Truth Eclipses Fairy Tales

Friendship of Early Days Brings Millions Now

Toronto, Ont.—Romance as highly colored as a fairy tale has gilded the personal fortunes of R. B. Bennett, K. C., who comes into national prominence as a formidable contender for the leadership of the Conservative party in Canada.

Through his own efforts in the practice of his profession Bennett is credited with having become a millionaire. On top of this he now enjoys a "windfall" which, if it were an episode described in fiction, would be challenged for straining credulity.

When Bennett, nearly 40 years ago, was studying law in Chatham, N. B., along with Max Aitken, now Lord Beaverbrook, among his friends were a sister and brother, Jennie Shirreff and Harry Shirreff, both of whom were a few years his senior. They worked together in church and in the temperance lodge.

Girl Trains as Nurse.

Whether sentiment existed between Jennie Shirreff and the young law student is not known. In any case, their ways parted. The girl went to Brookline, near Boston, to train as nurse. Bennett went to the new town of Calgary, Alberta, to practice his profession, and grew up with the West.

In 1904 Jennie Shirreff married Ezra Butler Eddy of Ottawa, proprietor and founder of the E. B. Eddy company, paper, pulp and wood-ware manufacturers, whose daughter by a former marriage she had served professionally.

When, 12 years later Eddy died, his will declared it to be "one of the great desires of his heart" that his business should be continued. To that end he established a trust with his widow as one of the trustees to operate for ten years, at the end of which period his widow was to inherit five-eighths of the estate.

Thus in 1916 the former nurse came into possession of a controlling interest of one of the great industries of Canada. She brought in her new responsibility an executive capacity which had found play even during her husband's lifetime when she had accompanied him on his daily rounds and had become familiar with every detail of his enterprises.

Meanwhile Bennett had reached Ottawa as a member of the house of commons. He, like Jennie Shirreff, had prospered and they resumed their contact on equal terms.

Names Bennett as Trustee.

In 1921 Mrs. Eddy died. Like her husband, she also established a trust which was not to be broken for five years. She appointed as trustees and executors of her estate her brother, J. T. "Harry" Shirreff, who held an important executive position in the Eddy company, and "my friend for the last 50 years, Richard Bedford Bennett, barister." As trustees she directed that her brother was to receive $15,000 and Bennett $7,500 a year.

Subject to the provisions of the trust she bequeathed 1,008 shares in the Eddy company to her brother and 500 shares to Bennett. The value of each bequest was in the millions. In addition to the shares in the company which she had inherited from her husband, she was able to bequeath another million dollars to charities, churches, relatives and friends.

Harry Shirreff did not survive the five-year trusteeship. He died on May 20, 1926. Even more surprising than Mrs. Eddy's bequest was the following clause in her brother's will:

"My surviving sister, Edith Jessie Richardson, and my surviving relatives having been amply provided for by my deceased sister, Jennie Eddy, I give and bequeath 1,008 full paid-up shares of the capital stock of the E. B. Eddy company, limited, owned by me, by special bequest to Richard Bedford Bennett, on the expressed condition that the said Mr. Bennett shall have paid all estate and succession duties and taxes which may be payable with respect to the said shares, and, further, shall have paid also to the Montreal Trust for the purpose of establishment of the Guelielma Patching Shirreff trust fund, hereinafter more fully described, the sum of $200,000."

Inheritance Worth Millions. The trust fund provided for an annality for the testator's widow, and that provided for, Bennett, the sole survivor of the three young comrades who merrily frequented the debates in Temperance hall in Chatham, N. B., in 1888, finds himself by the revolution of fortune's wheel possessor of an inheritance worth many millions.

Bennett's 1,008 shares give him a majority of the 2,000 shares of the Eddy company. They are not on the market and their value can only be estimated. The plant in Hull, across the river from Ottawa, is assessed at $4,500,000 and the company possesses huge timber limits in the Gatineau valley and elsewhere. As a going concern the business is worth possibly $20,000,000.

There have been rumors that the International Paper company is trying to buy control. But the desire of E. B. Eddy, the founder, that the business should continue as an independent growing enterprise remains in force. And the capable hand of Bennett is at the helm.

Airplane Halts Stampede of Wild Reindeer Herd

Nome, Alaska.—How an airplane swooped down and turned the tide when a herd of 4,000 reindeer stampeded was told here by Eskimo herders. Up the Kuskokwim river near Bethel natives driving their herds toward new pastures faced total losses when the animals from no apparent cause sniffed the air and made off east.

Calves and yearlings were crushed by the rushing animals. Ten to fifteen miles beyond wild caribou would soon be passing on spring migrations. The native herders knew if the two types of animals merged the reindeer would be lost.

Out of the southern sky suddenly appeared an airplane bound toward Nome. The aviator sized up the situation and acted quickly. With a long swoop eastward he soared just above the milling animals. The leaders veered immediately and soon had the herds going in the direction of home corrals. The herders, more frightened than the reindeer, kept running in the opposite direction.

to Live to Be 350

Tokyo.—An amazing secret of longevity is claimed to have been discovered by a Korean, regarded as a saint, named Skajkinan—amazing in its simplicity as well as in its anticipated results. For it consists in nothing but a diet of water and small cakes made of pine bark.

Upon such food Skajkinan is said to have subsisted for many years. He is now sixty years old and "still going strong," and expresses the utmost confidence in living for 250 years longer, thus founding out three centuries and a half.

Skajkinan is a hermit who lives on Korea's holy mountain, Kongosan, and who has now come to Tokyo to tell of his method of longevity to the members of the Japanese Peer club. He says he found the secret inscribed in ancient books, which record that in this manner men have prolonged their lives to 500 years. He sleeps only two hours a day, massages himself and performs other hygienic exercises according to the holy teachings of the Buddhists, and his food consists of a few of the pine bark cakes and one or two glasses of water daily.
