FAIRY QUEEN'S BALL

THE Fairy Queen is going to give a ball tomorrow evening," said the Breeze Brothers, "and she wants you to come. It is to be a fancy dress ball, and costumes are to be flower costumes.

"Everyone must look like a flower," These were the messages the Breeze Brothers took around with them, and everyone sent back word to the Fairy Queen that the invitation was accepted with much pleasure.

The next evening everyone came and in the sky Mr. Moon wore his rescent-shape suit, which was one of his very best he considered.

He said he couldn't dress like a flower very well as he had no flower costumes but he would do the best he could at the time.

And everyone admired Mr. Moon for the Fairy Queen was very fond of Mr. Moon's crescent shape.

The Fairies were all dressed like little Blueets or Eyebrights. They wore costumes of blue, with four blue petals coming out from these costumes, while the center part was of white.

As Told by Irvin S. Cobb

THE LIGHT THAT FAILED

AN OLD colored man, who had been crippled in the railroad service, served for many years as a watchman at a grade crossing in the outskirts of a Kentucky town not far from where I formerly lived. By day he wielded a red flag and by night he swung a lantern. He was conscientious and wide-awake and proud of his position of responsibility and authority and for a long time no accident occurred to mar his perfect record.

Finally, though, one dark night a colored man from the country, driving home from town, steered his mules across the track just as the Memphis flyer came through and abolished him, along with his team, and his wagon. His widow sued the railroad for damages. At the trial the chief witness for the defense was the old crossing watchman.

Dressed in his Sunday best Uncle Gabe stumped to the stand, took the oath to tell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth. And then, under promptings from the attorney for his side, he proceeded to give testimony strongly in favor of the defendant corporation. He stated that he had seen the approaching train in due time, standing in the street, he had waved his lantern to and fro for a period of at least one minute. In spite of the warning, he said, the deceased had driven upon the rails just as the train whizzed across the street.

Naturally, the attorney for the plaintiff put him to a severe cross-examination. Uncle Gabe answered every question readily and with evident honesty. He told just how he had held the lantern, how he swung and joggled it and so forth and so on. So convinced was the jury by his air of sincerity that, instead of giving a judgment for the full amount of damages asked, they awarded the widow only a few hundred dollars—a much smaller sum than the railroad had figured it must pay.

After court had adjourned the lawyer for the railroad sought out the old man and congratulated him upon his behavior as a witness.

"Gabe," he said, "you acquitted yourself splendidly. Weren't you at all nervous while on the stand?"

"I suttinly was, boss," replied Uncle Gabe. "I kep' wonderin' what wuz gwine happen ef dat wite genelman should ax me if dat lantern wuz lighted."

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

AESOP'S FABLES

TALES of beasts and animals are common in the folklore of all nations. But it is a circumstance that started the practice of using these fables to make a point, as a vehicle for satire or moral teaching, that we owe what has become an institution on the bookshelf of every child, our collection of "Aesop's Fables."

Though we call them "Aesop's Fables," the little stories known by that name have come down to us from the lips of many story tellers of ancient times and the bards of the Middle Ages. Their common character, however, of showing the rewards of virtue and the penalties of selfishness and other vices, had its origin with the ancient Greeks after whom they are named.

During the epoch of the Tyrants in Greece free speech was dangerous, and political criticism unwise. It was then that one Aesop, an educated slave of Samos, conceived the idea of putting over attacks on the government veiled in fables. The practice was taken up all over Greece and thereafter it was his name that was given to all fables—animal tales whose object was satire or moral teaching.

When free speech was established in the Greek democracy the custom of using fables to prove a point and to teach was continued. Then, or about the year 300 B. C., Demetrius Phalereus, founder of the Alexandria library, collected all the fables he could find and gave them the title of "Assemblies of Aesopic Tales." These and the similar tales which have come down from ancient India, where the fable was also used for moral teaching, form the bulk of what we know today as "Aesop's Fables."

THE WHY OF SUPERSTITIONS

By H. IRVING KING

MEETING A PIG

IT IS bad luck to meet a pig while on a journey; and if, on going visiting, you meet a pig on the way it is a sign that you will not be welcome when you arrive at your destination. These are superstitions—or rather a variation of the same superstition—found to be rather common in Canada and New England and perhaps existing in other localities. Also some fishermen object to meeting a pig when about to embark for the fishing grounds, and some old-fashioned sailors regard the hog askance, if they meet one just before sailing.

This idea that it is bad luck to encounter a hog at the beginning of any enterprise is a mild form of a similar superstition found among the northern nations of Europe, especially among the Scottish fishermen, among whom an intense horror of even the animal's name prevails.

That the hog was connected with moon-worship we know and one writer says in regard to the superstition under consideration, "All animals connected in folklore with the moon are diabolical, a relic of the antipathy of sun-worshippers to moon-worshippers." This antipathy can only have existed, however, among the Northern nations. The most civilized peoples of antiquity, we know, worshipped both the sun-god and the moon-goddess; conceiving a union instead of an antipathy between them. But among the Northern nations sun-worship was prominent; the traces of moon-worship comparatively few. The dwellers on the misty capes of Scotland and Norway had not the same reason to worship the "source of moisture" as the Egyptians had and moon-worship, therefore, may have been considered highly heterodox. As the superstition in question is a Northern one, perhaps the explanation cited is correct.

WHEN I WAS TWENTY-ONE

By JOSEPH KAYE

AT 21—Florenz Ziegfeld's Great Ambition Was to Become a Concert Pianist.

"AT THE age of twenty-one I was manager of the Chicago Musical Institute, founded by my father in 1867, where all branches of musical art were taught.

"My ambition then was to become a great pianist, but soon this desire gave way to something very different. Twenty-three found me studying at college and the greatest ambition of my life had changed from pianist to doctor. After that, the life work that I dreamed of was medicine.—Florenz Ziegfeld."

TODAY—Ziegfeld may be called a student of anatomy, but not in connection with medicine. He has a deserved reputation for being the best judge of feminine beauty in America, and in the possession of this power has made his "Follies" a reigning institution in this country.

Ziegfeld was the first to give America the form of entertainment known as the "revue," and which is so popular and so standard now. He started the Follies 17 years ago and with each new annual edition it has received more acclaim and become the leader in its field despite the fact that so many entertainments of this kind are produced every season. In Ziegfeld's case has been proven once more that the originators of any popular product remain first choice with the buyers.

The Follies was not Ziegfeld's first theatrical enterprise. It was he who exhibited Sandow, the famous strong man, to Americans and reaped a fortune from this enterprise both for his charge and himself.

IN DAYS OF OUR FOREFATHERS

Women Prepared Their Own Medicines

The wise pioneer women learned to gather, in woods and fields, the remedies the Indians used. From the rafters of colonial houses, hung great bunches of dried roots and herbs. From these, in times of sickness, the busy, mother brewed simple and powerful remedies. From roots and herbs, Lydia E. Pinkham, a descendant of these sturdy pioneers, made her Vegetable Compound. The beneficial effects of this dependable medicine are vouched for by hundreds of women.

Mrs. Wm. Kraft of 2833 Vinewood Ave., Detroit, Mich., saw a Pinkham advertisement in the "News" one day and made up her mind that she would give the Compound a trial. At that time she was very weak. "After the first bottle," she writes, "I began to feel better and like a new woman after taking six bottles. I recommend it to others and always keep a bottle in the house."

Mrs. Gust Green of 401 Lincoln Park Boulevard, Rockford, Illinois, found herself in a condition similar to that of Mrs. Kraft. "I was weak and run-down," she writes, "but the Vegetable Compound has helped me and I feel better now. I recommend it to all women who need more strength."

Justice for Goldenrod

The goldenrod was once popular, and loved by the poets, but was later banned because of the accusation that it was the cause of hay fever. Now rumors indicate that justice is about to be done and the goldenrod restored to its old place in popular favor. The ragweed, and not the goldenrod, is now thought to be the offender. There are 37 varieties of the goldenrod and some of these varieties may be found in nearly every state in the Union. Thus goldenrod lovers will welcome its restoration.
