public opinion in the near future."

An "unfavorable and disquieting" trend since 1920 in the social consequences of prohibition was seen by the investigators in statistics gathered from many sources, but the report declared no available statistical data could be accepted as conclusive.

On the question of public sentiment, the report declared there could be little doubt as to the mood of the country when prohibition was adopted, but that since that time various elements had somewhat complicated the situation. On one subject, however—the saloon—the evidence appeared more decisive. It was said that "there seems to be not the least doubt that the country has accepted with satisfaction the passing of the saloon."
