You can't keep a good man down, and the aviators will say so anyway.

So far the barbers do not seem to be making much objection to the hair bobbing custom.

The girls can't expect to make their way in the business office merely by their skill with the powder puff.

All right for the politicians to seek the limelight, but they would better be careful about the oil light.

Mother may think a good rich sink drain is unsanitary, but the boy fisherman may have other views about it.

Some people don't seem to be thoroughly happy unless they read shocking revelations of wrongdoing every day.

Some men deny that they are not interested in art, as they will always stop to look at pictures of pretty girls.

The young men are urged to climb the ladder of success, but more of them seem inclined to ride up in the elevator.

The motorists are asked to help make the roads safer. Some people could help a lot by leaving their cars in the garage.

Some folks' idea of "solemnizing" weddings is to chase bridal couples all over the city with rice, confetti, and other hazing.

While the politicians fling the banner to the breeze, most of the people are satisfied just to hang out their washing on the clothes line.

It is difficult to turn out golf clubs as fast as people want them, but no complaint is heard about inability to get hoes and spades.

The men, after having put away their spring clothes very carefully last year, are now yelling to their wives to know where they are.

Many people believe all the stories that come out of Washington, but for some reason they still continue to live in this country.

It's all right to offer all these trophy cups for athletic success, but an equal number should be offered to the good pie-makers and garden tenders.

As soon as Wash the Windows Week is thoroughly observed, it becomes necessary to celebrate Bake up the Leaves Day with appropriate exercises.

The poets rave over the sweet birdsongs of spring, but they fail to mention the cheerful sound of the Old Man beating the dust out of the parlor carpet.

The people are urged to take their medicine cheerfully, and some folks are willing to do it if they can find a doctor with satisfactory views about stimulants.

Sending telegraph messages in cipher may become a common practice now, but the men ought to realize that their wives can decipher anything that they are able to think up.

Question is asked how the women folks can be interested in politics. Well, they will probably attend the rallies, if the women speakers will wear the latest Paris fashions.

Claimed that the evidence before the investigating committees will shake the nation, but perhaps all that will happen will be that the politicians will get out and shake the hands of the nation.

FLAPPER BANDITS

Recent dispatches from New York and other cities have reported a considerable number of young women bandits, more or less of the flapper type. They astonish the police and their victims with the cool, masculine and daring way with which they handle firearms and bluff people into giving up money.

Some old-fashioned people may say that such developments are the result of taking women out of their home lives, and that women who are devoted to purely home duties and were sheltered from life's rougher side, they claim, you never heard of flapper bandits.

But it can be said that these instances of brutal crime by women are still very rare relatively. Thus they attract wide attention, while men are performing hold-ups and burglaries every day. The flapper bandit is thus too rare a bird to have any great social significance.

It is no doubt true that the more sheltered people are, the less danger there is that they will break loose in lives of crime. But the world will not advance unless people are given power to express themselves and to do the things they are capable of. For every one flapper bandit, there are many thousands of women who have gained useful power by their wider experience.

But it remains true that the modern girl has to meet more temptations in her freer intercourse with men than the women of former generations did. There is a great need for club work and helpful associations that shall take up the interest of girls who are restless in their surround-ings, and demand excitement and adventure. More athletics and other activities for girls would keep some of these headstrong young women in the straight and narrow path.

VACANCIES EXIST

IN ARMY BANDS

There are several vacancies for good musicians (most all instruments) in the Army Bands at Ft. Worden, Wn., Ft. D. A. Russell, Wyo., and the Hawaiian Islands.

Men in Army Bands, in time of peace, have no military duties to perform other than playing their respective instruments, unless they should choose a mounted band, in which case the care of a horse follows.

Most of the playing done by Army Bands is for practice—in other words, the Army Bandsman is in a good musical school under the leadership of an eminent band leader—he is getting a good musical education and at the same time he is getting paid for it—instead of having to pay exorbitant rates for same.

In the Army Bands there are many grades and ratings open which afford rates of pay ranging from $21.00 to $152.50 per month and all necessary expenses, which are estimated from forty-five to sixty dollars per month or more. Army bands are frequently called upon to play for County Fairs, Pendleton Round-Ups and for other occasions in various localities, and for this they receive in addition to their regular pay, special remuneration.

HIDDEN FOES IN

SEED POTATOES

"Hidden Foes in Seed Potatoes," a new one-reel motion picture just released by the United States Department of Agriculture, takes the veil from some of the diseases that lurk in seed potatoes and that do not make themselves known until their harm has been done.

The film was produced with the object of stressing the importance of using seed potatoes free from degeneration diseases as a means of preventing the large reductions of yield now charged to the use of diseased tubers. Symptoms of the more important diseases are shown in close-ups. The subject matter is presented in connection with a conversation between two farmers, one of whom is harvesting a fine crop. The other farmer has not been so fortunate, and it develops that he followed all measures of disease prevention except one—the use of seed tubers from fields selected during the growing season for freedom from disease.

"Hidden Foes in Seed Potatoes" will be circulated through an educational film service of the Department of Agriculture and the cooperating State institutions. Copies may be borrowed for short periods, the only cost being for transportation, or may be bought by authorized institutions at the laboratory charge.

BE PRETTY! TURN GRAY HAIR DARK

Try Grandmother's Old Favorite Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, at a small cost.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy and attractive.
