Finest Record in Road Building

Oregon has the finest record in highway building of any state in the Union considering its population and car registrations. Some may praise the engineers who planned the highways; some may laud those individuals who have been instrumental in carrying the good roads message to the legislature, while others may eulogize the distinguished individuals who have devoted time, energy and money to the movement.

The road credit, however, as the Oregon State Motor Association points out, belongs to the motorists and taxpayers of Oregon—they have financed the thousands of miles of excellent roadways that make every section of the state accessible. Without their assent no good roads movement would have been born; without their support no good roads system could have been developed.

While credit is due every man and woman who has labored for the benefit of Oregon's highway system, the greatest credit belongs rightfully to the motorist and taxpayer who foots the bill.

Cupid's Poor Shots

Judging from the increasing prevalence of divorce and its attending evils, Cupid is doing some rather poor shooting these days. His darts have either failed to hit the mark, or having hit it failed to stick.

Convincing proof of this is seen in a recent statement from Detroit where it is declared that not only are divorces reaching a high total, but alimony is assuming large proportions in the matrimonial picture. In that city it is said that no less than 11,000 divorced husbands are under orders to pay alimony and 4,000 of them are prosecuted every year for failure to do so.

The number of recalcitrant husbands confined in the Detroit house of correction for failing to pay alimony has run as high as 125 and at the time of the last report it was 111. Furthermore it was stated that alimony payers in the city were increasing at the rate of about 70 a week. Truly Cupid is making a mess of things nowadays.

Boys and Girls

Martha Hale, a California school girl, has no arms, but can write, operate a typewriter, comb her hair and perform many other tasks with her feet.

Inez Framley, a Toronto school girl, broke the world's record in the women's high jump with a height of 4 feet 11 inches.

Virginia Cassis, a 14 year old West Virginia girl whose father is a prominent tobacco dealer, won a prize on her essay on "Evil Effects of Tobacco."

About 400 girl scouts of New York city passed tests in cooking during the last year.

To Widen Roads

With an automobile owned by practically every family in the land the problem of good roads is an intensely local issue in every community. State highways cannot be built around every farm, but every farmer must get to through roads.

Old roads upon which money has been spent for grading and graveling, cannot be recklessly "scrapped" without tremendous loss to the taxpayers. How to protect the old worn out surface and save the well packed foundation for further use, has been a considerable problem.

Today, however, methods have developed for widening and resurfacing these old roads or broken-down narrow pavements with two inches or more of asphaltic concrete, thereby saving the old road investment and giving rural communities hundreds of miles of smooth hardsurfaced highways at a price they can afford to pay. "Salvage the old roads," should become a slogan of every rural section.

Cooperation in Creameries

Five hundred million pounds of creamery butter is made annually in the plants of co-operative associations, according to U. S. Department of agriculture. This amount is a trifle more than one-third of the creamery butter made in the 4,000 plants reporting to the department. It is 34 per cent of the creamery butter produced in the 88 states in which the 1,480 co-operatives tabulated are located. 74 per cent of this butter is produced in three states, Minnesota co-operatives made 36 per cent in 1926, Wisconsin 23 per cent, and Iowa 15 per cent. These three with California and Michigan, produced 84 per cent of the butter made co-operatively in the United States in 1926. About 61 per cent of the creamery butter produced in Minnesota, Wisconsin and Iowa was made in co-operatively owned plants.

Church Notices

Methodist Next Sunday:
10 a. m., Sunday school
11, preaching.
6:30 Epworth League
8 p. m. preaching.

Mrs. Cox is in charge of the music for our meetings and special musical numbers will be offered each evening.

The meetings are being well attended and enthusiasm is growing. The Willamette Holiness conference Tuesday was a great meeting.

Rev. Cox is a splendid speaker and brings a message to you.
J. S. Miller, pastor.

Church of Christ:
Easter Sunday—
10 a. m. Sunday school.

We are proud of our new record of 154 established last Sunday. Crabtree only had 132. This Sunday we should have a fine attendance in honor of the Resurrection of our Lord. If you do not have some other Sunday school home, come with us.

11 a. m. morning worship and communion service, quartet, "Low in the Grave He Lay." Solo by C. A. Sias.

7:00 p. m. C. E. Come. We will close at 7:55 so as to get to the Methodist church by 8 o'clock and unite with them in their meeting.

The revival meetings held by Evangelist Shelley and C. Adrian Sias the pastor, resulted in 23 new members added by baptism and 3 by letter and statement. Every one is rejoiced and will be glad if Rev. Shelley is ever in our midst again.

Fine crowds and music existed throughout the meetings and all feel spiritually uplifted.
C. Adrian Sias, pastor.

Pine Grove Church
Sunday School 2 p. m.
Preaching at 8 p. m.
Rev. Roy Metcalf will preach April 8th.

Want Ads to Help You

On nearly every farm is some piece of machinery or tool that the owner has no use for and that some one else would buy or trade for if it was only known.

To bring buyer and seller together to the mutual benefit of both, try using want ads in the Enterprise, the cost will be small and the benefits remunerative to you.

LEADERSHIP

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

IT WAS Amil the Goth who said to Wulf, the chief of the tribe, when he was hesitating as to his own action:

"If the bison-bull lie down and wallow, what will the herd do for a leader? If the king-wolf lose the scent, how will the pack hold it? If the Yaling forgets the song of Asgard, who will sing it to the heroes?" Example is the strongest influence in leadership.

Clayton had charge of seven thousand men whose job was ship building during the World war—untrained, illiterate men most of them were, who were used to hard work and a rough life, and to be ruled with an iron wrist, and Clayton was a man of education and refinement. He had seen the world; he had known men of prominence and influence; he was a gentleman in every sense of the word, but for all his refinement of taste and education, he had no difficulty with his men, and the reason was that he lived with them, he ate the food that they ate, he slept as they slept, he worked as many hours daily and as hard as they worked, he lived soberly and discreetly as he would have liked them to live. They respected his character, they recognized his leadership, and they followed as the pack follows the king-wolf.

The boss gave Williams very good advice when he took him on in a subordinate position. He emphasized the fact that regular and temperate habits were necessary to success. He gave Williams to understand that drinking and gambling were not consonant with progress in their firm. The advice was excellent and Williams listened to it with respect. But he had not been long with the firm until he learned that the boss was not following the advice which he had given his subordinates. His breath did not always suggest a respect for the Volstead act; his stories of what he had won in a friendly game with one of his neighbors did not indicate that he himself refrained from gambling, and if he did not, why should Williams? The boss had succeeded and had been neither temperate nor always scrupulous as to how he won his money. His example told strangely in molding Williams' character. He was the bison-bull lying down and wallowing, and the herd was following his example.

Gaston, who was head of his fraternity, was worried about the freshmen in the house. It was hard to keep them in at night—they were crazy about dates. It was difficult to keep them at their books, and their scholarships were not what it should be. He wanted advice.
"How many nights a week are you in?" I asked. He colored a little and hesitated.
