Halsey Schools Make Good Start

That vacation days are over is proven by the busy hum around the school building these last few days where 115 students, great and small, short and tall are again bening over their books. Fifty-six of these students are enrolled in high school and ten of them form the freshman class. Members of the freshman class are Francis Leeper, Velda Curtis, Pearl Falk, Mamie Falk, Allen Beene, Lucile Phelps, Elza Simon, Julius McCord, Wanda Veatch and Lucile Herndon.

Mrs. Eldon Cross at the head of the primary department has 22 youngsters in her care.

With Prof. Lyman H. Patton, Mrs. Inez Freeland and Miss Maude Ferguson to guide and lend a helping hand to high school students everything looks promising for a successful school term.

While away they visited Mr. and Mrs. Mark Brandon and family at St. John, and their son Harold who was recently married to a Miss Austin of Spokane and where they now reside. They also took in the round-up at Pendleton and visited old acquaintances there and again stopped over at Portland with old friends.

The Shedd fair which was held Friday was well attended by Halsey people and pronounced especially good in every way. The school building was utilized for all kinds of displays; the cooking and agricultural products occupying the basement. Stock exhibits and races were good also. The evening was taken up with a chicken supper, served by the ladies of the M. E. church and a fine program put on by various communities.

Lawrence Wells who has been pastor at the Christian church at Newport during the summer months, came over the first of the week and after a short visit with his parents, continued on to Eugene where he will take a two year post graduate course at the Bible University. He will continue to fill his appointments each week at Newport.

They Got What They Want After

E. D. Isom and John Willbanks returned Friday from a successful hunting trip, twenty miles from Oak Ridge, on the Umpqua divide. They were joined there by E. D's, brother Frank, and one of his neighbors, Earl Walker. Their trip took them along the Packard trail, which Frank Isom, employed in government work, helped to build through this wild section and he informed his brother that hunting would be good there. They spent a week in the wilds, bagging two deer and a big black bear and her cub. There were two cubs but one of them made his getaway.

Fran's Isom and Walker did not come out at the same time the others did—so what further success they had has not been learned.

Mrs. Belvary Logan who has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. George Newman near Corvallis for some time returned to her home here last week.
