The mine owner received Lady Farquhar's explanations in skeptical silence. In his opinion, Moya's interest in Jack Kilmeny had nothing to do with the relationship between that scamp and the captain. He would have liked to say so flatly, but he felt it safer to let his manner convey the innuendo. In her heart Lady Farquhar was of the same belief. She resolved to have a serious talk with Moya.

Moya combed her long rippling hair while Lady Farquhar laid down the law that hedges a young woman from the satisfaction of her generous impulses. For the most part the girl listened in silence, a flush burning through each of her dusky cheeks. There was nothing to be said that would avail.

"It is all very well to be independent within limits, my dear, but young women of our class are subject to the penalties that go with our privileges. When I was a girl I rebelled but had to obey. So must you," Lady Farquhar interrupted herself to admire the vivid rebel she was admonishing. "What wonderful hair you have—so long and thick and wavy. It must take a great deal of care."

"Yes," Moya said absently. She did not resent the rebuke Lady Jim had come to give her while she was undressing. No doubt she deserved it. She had been unmildly, and all for love of this light-hearted vagabond who did not care the turn of a hand for her. All day her thoughts had been in chaotic ferment. At times she lashed herself with the whip of her own scorn because she cared for a self-confessed thief, for a man who lived outside the law and was not ashamed of it. Again it was the knowledge of her unwanted love that flayed her, or of the injustice to her betrothed in so passionate a feeling for another man. With all her strong young will she fought against this devouring flame that possessed her—and she knew that she fought in vain.

In the shipwreck of her self-respect she clung to one spar. Soon they would be on their way back to that well-ordered world where she would be entirely in the groove of convention. Her engagement to Captain Kilmeny would be announced. Surely among the many distractions of London she would forget this debonaire scamp who had bewitched her.

"You should have come to me—or to India for that matter. She is his cousin and is in a different position from you. Don't you see that, my dear?" Lady Farquhar said gently. And again Moya said "Yes" wearily. "James and I understand you—how impulsive you are—and how generous. But Mr. Kilmeny—and Mr. Verinder—what do you suppose they think?"

"I don't care what Mr. Verinder thinks," And Moya began to coil her hair loosely for the night.

"But that's just it—a girl must care. She can't afford to allow anyone an opportunity to think unpleasant things about her. She has to guard her reputation very jealously."

"And I suppose I've been playing ducks and drakes with mine," Moya said, pushing home a hairpin.

"I don't say that, dear. What I say is that Mr. Kilmeny may misunderstand your interest in him."

"He may think I'm in love with him. Is that it?" flashed the girl.

"He might. Give a man's vanity the least chance and—"

A reckless impulse to hurt herself—the same which leads a man to grind on an aching tooth in heady rage—swept Moya like a flame.

"Then he would think the truth," she interrupted. "What's the use of denying it? I . . . I'm in love with him."

"Moya," Lady Farquhar's protest came in a horrified gasp.

The young woman turned her slim body in the chair with supple grace so as to face her chaperon. Beneath the dark eyes spots of color burned through the tan.

"It's true. I've cared . . . ever since we met him."

"And he—has he ever made love to you?"

"Never. He's thought only of Joyce. That's what makes it more shameful."

Lady Farquhar took a moment to absorb the unwelcome news. "I never dreamed it was as bad as this. Of course I knew he interested you a good deal, but—"

Moya could not keep scorn of herself out of her voice. "But you didn't think I was so lost to decency as to throw myself at his head. You see I am."

"Nonsense," cut in her chaperon with sharp common sense. "You're not the first girl that has fancied a man who won't do. It's imagination is a good deal of it. Make yourself forget him. That's all you can do."

"I can't do that. I've tried," confessed Moya miserably.

"Then try again—and again—and still again. Remember that you are engaged to a man worth a dozen of him. Call your pride to help you."

"It seems that I have none. I've told myself forty times that he's a slygrader and that doesn't help."

Her friend was alarmed. "You don't mean that you would marry a man who is a—man who steals ore?"

"No. I wouldn't marry him . . . even if he wanted me—which he doesn't. I haven't fallen that far."

"Glad to hear you say that," answered Lady Farquhar with a sigh of relief. She took the girl in her arms and patted one of the shoulders over which the hair had cascaded. "My dear, it's hard. You're intense and emotional. But you've got to—buck up, as James says. You're brave—and you're strong-willed. Make a winning fight."

"What about . . . Ned?" "Does he suspect?" "I don't know. Sometimes I think he does. But you know how generous he is. He never says anything, or avoids the subject of his cousin in any way." She added, after an instant: "Ned knows that I don't . . . love him—that is, in one way. He says he's ready to wait till that comes."

"Ned Kilmeny is a man out of a million. Wait. Give yourself and him a chance. In a few days we'll be started home."

"That's what I've been telling myself. Everything here reminds me of him. It will be different then, I try to think. But—down in my heart I don't think it will."

"And I know it will," the matron laid her promptly. "Time, my dear, seals all our woes. Youth has great recuperative powers. In a year you will wonder how he ever cast such a spell over you."

Moya heard the last belated revelation passed down the corridor to his room before she fell asleep. When she awoke it was to see a long shaft of early sunshine across the bed.

She rose, took her bath, and dressed for walking. Her desire drew the steps of the young woman away from the busy street toward the suburb she walked, as always, with the classic resilience of unfettered youth. But he weight that had been at her heart for two days—since she had learned from Jack Kilmeny's lips that he was a highgrader—was still there too securely to be shaken away by the wonder of the glorious newborn day.

Returning to the hotel, she met a man on the porch whose face stirred instantly a fugitive memory. He came to her at once, a big leather-skinned man with the weatherbeaten look of the West.

"Aren't you the Miss Dwight I've heard Jack Kilmeny mention?" "Yes. This is Mr. Colter, isn't it?" He nodded, watching her with hard narrowed eyes. "Something's wrong. Can you tell me what it is? Jack's smiles—two of them, anyhow—came back to the barn during the night with bits of broken harness still attached to them. Looks like there had been a runaway and the wagon had come to grief. The keeper of the livery stable says Bell took the wagon round to Jack's place and left it with him. He was seen driving out of town soon after. He has not been seen since."

Her heart flew to alarm. "You mean . . . you think he has been hurt?" "Don't know. He's not in town. That's a cinch. I've raked Goldbanks with a toothcomb. Where is he?" "Couldn't be at his mine?" "I sent a boy out there. He's not at the Jack Pot."

"What is it that you think? Tell me," she cried softly. "You're his friend, aren't you?"

(Signature and title of officer and his residence.)

SECTION 4. The forms herein given are not mandatory and if substantially followed in any petition it shall be sufficient, disregarding clerical and technical errors.

SECTION 5. Not more than twenty signatures shall be signed to one sheet of a petition, and a full and correct copy of the title and text of the measure demanded for submission by the initiative or referendum petition, as the case may be, shall be attached to each sheet circulated for signature, and such full and correct copy of the title and text shall be shown to the voter before his signature is attached.

SECTION 6. The Recorder of the Town of Beaverton shall except for filing any petition for the initiative or for the referendum, subject to the verification of the number and genuineness of the signatures and voting qualifications of the persons signing the same by reference to the registration books in the office of the County Clerk of Washington County, and if a sufficient number of qualified voters be found to have signed said petition, he shall file same within ten days after presentation thereof to him.

SECTION 7. Initiative petitions for any proposed ordinance, charter amendment or measure shall be signed by a number of legal voters equal to fifteen per centum of the votes cast for mayor at the last preceding municipal election. Referendum petitions against any ordinance or measure proposed by the City Council shall be signed by a number of legal voters equal to ten per centum of the votes cast for mayor at the last regular preceding municipal election.

SECTION 8. An ordinance or resolution or an amendment to the charter of the Town of Beaverton may be proposed and submitted to the legal voters thereof by resolution or ordinance of the City Council without an initiative petition; said resolution or ordinance or amendment shall be filed with the Recorder for submission not later than ten days before the election at which it is to be voted upon and no ordinance, resolution or amendment to the charter shall be effective until it is approved by a majority of the votes cast thereon by the legal voters of said town.

SECTION 9. Where an ordinance or resolution or amendment to the charter of the Town of Beaverton is proposed and submitted to the legal voters thereof by resolution or ordinance of the City Council without an initiative petition, the said resolution shall therein state the date of the regular municipal election, or the date of the special election at which said resolution or ordinance will be submitted to be voted on.

SECTION 10. When any measure for initiative or referendum legislation shall be filed by the Recorder after the number and genuineness of signatures thereto, as provided by Section 6 Supra have been ascertained, or when any resolution or ordinance of the City Council shall be filed with the Recorder as provided in Section 8 herein, the Recorder shall forthwith transmit to the attorney of said Town a copy of such measure, who shall within five days provide and return to the Recorder a ballot title for such measure. The ballot title shall be printed with the number of the measure on the official ballot. In making such ballot title said attorney shall to the best of his ability give a true and impartial statement of the purpose of the measure and in such language that the ballot title shall not be an argument for, or liable to create prejudice against such measure. Any person who is dissatisfied with the ballot title provided by the said attorney for any such measure may within five days after said ballot title is returned to the Recorder appeal to the Council asking a different title and giving the reasons therefor, and stating why the title prepared by the said attorney is improper and the Council shall by resolution approve the ballot title prepared by said attorney, or shall by resolution prescribe another ballot title for the measure, and the Council shall by resolution approve the ballot title so prepared or so prescribed by the Council shall be the title placed upon the ballot. Such ballot title shall in no case exceed one hundred words, and shall not resemble in so far as possible any other ballot title filed for any measure. The Recorder of the Town of Beaverton shall number such measures and ballot title in the most convenient and consecutive manner.

The affirmative of the first measure shall be numbered 100 and the negative 101 in numerals, and the succeeding measures shall be numbered 102, 103, 104, 105 and so on. It shall be the duty of the Recorder to print said ballot titles and numbers upon the official ballot. Measures referred to the voters by petition shall be designated "Referendum ordered by petition of the people." Measures proposed by the initiative petition shall be designated "Proposed by Initiative petition." Charter amendments or ordinance or resolutions submitted by the Council without initiative petition shall be designated "Charter amendments, resolutions or ordinance, submitted to the voters by the Council."

Provided, However, that when charter amendments are to be submitted to the voters by resolution or ordinance of the Council as in this ordinance provided, the Council may in said resolution or ordinance provide for a ballot title for the measure to be submitted, and in the event of such provision being made by the Council the hereinabove provisions of this section relative to the filing of the measure with the city attorney, the preparation by said attorney of a ballot title therefor, and the appeal to the Council from the ballot title so prepared shall not apply.

SECTION 11. Where a special election is called either on petition for proposed ordinance or charter amendments by the initiative, or for submitting ordinances by the Referendum, or on charter amendments proposed by resolution or ordinance of the Council the Recorder shall publish such proposed ordinances, referendum measure or charter amendment with the ballot title and number in full in a newspaper published in the Town of Beaverton, to be designated by the Council in the resolution submitting such measure, once within the ten days immediately preceding the special election at which said proposed ordinance, referendum measure or charter amendment is to be voted on. A like rule as to publication shall be observed where proposed ordinances, referendum measure or charter amendments are to be submitted at the regular election.

SECTION 12. Legal voters of Beaverton are qualified to sign a petition for the referendum or for the initiative for any measure which he is entitled to vote upon. Any person signing any name other than his own to a petition, or knowingly signing his name more than once for the same measure at one election, who is not at the time of signing the same a legal voter of the Town of Beaverton, or any officer or other person violating any of the provisions of this ordinance, shall upon conviction thereof be punished by a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars, or by imprisonment in the city jail not exceeding six months, or by both fine and imprisonment in the discretion of the Town Recorder.

SECTION 13. The manner of voting upon measures submitted to the legal voters shall be the same as now is or may hereafter be, provided by law. No measure shall be adopted unless it shall receive the affirmative majority of the total number of legal votes cast on such measure and entitled to be counted thereon. If two or more laws on the same subject or containing provisions that are conflicting, shall be approved by the voters at the same election, the measure receiving the greatest number of affirmative votes shall be proclaimed to be the law adopted.

SECTION 14. The votes on measures, ordinances, resolutions and charter amendments shall be counted, canvassed and returned as votes for candidates are counted, canvassed and returned.

SECTION 15. The mayor shall within fifteen days from the time of election proclaim by publication thereof in full, once in a newspaper published in Beaverton, or by posting printed or typewritten copies of such proclamation in at least two conspicuous places in said municipality, the adoption of such measure and amendment which shall have received the affirmative majority of the total number of votes cast thereon, and upon such proclamation, such measures and amendments shall become in full force and effect, except in cases provided for in Section 13 with reference to two or more laws on the same subject or containing provisions that are conflicting. In cases of ordinances which have been passed by the Council and voted upon by referendum, proclamation of the result shall also be made and such ordinance shall continue in effect or cease to be in effect, according to such result from the time of such proclamation.

SECTION 16. Where referendum petitions shall be signed by the required number of legal voters against any ordinance passed by the Council, same shall be filed with the Recorder within thirty days after the passage and approval of the ordinance in question.

No ordinance shall take effect and become operative until thirty days after its passage by the Council and approval by the Mayor, or passage by a two-thirds vote over the veto of the Mayor, except emergency measures necessary for the immediate preservation of the peace, health or safety of the City; and no such emergency shall become immediately operative until same is passed by a two-thirds majority of all the members of the Council and also approved by the Mayor.

SECTION 17. All ordinances and parts of ordinances in conflict herewith be, and the same are repealed.

WHEREAS, it is necessary that certain proposed charter amendments affecting the health and safety of said Town because of inadequate fire protection, be submitted to the voters thereof at as early a date as possible, and in order so to do it is necessary to enact this ordinance; now, therefore,

AN EMERGENCY is hereby declared to exist and this ordinance shall immediately go into force and effect upon its adoption and approval.

Passed by the Council this 21st day of November, 1924, by the following votes:

Yeas: Fehlman, Alexander, Rossi, Abs, Woodruff.

Nays: None.

Submitted to the Mayor this 21st day of November, 1924.

Approved by the Mayor this 21st day of November, 1924.

Otto Erickson, Mayor.

Attest: George Thyng, Recorder.

Thereupon, the Mayor in open meeting duly signed and approved said ordinance.

Help Kidneys By Drinking More Water

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys and Help Neutralize Irritating Acids

Kidney and bladder irritations often result from acidity, says a noted authority. The kidneys help filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it may remain to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread; the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in voiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is often one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Begin drinking lots of soft water, also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast. Continue this for two or three days. This will help neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer are a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs, which then act normal again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by acid irritation. Jad Salts causes no bad effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink which may quickly relieve your bladder irritation. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.
