Rabbits as Swimmers
An investigating naturalist reports that rabbits are good swimmers and have a very real fondness for the water and the sport they find in a good swim. He says he has been hidden in the woods and watched rabbits run on a high bank and dive far out in the water, swimming about and shaking the water from their eyes, in a human fashion, then shaking the water out of their furry coats after the swim, exactly as a dog does. Prior to that discovery he had known rabbits to take to the water when pursued by a dog, but had not known they chose the water for sport when they had a day off from play and relaxation.—Ohio State Journal.

Alford Arrows

(By an Enterprise Reporter)
Mr. and Mrs. Fred Burkhart of Salem spent all of last week at their farm.

Audience Only Judge of Scenes That "Go"

As a rule, it is easy for the author to discover before rehearsals draw to an end where the weaknesses, if any, of his play exist. It is a peculiar thing that a play which reads well often acts badly, and vice versa, writes Cosmo Hamilton in the Saturday Evening Post.

I have noticed many times, with my own work and with the work of other men, that there are certain scenes which seem to be extraordinarily amusing on paper, but which have only to be put to the test of rehearsal to drop head first into the pit in which, in less expensive days, the orchestra tumbled. It is, too, quite impossible to ascertain, until a play has been well rehearsed, what lines are to be cut, what entrances altered and what exits are to be brought about with greater or less rapidity.

It has been proved again and again how hopeless it is to make a true estimate of a play's appeal to an audience until it faces one. There are few authors and even fewer directors who dare to prophesy exactly how a play will take. Scenes which have been rehearsed for laughs and which have appealed to all concerned as being extremely funny during rehearsal may be received with stony silence by the people in front on "the night."

Other scenes which appear to be trivial and unimportant may go with roars of laughter, while tragic moments and those in which the whole drama of the play has been worked up to a high pitch may fizzle like damp gunpowder when put to the final test.

People Have Learned Value of Thermometer

A man named Galileo invented a thermometer in 1592. The liquid was in an open vial, and there was no mark or scale to show temperatures. After a while a mark was used showing the temperature of snow and another for the heat of a candle.

Half a century later a man found he could make a thermometer of a glass tube with a bulb on one end, so by sealing the other end you could carry the thing about. Another half century or more passed, and Fahrenheit became interested. He developed the thermometer until it was a practical instrument, and by 1714 he had established his now famous Fahrenheit scale.

That was over 200 years ago, says Good Hardware, yet people are just realizing how actually useful this instrument is. For centuries it was looked upon with superstition; a score of years ago school children could tell you the owner of nearly every thermometer in town. The incubator, and then our scientific dairying, cooking and gardening, brought the thermometer into common use.

Thermometers are an important item now. They are in demand every day of the year among folks who have learned a little about their uses. Many people demand a specially designed thermometer for each different purpose.

Misunderstood

An old negro named John Jones, upon leaving Atlanta, Ga., went to his bank, a negro institution, and had his book balanced, which showed a balance of $200.

Landing in Cincinnati, the old dandy issued a check on the Atlanta bank for $200, payable to a Cincinnati bank. In a few days the check was returned marked "Insufficient Funds," whereupon the Cincinnati bank sent an inquiry to the Atlanta bank about the old negro's account and the balance they showed on the pass book, against which no checks had been issued. The following reply was received:

"Gentlemen—We don't mean that John Jones ain't got sufficient funds, but we mean that our funds are insufficient."—Forbes Magazine.

Betrayed French Secrets

Major Esterhazy became notorious through his connection with the Dreyfus case. It was he who accused Dreyfus of being the writer of the famous "bordereau," alleged to have been sent to certain German military officers, revealing French military secrets. In 1896 Colonel Picquart, head of the intelligence bureau of the war office, made discoveries pointing to Major Esterhazy as the author of the "bordereau." Investigation was made and it was believed that Esterhazy forged Dreyfus' handwriting and was the real traitor. He was not convicted, however, but was forced to leave France and is said to have died in England in 1923.

HOME IS DYNAMITED; EX-HUSBAND IS HELD

Hillsboro, Or.—Percy Cane was held in jail here for investigation in connection with the dynamiting early Sunday morning of a house at Forest Grove in which his divorced wife was sleeping.

Mrs. Cane sustained injuries in the explosion which virtually made a wreck of the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Milne, corner Second and Fifth streets, Forest Grove. Mrs. Belle Milne, the girl's mother, who was the only other person in the house at the time of the blast, received severe shocks.

Dynamite or rock powder was placed under the bathroom of the Milne home sometime during Saturday night, it is believed.

Cane surrendered himself to the police and stoutly denied any knowledge of the explosion.

OREGON BANKERS MEET

Income Tax Favored if Neighboring States Commit Themselves.

Gresham, Or. — J. E. Montgomery, president of the Bank of Southwestern Oregon, Marshfield, was elected president of the Oregon Bankers' association at the closing session of the annual convention here.

Declining to endorse the proposal unqualifiedly for a state income tax reform, the association went on record for such a reform in Oregon taxing methods only if neighboring states commit themselves to levy taxes on incomes from industry and intangibles not now made to help support their government.
