STORMS KILL NINE IN EAST

Lightning and Wind Play Havoc From Maine to Ohio.

New York, N. Y.—Nine deaths and property damage estimated at $250,000 marked a path of Sunday electrical, rain and wind storms from Ohio to Maine.

In addition, three boys who set out in a canoe from Sandy Hook, N. J., were missing. Four deaths in New England were caused by lightning. Four others were killed by falling trees or drowned in New England during storms.

Marie Ange Dubois of Adams, Mass., was killed by a lightning bolt that also struck and injured her brother, Alfred. Leo McCaughey, of Hampton Beach, N. H.; Edward L. Snow, Hermon, Me.; and Fred Felch, Salisbury, Mass., were the others killed by lightning.

Lightning struck near the destroyed naval arsenal at Lake Denmark, N. J., frightening thousands of sightseers, but doing no damage.

Crops were damaged by wind and hail in Maine and New Hampshire.

Ruling Attacks Ship Marriages.

Washington.—Many couples who have been married on the high seas by the skippers of government vessels may have to have the knot tied all over again just to be safe. In instructing the masters of all government ships to discontinue the practice of performing marriage ceremonies, the general counsel of the shipping board said: "The master of a merchant vessel of the United States has no authority to perform the marriage ceremony."

Meeker Revisits Oregon Trail

New York.—Ezra Meeker, 96-year-old veteran of the Oregon trail, has started to re-travel in an automobile the route he covered 74 years ago behind an ox team with his wife and baby in a covered wagon. This will be the fifth time he has made the journey.

According to Hugh Sproat, secretary of the Oregon Wool Growers' association, practically all of the 1926 wool clip is in the hands of buyers and warehousemen. There is, he estimates, about 1,000,000 out of the 15,000,000-pound clip remaining in the hands of growers. The average price to growers was about 30 cents per pound.

An altercation near McMinnville over disposition of a hay crop between William Mackaben and James Watters and his two sons, Charles and Lester, led to a running fight between the parties, Mackaben armed with a jackknife and Watters with a pitchfork, and resulted in the stabbing of Charles Watters, 18, and the wounding of Mackaben, 43.

The state treasurer has advised William Levens, state prohibition director, that the prohibition department has received $50,000 this year, which is the maximum amount allowed annually from fines collected by the counties for prohibition violations. The prohibition department now has approximately $30,000 to operate on during the remainder of this year.

There were three fatalities in Oregon due to industrial accidents during the week ending July 15, according to a report prepared by the state industrial accident commission. The victims were Fred Peterstener, Bray Hill, planer feeder; George E. Balroy, Salem, driver; and Edgar S. Berry, Vernonia, undecker. A total of 857 accidents was reported during the week.

Frederick L. Miller, Portland Jeweler, filed an appeal in the United States supreme court in which he challenges the section of the Oregon automobile law under which he was convicted of manslaughter in connection with the death of Mrs. Alma Hall in Multnomah county. Miller contends the law is unconstitutional and the indictment returned against him in the case was insufficient.

Production of lumber for more than 100 Pacific coast sawmills decreased from 114,118,658 feet for the week ended June 26 to 73,152,430 feet for the week ended July 10, according to the weekly report of production, orders and shipments, issued by the West Coast Lumbermen's association. New business fell from 124,588,655 feet to 77,173,495 feet for the same period and shipments decreased from 117,433,950 feet to 74,876,094 feet.

Officials having supervision over the tax rolls in the 15 Oregon counties which will benefit from the advance of tax money on the Oregon and California grant lands have been requested by Senator Stanfield to prepare the billings which they will present to the interior department, beginning the work by bringing the rolls up to date from 1915, when the last payments to the counties on the O. & C. lands were made under the Chamberlain-Ferris act.

It will require approximately $2,000,000 in addition to funds now obligated under the state bonus law to comply with the recent ruling of the state supreme court that members of the student army training corps were members of the United States army during the world war and are entitled to benefits under the loan provision of the act. It was estimated that more than 1000 members of the student army training corps would be eligible for loans under the state relief act.

Galli-Curci Swayed by the Seer of Sweden

Emanuel Swedenborg, Scientist and Theologian; Anselita Galli-Curci; Clarence W. Barron, Financial Authority

Prima Donna Gives Wonderful Interpretation of the Writings of Emanuel Swedenborg

HENRY FORD'S Dearborn Independent publishes a remarkable article on Galli-Curci and Emanuel Swedenborg, by Clarence W. Barron of the Wall Street Journal, the world famous financial authority.

Mr. Barron declares that Galli-Curci has the most wonderful brain he has ever met or heard of in a woman, although she is much more "a true woman with a life and soul of affection for all that is ennobling and uplifting in the family, and in color, form, and music."

Mr. Barron is chairman of the Rotch Trustees, who acting under the will of Lydia S. Rotch of New Bedford, Mass., began in 1872 a modern translation of the Theological Works which Emanuel Swedenborg wrote and published in the Latin tongue, and deposited in the libraries of the world 150 years ago.

This work was completed and published by the Houghton Mifflin Co. in 32 volumes in 1907.

About three years ago there appeared in a Cleveland paper a paragraph that among her other accomplishments Galli-Curci had read all the Theological Writings of Emanuel Swedenborg. The claim seemed so absurd to Mr. Barron that he thought it might be easily punctured by a simple inquiry as to the edition. The Bible a Greater Work Than Ever To Mr. Barron's direct inquiry Madame Galli-Curci promptly replied: "Yes, I have read in the past year the complete Swedenborg Works, in fact it is the Rotch Edition of the Houghton Mifflin Co. that I have.

"I can say certainly that the Bible to me is a greater work than it was before."

Mr. Barron says: "My astonishment was intensified. Familiar over many years with Swedenborg's general theological writings, I had set out to read the entire thirty-two volumes preparatory to an advertising campaign for the sale of this edition. Reading a few pages each day I finished my self-imposed task in fourteen years. I shall probably finish a second reading, at my present rate of progress, in perhaps ten years. Was it possible that a woman with no previous knowledge or relation to these books had really intelligently read them within a year?"

Swedenborg's Writings

Mr. Barron continues: "As an economist writing state papers on weights, measures, coinages and currencies, Swedenborg is easily comprehended. As an engineer transporting ships overland he is easily visualized. As a government official in the great mining industry of Sweden, writing practical books on mining and smelting, declared to be the foundation of modern metallurgy, he is of interest in the encyclopedia of scientific history. As the writer of volumes—original studies in search for the human soul—he is not without human interest.

"But when one comes to the realm of the unseen, where there is neither time nor space upon which to rest mental conceptions, few may enter into the fullness of the revelation which has come into the libraries of the world through Emanuel Swedenborg.

"Think of twenty modern-sized volumes, originally written in the Latin tongue and unfolding from the Hebrew of 'Genesis' and 'Exodus' the internal or spiritual sense that lies beneath the letter. Annex a dozen more similar volumes that not only expound every picture set forth in the book of 'Revelation' as conveyor of a tremendous truth of universal application throughout invisible degrees of creation and life, but also illumine all the problems of sex as presented throughout the universe from the union of the love and wisdom in the divine down to sex crystallization in the mineral kingdom; include the deepest of all works ever written entitled, in the original Latin, 'Angelic Wisdom Concerning the Divine Love and the Divine Wisdom.'

Then answer to yourself the number of years that ought to be required to master these thirty-two volumes."

Mean More Than Any Other Books

Mr. Barron, still credulous, continued his correspondence with Madame Galli-Curci for some months. He learned that soon after she lost her dear mother she had sought the Writings of Swedenborg in a desire to know more about the other world whence her mother had gone. She spent the entire summer vacation studying Swedenborg's Works, and declared: "They have meant, and mean more to me than anything else I have ever read."

When Galli-Curci returned from California Mr. Barron motored up into the Catskills to her beautiful Italian palace, and in an afternoon with her and her husband, Mr. Homer Samuels, he was convinced that Galli-Curci had read and devoured Swedenborg in a briefer period than anybody had ever done before.

He says of this interview:

"Hours flew like minutes. I wasn't the questioner. Mr. and Mrs. Samuels were at me with the sharpest and deepest questions. They seemed in perfect harmony mentally and spiritually, as in their work in music."

Wanted to Learn

"She wanted to know about the 'Grand Man'. I told her it would be easier to comprehend it if she would forego the idea of time and space and consider, as Swedenborg says in 'The Apocalypse Explained', that every society in the heavens connects with some organ of the human body and helps to sustain it. Therefore the heavens have the organization of the 'Grand Man', but we need not think of it as a shape or figure.

"Yes," exclaimed her husband, "I see it; it is organization." I explained, also, how the 'Psalms' likewise connected with every society of the heavens, and how the world within and without was knit together in one grand poem and song of creation, man in the image of his Maker and knit into Him through the heavens, from which he has life in every organ of his body.

Swedenborg's 32 Volumes Read in a Single Summer

"Now I understand," she said, and asked me for explanation of other things. Her intelligent questions, as well as her statements, left no manner of doubt that Galli-Curci had performed the stupendous feat of reading the thirty-two volumes of Swedenborg in a single summer season. She declared 'Heaven and Hell' a very attractive and popular title and concerns that about which people are most eager to know; but it is not one of Swedenborg's great works; although it makes a good popular and introductory work."

A Help in Her Work

Galli-Curci understands the writings of Swedenborg even better than theologians, because she puts them into practice in the broadest life of loving helpfulness.

She said that Swedenborg had helped her in her work. She had no longer to think of herself but of her audiences, and let the music flow through her; regard herself just a medium for life to pour through. She felt with and for her audiences, and singing was no effort for her.

All Fear Vanishes

"The more you do—the more you give forth—the more life and energy is poured into you, and you are stronger and not weaker for the doing, the working and the singing. I always feel stronger; I am not exhausted at all by my singing. Swedenborg shows the reason and how life comes in as you pour it forth usefully to others. You don't have to try or worry or fret. You know it is not you but that it is just being done through you."

Speaking further of the help Swedenborg had been to her in her work she said: "One gets so much more confidence. The other world and the one life, that comprehends all life, becomes reality and all fear and worry vanish."

Hubbard to Have Local Paper

The printing plant at Hubbard, Marion county has been idle for some time and the business men of the community deciding they needed a local paper, held a meeting and formed a company and purchased the plant and appointed one of their members as editor. They have secured the services of a printer and are now in charge.

Market News Interpretations

Continued reports of unfavorable conditions in the spring wheat belt of the United States and Canada have tended to raise price levels, reported G. R. Hyslop in an O. A. C. extension service radio broadcast. December wheat being quoted even higher than July and September.

Hay prices are steadily strengthening from dry weather, short pasture and lack of irrigation water.

Little change is reported in the seed market. Indications are that the common and Hungarian vetch seed market is strengthening from local clover failures and smaller seed yields than earlier prospects indicated.

A good many early potatoes are available for market and the price is rather low. The July crop estimate indicates another short potato year for the east with a western crop like that of last year.
