NEIGHBORS OF WOODCRAFT HOLD INTERESTING MEET

The 31st anniversary of the founding of the order Neighbors of Woodcraft, was fittingly celebrated by the local order last night when its members and friends gathered at the Odd Fellows hall. After a brief routine of the lodge work in which four candidates took leading parts, someone unlocked the doors, threw the key in the waste basket and the entertainment part of the evening ably conducted by Mrs. Donna Cross, ushered in.

A piano solo by Retta Armstrong headed the program followed by the address of welcome, pleasingly delivered by Clara LaFollette.

Following this, living pictures were introduced to the audience by the unique way of song, this part being done in solos, duets, trios, and quartets and lent a fascinating atmosphere to the exhibition of the pictures. Those lending voices were: Blanche Morris, Sarah Robertson, E. D. Isom, Dana Rossman and Cari Isom.

"Springtime" Frances Louise Patton, "Long, Long Ago," Nellie Isom, "Blue Bells of Scotland" Blanche Morris, "Red Wing" Ella Rossman, "Old Gray Bonnet" Clara LaFollette, "Mammy's Lullaby," Ada Corcoran, "Baby Face" E. D. Isom, "Little Black Mustache" Horace Armstrong, "Solomon Levi," Dana Rossman, "School Days," Roberta and Lynden Bramwell, "Roll Them, Boys," Fern Rossman, "Alice Blue Gown" Melba Muller, "In a Little Spanish Town," Cuma Munson, "Star Spangled Banner" Donna Moss and Elaine Straley, "Good Night Ladies," Donna Moss.

An exhibition drill by twelve little girls was neatly executed and resembled a fairy scene as they flitted to and fro in their little white frocks. Those participating in this were: Leila Gansle, Vivian Frum, Phyllis Holt, Fern Rossman, Coralea Moody, Renie Alford, Donna Moss, Elaine and Geraldine Straley, Jean Sturtevant, Roberta Bramwell and Frances Louise Patton.

Elizabeth White read a paper on the founding of the local order, its promoters, charter members, officers, its healthy growth and benefits, in a brief summary.

Coralea Moody's recitation, "Six Times Nine" was done in her usual winsome manner.

The banquet room and supper were under the able supervision of Mrs. Dana C. Rossman.

There are six girls in this club and for this last meeting it was planned that each one was to respond to roll call with an original poem and following are the verses:

When you've been working,
And you're tired and feel like
shirking,
You return from school
To find work awaiting you,
What a joy to go to bed
And fall asleep to rest.

Some like fat
Some like lean
But I just like
Stitch it straight
And stitch it neat.
Then our work with others
We will compete.

A night after church
Parked under a birch
In a little closed Ford;
Just a parting word.

Happy are the girls who learn to sew,

When all the girls are gathered 'bout
For some fair purpose without doubt
And they are keen, needles in hand
You know something's planned.

When things are always in a boom,
Girls are plotting and a scheming,
To gain the goal of which they're dreaming.
