How Butter Fat in Milk is Broken Up

Do you know what the word homogenization means?

Ninety-eight out of 100 housewives to whom the question recently was put admitted they couldn't answer. Can you?

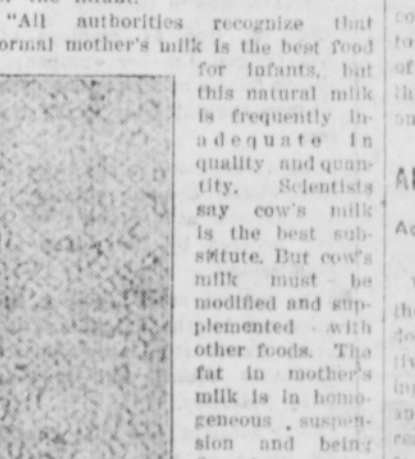

But here it is explained by Miss Meta H. Given, food authority doing research work at the University of Chicago.

"Homogenization," says Miss Given, "is the name of the process which breaks up butter fat in evaporated milk into tiny particles so they blend evenly with the solids. Homogenization causes the butter fat globules to adhere to the albumin and the casein of the milk. In the process, milk is forced through countless numbers of openings at a pressure of around 3,500 pounds."

"In addition to preventing a cream and skim milk line, this breaking up of fat contributes to smoothness and perfect blending of foods such as cream sauces, soups, ice cream and in baked products."

"It also has a digestive advantage for those who have difficulty in assimilating milk. Many pediatricians recommend evaporated milk as a baby food, although, like other substitutes for the natural supply, it should not be considered as a food complete in itself. Addition of orange or tomato juice, barley water or lime water are important in providing adequate diet for the infant."

"All authorities recognize that normal mother's milk is the best food for infants, but this natural milk is frequently inadequate in quality and quantity. Scientists say cow's milk is the best substitute. But cow's milk must be modified and supplemented with other foods. The fat in mother's milk is in homogeneous suspension and being flocculent forms small curds in the stomach, but the fat in cow's milk is in relatively large globules, forms large tough curds in the stomach and is much harder to digest. In evaporated milk the fat is broken up by homogenization and the curds softened until in size and digestibility they resemble natural infant food."

INSURGENTS SUPPORT CAMPAIGN INQUIRY

Washington, D. C.—In a revival of their old alliance, the belligerent insurgent bloc of the senate joined hands with the democratic minority to prosecute a searching investigation of "slush fund" expenditures in every senatorial primary this summer, and all general elections next fall.

The beginning of the investigation, which at the outset probably will deal with expenditures in the Pennsylvania and Illinois republican primaries, will be deferred until after the adjournment of congress, perhaps a month from now. The work will be carried through the summer and the fall until the November elections.

Senator Charles L. McNary, republican of Oregon, was appointed to the senate's "slush fund" investigating committee by Vice President Dawes to succeed Senator Fernald, republican of Maine, who resigned. Fernald was the fourth senator to decline service on the committee.

APPLE GROWERS AROUSED

Activities of Agricultural Department Said to Prevent Sales.

Washington, D. C.—Apple growers in the northwest have complained to the department of agriculture that the activities of the department in preventing sale of apples alleged to contain so injurious amount of arsenical spray residues was damaging the market for their crop, of which a large surplus remains unsold.
