Mrs. E. S. Marsters was very pleasantly surprised last Thursday when Mrs. Jam's Scoggin of Tumalo, Oregon, stopped enroute to Portland for a visit. The Marsters and Scoggin families were neighbors 25 years ago when both lived above Brownsville and this was the first time they had met since then. Needless to say they had a pleasant visit. Mrs. Scoggin was going to Portland to attend a family reunion.
Fred Harding and sons, Bruce and Harry, drove over to Corvallis Sunday where the boys will attend summer school. Mr. Harding always sends one of his children to summer school every year and it was Harry's turn this year. Bruce however won a scholarship and so both boys will attend the school this year. Charles Falk, who won a scholarship for his work in the 4-H clubs found it impossible to attend and exchanged with Paul Quimby who had been awarded a $5 prize.

Shelter for Hay Good Investment

Prevents Losses to Stack Bottoms and Tops and Is Not Expensive.

"Losses due to spoilage of stack bottoms and tops may be largely avoided by using some kind of a hay barn," Walter G. Ward, extension architect of the Kansas State Agricultural college, advises farmers. "Fortunately a shelter for hay does not require expensive construction. Where the hay shed is to be located in the field or any place not intended for feeding direct, pole construction is very satisfactory. Hay sheds, of course, are made in many different sizes and types, but for average conditions, a width of 24 feet will be found convenient. It is wide enough to be economical in construction, but not so wide as to require much hand labor, in handling hay with carrier." Greatest Item of Cost.

As the roof represents the greatest item of cost, a hay shed should be made fairly high, Ward suggests. The side walls may well be 20 feet or more in height.
As the rigidity of an open pole shed is dependent largely on the poles, they should be set 4 or 5 feet in the ground. They may be spaced from 12 to 16 feet apart, so it does not require many of them to construct a hay shed of good size.

While some hay sheds are built without covering the side walls, it is a good practice to cover them part way down to prevent rain and snow from blowing on the hay when only partly filled. If the side walls are 20 feet high, the lower 8 to 12 feet may usually be left open without much spoilage. A cheap grade of lumber, or galvanized iron may be used on the walls.

Plans Available.
Plans are available in blue print form for two well established types of hay barns. These may be seen in any farm bureau office in Kansas or copies may be secured from the rural engineering department, Kansas State Agricultural college, Manhattan. The plan for the pole hay shed costs 20 cents and the feeding barn 30 cents.

"It's the Light-Running Grain Binder"

That's what users everywhere say of the Light-Running New John Deere. When you put this new binder in the field and see how easily it pulls and the steady, good work it does—you, too, will want a

Light-Running New John Deere

The use of a wide drive wheel with extra high lugs, improved cutter bar, roller and ball bearings, easier and better lubrication, easy-running reel, improved lighter-draft elevators with flexible capacity and smooth-working binder attachment with improved packer bearings, make the John Deere the lightest-running binder ever built.

Large oil cups, easy to get to, make oiling a simple job, thus reducing wear and lightening the draft. Improved reel, great capacity elevators, levers easy to reach, handy bundle carrier and an all-steel quick-turn tongue truck are other important features of the Light-Running New John Deere.

Come in and see the New John Deere next time you are in town.

The Most Misunderstood Woman In American History

Who knows Lincoln—the Suitor—the Husband—the Father? Who knows the story of his marriage to Mary Todd and their later trials and triumphs.

Only a small group of intimate relatives have had access to Lincoln's heart and home, and now these relatives—the family of Mary Todd—have broken the silence of sixty years to write this great romance, the story of "Mary, Wife of Lincoln," by Kate Helm, her niece. The first big installment of this touching, tragic story will appear in the May number of McCall's Magazine.

Mary, Wife of Lincoln, is first of all a great romance! It is one with the romances of old that will live through the ages—a story that will awaken the sympathies and stir the hearts of all its readers.
