

Has Your Baby a Certificate Of Citizenship? He Should

Brand new, citizens of Oregon, that is, citizens born in this state, are having a special honor conferred upon them by the state board of health. As soon as the facts of the birth are duly recorded by the division of vital statistics, the division which has charge of the records of births, deaths, marriages and divorces, a finely engraved certificate showing that the child has been legally registered as a citizen is sent to the parent, says Frederick D. Strickler, of the Oregon state board of health.

This notification of birth registration is signed by Dr. Strickler, the state health officer, acting as special agent of the bureau of census. These certificates are more than fine examples of the printing art. As a matter of fact this certificate is one of the most important possessions a child can have.

A certified copy of the original certificate is accepted as a proof of a person's identity, of his or her birthplace, nationality, age, relationship and for numerous other legal purposes including:

The right to attend school or withdraw from school.

The right of protection afforded by child labor laws.

The right to vote.

The right to hold public office.

Inheritance rights.

Contract rights.

The age of consent to marry.

The age for jury duty.

The right to secure passports for foreign countries.

The right to protection in foreign countries.

The law of Oregon requires the attending physician or midwife to report a baby's birth within ten days to the local registrar, by whom it is forwarded to the division of vital statistics. Parents who are uncertain as to whether or not this has been done, can find out by writing the State Board of Health, 304 Medical Arts Bldg., Portland.

Mr. and Mrs. George Gansle of Eugene were Halsey visitors Sunday at the home of their sons, F.G. and Charles Gansle. In the afternoon the Gansle brothers and their families took the visitors to Cascadia on a pleasure trip.

Cascade Summit A Beautiful Place; Mountain Grandeur Most Inspiring

In a letter to the Enterprise Mrs. E. D. Isom writes entertainingly of the beauties of the Cascade National forest where at present she is spending her vacation. She says:

"We are located about nine or ten miles above McCredie Springs in the Cascade national forest. It surely is beautiful up here. Our camp is right among the tall pines,

"This is a wonderful mountain road they are building. I certainly want to go over it to Eastern Oregon when it is completed.

"I rode over it to McCredie Springs in an automobile one evening last week. The road is a splendid mountain road. On the way a doe stood by the side of the road and looked at us. We stopped the car and she stood looking at us for a while, then trotted away.

"We are camped just a little way from the Beamer ranch. Mr. and Mrs. Beamer have lived here for nine years, before there was any railroad or wagon road, only the mountain trails. They have a lovely little farm and raise such nice vegetables and berries, also have a yard full of flowers. Mrs. Beamer is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Brock of Shedd. Mr. and Mrs. Brock, 86 and 81 years respectively, are here visiting their

Excellent Photoplay to Be Seen

"The Valley of the Giants," a First National picture starring Milton Sills, comes to the Halsey Theatre as the next big attraction. This will be shown next Tuesday evening and one of Peter Kyne's best stories of the big western timber as a background for a feud between rival timber barons. Pretty Doris Kenyon plays opposite Sills and a fine cast supports the star.

Neighbors of Woodcraft to Picnic

On August 26 a big picnic will be held at the city park in Dallas at which all members of Circles of the Neighbors of Woodcraft of district 21, and their families are urged to be present. Dinner will be eaten at 2 o'clock. Each member is to take dinner, dishes and silverware for those in their party. Coffee will be furnished by the Dallas Circle.

In the afternoon a program will be given, each Circle represented to furnish one number.

There are about 25 Circles in this district and it is anticipated that a large crowd will be present.

Those of Vine Maple Circle of Halsey who can go are asked to phone Mrs. J. J. Corcoran or the Enterprise office as early next week as possible so that plans may be made for the cars to start about the same time.

Bulletins on Cooperation Ready

Two new bulletins just issued by the state college at Corvallis are available for free distribution. "Factors in the Organization of Co-operative Associations," by George O. Gatlin, extension specialist in marketing, is a handbook which presents in condensed and convenient form the important factors to be considered and the procedure to be followed in organizing farmers' cooperative business enterprises. It also contains state and federal laws on the subject.

This week has been a busy one at the Frum warehouse as many cars of hay and grain have been shipped out.

Let the Waves Roll On daughter now. They came up Friday on the train.

"The first Sunday we were here Mr. Isom and Mr. Beamer went fishing and Mrs. Beamer, Beverly and I rode horseback over a mountain trail with the lunch. It was about ten miles there and back.

"Yesterday evening we boarded the train and went to Cascade Summit or Odell Lake. We visited an old schoolmate of ours, Mr. Roland Porter, who lived near Halsey when a boy. He is a signal man for the S. P. and with his family lives at the Summit. This morning he took us in his motor boat for a sixteen mile ride across and around Odell lake. It is certainly a beautiful lake. At one time it was quite rough but I enjoyed riding over the little waves. From one side we could see a close-up view of beautiful Diamond Peak.

"It is a wonderful country up here. Carl is working here too. He and Walt Smith of Halsey and two other men are doing trail work. I haven't seen him to talk to him but talked over the phone with him. I will go home on the 20th.

"I thought you might like to hear what we are doing up here."
