Drink Water If Kidneys Bother

Take a Tablespoonful of Salts If Back Pains or Bladder is Irritated

Flush your kidneys by drinking a quart of water each day, also take salts occasionally, says a noted authority, who tells us that too much rich food forms acids which almost paralyze the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken; then you may suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To help neutralize these irritating acids; to help cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste, get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakis made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive: cannot injure and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.

Beardless Era for Men

The time may come when men, if they wish, can relieve themselves of the bother of the morning shave, and when women won't need to worry about trimming their bobbed hair.

This promise, says Popular Science Monthly, is held out by H. C. Brooke. English naturalist, as the result of experiments in the regulation of hair growth. Hair, Brooke says, is purely a matter of heredity. In his experiments he produced a strain of mice whose heads became bald in 16 days. A few days later they lost the fur on their backs, and a little later all their

Tom and Boiling rolled in barrels of rum, which were opened and consumed as rapidly as the heads were knocked off; and the raw spirits combined with the hellish chant and the suggestive throbbing of the drums to stimulate afresh the passions which Ga-ha-no's dancing had aroused. At first they paid no attention to us.

They were preoccupied with the exfast for a few days, and your kidneys traordinary bysteria which had may then act fine. This famous salts gripped them. They apostrophized the The women flung themselves upon the False Faces, for it was deemed an honor to receive the attentions of these priests of evil. The men worked themselves into an excess of debauchery. Groups formed and dissolved with amazing rapidity. Individuals, wearying of each other, ran hither and thither, seeking partners who were more pleasing or attractive

But at last a portion of the drunken mob turned upon us. An old woman with wispy gray hair and shrunken breasts beat Ta-wan-ne-ars on the flank with a smoldering brand. Bolling, whatever of man there was in him smothered in the brutishness the rum had excited, carefully inserted a pinesplinter in the quick of my finger nall. gritted my teeth to force back the scream of agony, and managed to laugh -how, I do not know-when he set it alight.

"The brother of Ta-wan-ne-ars is a great warrior," proclaimed my comrade, swift to come to my help. "Red Jack and his friends cannot hurt Ormerod. We laugh at you.'

Bolling ripped out his knife and staggered toward the Seneca's stake. "I'll make you laugh," he spat wick-"I'll carve your mouth wider so you can laugh plenty when we begin on you in earnest. Think this has been anything? We-" A yell of mingled fear and laughter interrupted him. False Faces and warriors, women as well as men, were pointing toward the background of the

"Ne-e-ar-go-ye, the Bear, is come to play with us," they cried.

And others prostrated themselves and called-

"Qua, Ga-go-sa Ho-nun-as-tase-ta!" For the second time that night I twisted my neck to peer behind my stake, and sure the sight which met my eyes was weirder even than the white figure of the Moon Maiden. There within the circle of the firelight stood Ga-ha-no again. But 'twas a vastly different Ga-ha-no. On her head she wore a bear's mask, with the fur of the neck and shoulders falling around her body to the ga-ka-ah which draped her loins. In each hand she gripped a knife, and her white limbs staggered under her in pretense of the unsteady gait of a bear walking

The False Faces began their chant, the drums rumbled crazily, and she wavered forward, arms flopping like paws, head poised absurdly upon one side. The savages, keen to appreciate what they knew, applauded uproariously such faithfulness to nature.

They were equally enthusiastic when she advanced her muzzle suspiciously and smelled of my face. But they could not hear the familiar voice which whispered in my ear-"Mr. Ormerod, when I have cut your bonds be ready to leap after me as soon as the Iroquois is free." I started so that my surprise must have been apparent had it not been for the restraining rawhide thongs.

"What?" I gasped. "You!" "Say nothing. Time is short. And I will-She danced, with her ridiculous gait. over to Ta-wan-ne-ars, and I watched curiously his look of affection and detestation change to one of quickly suppressed amazement. With his ready wit he shook his head at her and tried to bite one of the furry ears of her mask. She backed away from us slowly, and her head balanced from side to side in contemplation. Then she charged upon me, knives flashing before my eyes. She slashed at me here and there, and each time she slashed she severed a thong. I pretended abject fear, and the befuddied savages shouted with glee. She pranced to Ta-wan-ne-ars and performed the same operation upon him. He, too, gave evidence of fear. He cowered against the stake and lowered his head. But when she advanced her mask and nuzzled his shoulder, I saw his powerful muscles knotting themselves in preparation for the dash for freedom. "Now!" I heard her say very low. Ta-wan-ne-ars seemed to rise into the air, thongs flying behind him. I tugged and jumped and my own lastings parted-and I found myself running somewhat stiffly beside the Iroquois.

A second figure drew up to my side, and I felt a knifehfit pushed into my 'And here is one for the Iroquois, too." I stared down in bewilderment at the bear mask. 'Twas so unexpected, yet so obviously what I might have known she would do if the opportunity arose. That clean scorn, that. brave honesty of purpose, I had marked in her, were earnest of her determination to dare all for what she believed to be right.

A chorus of yelps like a wolf-pack in full cry split the night behind us. One of the False Faces sprang into our path, and Ta-wan-ne-ars closed with him. The Seneca's knife plunged into his throat, and he collapsed with a strangled scream.

As the pine trees shrouded us I looked back over my shoulder. The dancing place was covered with a mob of running figures who fell over each other in their drunken frenzy ...

We turned between the trunks of the pines, the mat of fallen needles springy underfoot. Behind us the fires of the dancing place were a faint radiance in the dusk. Branches crashed; bodies hurtled against each other; a bedlam of shricks resounded to the skies.

"Let me help you," I panted to our rescuer.

"There will be no need," she answered, running stride for stride beside us. "Do not be concerned for me. Many a mile I have run with the gillies over the Highland hills."

She stumbled as she spoke, and set my hand under her elbow. Tawan-ne-ars did the same on the other side, and so we ran for a space, three and three, our bruised and rusty joints gradually limbering with the effort.

Presently we came to an opening nongst the pines, with a huge, flat rock in the center and before the rock the ashes of a fire. My foot struck something round, and a human skull, blackened and charred, bounded ahead of us. I felt a sindder pass tffrough the slender figure in the mask.

"Tis the altar of the False Faces." she murmured. "None but the Ga-go-sa will dare to follow us through the wood.

"Was that your thought?" I questloned.

I was helpless. "Twas the Mistress-she bade me call her Gaha-no-thought of everything."

Ta-wan-ne-ars stopped in his stride, "What of Ga-ha-no?" he demanded sternly. She glanced fearfully backward along the way we had come. "We may not stay," she answered rapidly. "I will talk as we run. Oh, haste, haste, or all will be lost !" The Seneca resumed his steady gait, but the moonlight filtering through the branches revealed the agony in his face, an agony which the ordeal at the stake had not been able to produce. "Go-ha-no thought of aff," gasped our companion, her voice strangely me this morning-whilst I was plead-muffled by the mask. "She came to ing with them-told me how it it might be done-fetched me here-procured me the mask and costume-taught me the dance. 'Twas she secured the de lay-in your torture-made them send you food-bolstered your strength." "Where is she now?" asked Ta-wanne-ars hardly.

She looked sidewise at him-I think

In experiments still continuing it was found that a light coating of oil in the gun barrel caused the gun to shoot high and that other things being equal, muzzle vibrations increase as the powder charge is made lighter. It is hoped to evolve a formula for bul lets and barrels which will cut inaccuracy to the minimum.

Holds Hope for Lepers

Dr. Paul A. McIlhenny has reported to the American Medical association on preventive methods that may head off many of the frightful deformities long associated with leprosy. At the national leprosarium at Carville, La., corrective treatments consisting of massage, baths, exercises and ultraviolet irradiation have been used with success in treating the misshapen hands and feet even of cases of long standing, says the specialist. Since little preventive work of this character has ever been attempted in leper colonies, physicians are watching the progress of these corrective methods with great interest. So many deformities have been improved that in time cures of the less severe deformitles are not regarded as impossible.
