Spirit of Militarism Has No Place in Hearts of American People

By DWIGHT F. DAVIS, Secretary of War.

The Soldiers' memorial at Kansas City, Mo., recently dedicated by President Coolidge, is a visible memorial of the glorious deeds of the American soldier-citizens and citizen-soldiers, of our admiration for their achievements, of our respect for their ideals and of our pledge that we will fulfill the heritage of their trust. They fought and died not for wealth or power or increase of lands—not even for self-defense, but rather that their ideals of civilization might live. Their lives were short, but their ideals are eternal. Their comrades in arms share their love of peace. Those who have suffered the indescribable horrors of war are foremost in the desire for peace, so long as peace can be honorably maintained.

Our President has earnestly urged the limitation of competitive armaments by agreements among the nations and this nation stands ready to join in any practical measure to bring about this end. There is no danger of militarism in America. Our army today is, proportionately, as small as it has ever been. Always it has been a constructive force.

Every Inch a Real Home Is This Colonial Type

A LIVING-ROOM forty feet long—that is practically what one has in this exceptionally well planned Colonial house. The living-room extends on one side into the dining-room, set off only by two small china closets, and on the other into the sunroom. The whole effect is one of spaciousness and hospitality.

Another outstanding feature is the downstairs bed-room, which can be used as sick-room, guest chamber, playroom or sewing room, as occasion arises. The stairways are compactly arranged and well out of sight. There are closets and storage space enough to please the most acquisitive housekeeper.

White, cream or grey paint may be used on the siding with shutters, trim and roof in harmonizing colors. The walls and roof are made to resist heat and cold by insulating with celotex. The cost of building may be kept down by excavating only half of the house, taking care to insulate the unexcavated half with a layer of celotex in order to heat the house easily in the coldest weather. A further saving may be effected by finishing off the walls of the second floor rooms with celotex instead of lath and plaster. Left either plain painted, stained or finished with a dainty stencil such walls are extremely effective and durable.
