"Strikes me that I've done my duty in the matter."

"You have—admirably," she scoffed.

An easy-going man, he did not cross bridges till he came to them. His wife had persuaded him that Moya needed a talking to, but he was glad to be through with it.

"Hang the scamp, anyhow!" he laughed. "Maybe he'll break his neck on one of those outlaw broncbos he's so fond of riding. Maybe they'll put him safely away in prison, where there is neither marrying nor giving in marriage."

"It's even possible," she added with a murmur of half-embarrassed laughter, "that if he honored one with an offer—which it has never entered his head to do—one might regretfully decline with thanks."

"Amen! In the meantime God lead your grace by the hand, as old Bacon says." He brought his heels together, bowed over her fingers, and kissed them with exaggerated old-fashioned gallantry.

"Who's being romantic now?" she wanted to know gayly.

* * * * * * *

A voiced hailed Jack. Colter was hurrying up the street, plainly excited. Kilmeny moved a few steps to ward him.

Lady Jim took advantage of his absence to attack Moya from another angle. "My dear, I wish I could show you how much depends on a similarity of tastes, or habits, of standards. Matrimony means more than love. It means adjustment."

"I've thought of that too. But . . . when you love enough that doesn't help the adjustment?" asked the girl naively.

She had appealed to Farquhar. That gentleman came to her assistance. "It does."

"This isn't a matter to be decided merely by personal preference," urged the older woman. "There may be—consequences."

The color beat into the face of the young woman in a wave, but her eyes held steadily to those of Lady Farquhar.

"I . . . hope so."

"Bravo, Moya!" applauded her guardian, clapping his hands softly.

"Don't you think they—the consequences—deserve a better chance than you will give them?"

"I'll answer that, Di," spoke up Farquhar. "When a girl chooses for the father of her children a man who is clean and strong and virile, and on top of that her lover, she is giving them the best possible chance in life."

Moya's gratitude shone through the eyes that met those of her guardian.

Kilmeny swung back to the group he had left. "I've good news, friends. This is my lucky day. You remember that when I was rescued from the Golden Nugget my pockets were full of ore samples I had picked up as I was tunneling."

"Yes . . . picked them up while you were delirious, didn't you?" Farquhar replied.

"Must have, I reckon. Well, you know how miners are always having pieces of quartz assayed. Colter took these to the man we employ. He's just learned that it is high-grade stuff."

"You've made a strike?"

"Looks like it. Colter wasn't taking any chances, anyhow. He hiked right around to the owners of the mine and signed up a five-year lease in his name and mine."

Farquhar shook hands with him cordially. "Hope you make a fortune, Kilmeny."

Moya's chaperon, facing the inevitable, capitulated as gracefully as she could. After all, the girl might have done worse. The man she had chosen was well born, good looking, forceful and a leader in his community. If this fortunate strike was going to leave him well off, clearly she must make the best of him.

"You're a lucky man. I hope you know you don't deserve a girl like Moya," she told him as she shook hands.

"I know it, all right. Can you tell me who does?" he flung back, with a gay insouciant smile.

At that moment Ned Kilmeny stepped out upon the hotel porch. Lady Jim nodded toward him.

"Perhaps," his cousin conceded. "But in this little old world a man doesn't get what he deserves."

"I see he doesn't. Ned is a better man than you."

"Yes," he admitted.

Captain Kilmeny, coming down the porch steps, saw in a flash what had happened. He came forward with the even stride and impassive face that seldom deserted him. In two sentences Lady Farquhar told him the facts.

"You lucky dog," he said to his cousin as their hands gripped.

Jack had never liked him better than in this moment when he was giving up so cheerfully the thing he wanted most in the world.

"It isn't always the best man that wins, captain. I take off my hat to the better men who have tried and failed. Perhaps it may be a comfort to them to know that I'm the man that needs her most."

The captain turned to Moya. "So you've found that good hombre at ready," he said to her in a low voice.

"Yes, I think I have . . . I'm sure of it, Ned." Her eyes were full of tender sympathy for him. She wished she could tell him how much she admired his fine spirit.

"God keep you happy," he said wistfully.

Jack joined them and slipped Moya's arm into his. "Amen to that, captain. And since Jack Kilmeny has been appointed deputy on the job I'm going to see your wish comes true."

Moya looked at her lover and smiled.

OREGON NEWS ITEMS OF SPECIAL INTEREST

Brief Resume of Happenings of the Week Collected for Our Readers

The state board of control at its second meeting since reorganization on January 5 ousted W. M. Hendershott of Portland as commandant of the old soldiers' home at Roseburg. Judge G. W. Riddle of Roseburg, ex-commandant of the home, was reinstated and resumed his duties at the home Tuesday.

Public officials and representatives of seven Oregon, Washington and California lumber ports, meeting in Portland, proposed that legislatures of the three states address memorials to congress urging appropriation of $20,000,000 for the development of five lumber ports in Oregon, one in Washington and one in California.

As a result of the refusal of Dr. Thomas Ross of Portland to relinquish the office of state fish commissioner as demanded recently in an executive order, Governor Pierce has announced that he will cause quo warranto proceedings to be filed in the supreme court, requiring Dr. Ross to show cause why he should not be retired.

The widow of the late Harvey McDonald, who died recently at Walla Walla, Wash., will be compelled to pay an inheritance tax on the Oregon estate of her husband, according to a legal opinion handed down by the attorney-general. The opinion was sought by State Treasurer Kay. Mr. McDonald left Oregon property valued at $22,000.

The state highway commission has awarded the contract for grading and resurfacing on the John Day highway south of Condon, Gilliam county, to Campbell, Barr & Tobin of Colfax, Wash., on a bid of $97,519, the lowest of 19 bids. This contract calls for the grading of 5.5 miles of the highway and the resurfacing of eight miles of the same stretch.

The study of power farming from the standpoint of the farmer, taking particular notice of the selection, care, repair and adjustment of equipment on the farm, will be taken up in five one-week short courses in farm mechanics at Oregon Agricultural college. One course started Monday and the others are scheduled for January 26, February 2, 9 and 16.

There were three fatalities in Oregon due to industrial accidents during the week ending January 16, according to a report prepared by the state industrial accident commission. The victims were: Daniel F. Corkey, Glenwood, car loader; John Swanson, North Bend, piledriver, and Charles Vanvandt, Oakridge, laborer. A total of 497 accidents were reported.

Five boys, students at the Lincoln high school in Portland, were suspended by school authorities following an investigation that brought out the fact that they had supplied a small quantity of wine which was used at a school party given at a private home. Four high school girls who partook of the wine which the boys had obtained were censured by school authorities.

Representative Sinnott establishes a record in congress in forcing the passage of 23 bills of which he was sponsor. Three of them were Oregon bills. One deeded to the state of Oregon certain lands in Lake county for fish hatchery purposes. Another extended for three years the time for making final proof on desert land entries, and the third reserved certain rights for the government and entrymen in the settlement of national forests.

STATE LAW-MAKERS PROMPTLY ORGANIZE

Bills Offered to Abolish Offices of Market Agent and Prohibition Commissioner.

Much of the governor's message dealt with taxation problems. He advocated a repeal of the millage highway tax, enactment of legislation providing for a severance tax; suggested a tax upon certain forms of amusement enterprises, and urged that all moneys collected by state commissions be turned into the state treasury.

A plea for additional safeguarding of the irreducible school fund was made, as was the recommendation that the state industrial insurance plan be made compulsory in all hazardous occupations.

Need of a reformatory for younger prisoners now in the penitentiary was also stressed.

Income Tax Repeal Regretted.

The governor expressed regret at the repeal of the income tax law, and urged upon the legislators the wisdom of passing some other similar law to equalize the tax burden, recommending as its model the South Carolina law which provides that every taxpayer shall pay in state income levy one-third the sum he pays under the federal income tax.

As an example of how easily much-needed legislation can be passed, both houses took house bill 32 and made it a law within a very few minutes after it was introduced. The bill gave the necessary authority for the state to pay senators and representatives their per diem and mileage allowances, as well as meet other expenses of the session, the sum of $25,000 being voted.

A senate resolution calling for an investigation of State Prohibition Director Cleaver's department was promptly adopted by the house.

The committee that will investigate George L. Cleaver's administration of the state prohibition department will comprise ten members, five from the house and five from the senate.

The house committee will be Rushlight, Hurlburt, Lonergan, Swan and Fitzmaurice, and the committee is Garland, Eddy, Butler, Johnson and Hare.

The investigating committee will have wide powers. It may subpena witnesses and take their testimony under oath and may hold hearings wherever it desires, though most of them are expected to be in Salem. Early action will be taken so that the findings and recommendations of the committee may be filed with the legislature well ahead of the final week.

Ratification of the child labor amendment to the federal constitution is going to meet with strong opposition.

Friends of the amendment took a poll of the house and stopped with 33 emphatic negatives registered against it, two more than enough to defeat ratification. In the senate the positive negatives sentiment was not registered so clearly, although there were enough openly hostile votes to bring the amendment within one or two votes of defeat.

Arrangements have been made for a joint session of the senate judiciary committee and the house committee on resolutions on the evening of January 28, for a public hearing on the bill ratifying the child labor amendment to the United States constitution.

Indications are that the event will attract to the state house one of the largest assemblages during the present legislative session.

Something should be done to remedy abuses in the pardoning power, permitted by the present law, in the opinion of a large number of members of the legislature.

Abolish Budget Commission.

Abolishment of the state budget commission as now constituted and transference of the duties of that department to the state board of control with a full time executive secretary is recommended by the budget commission in its report to the state legislature.

The budget commission believes that the present budget law is inadequate to meet the needs of the state

VALUABLE HOUSEHOLD RECIPES AND SUGGESTIONS

Doughnuts—3 tablespoons of shortening, two-thirds cup of sugar, one egg, two-thirds cup milk, one teaspoon nutmeg, 1 teaspoon salt, three cups flour, four teaspoons baking powder. Cream shortening; add sugar and well beaten egg; stir in the milk; add nutmeg, salt, flour and baking powder which have been sifted together, and enough additional flour to make dough stiff enough to roll. Roll out on floured board to make one-half inch thick; cut out. Fry in deep fat hot enough to brown a piece of bread in 60 seconds. Drain on unglazed paper, and sprinkle with powdered sugar.

Biscuits—Two cups flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt, two tablespoons shortening, three-fifths cup milk. Sift together flour, baking powder and salt, add the shortening and rub in very lightly; add milk slowly; then roll or pat on floured board to about one inch in thickness (handle as little as possible); cut with biscuit cutter. Bake in hot oven 15 to 20 minutes.

Muffins—Two cups flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, one tablespoon sugar, one-half teaspoon salt, one sup milk; two eggs, one tablespoon shortening; mix well. Grease muffin tins and put two tablespoons of batter into each. Bake in hot oven 20 to 25 minutes.

Everlasting Bread or Denver Biscuit—One quart milk, one cup smooth, mashed potato, one cup sugar, one cup lard or other shortening, one yeast cake, that has been softened in one-fourth cup lukewarm water, two teaspoons baking powder, flour to make a rather stiff dough. Mix in the usual way for bread and knead thoroughly. Keep in a cool place. When needed for biscuits you cut off a suitable portion, shape into rolls and let rise in a warm place one hour or until double in bulk. Brush with milk or beaten egg and milk and bake in a rather quick oven.

Parker House Roll—Sift very thoroughly, about four times, a quart of flour, three heaping teaspoonfuls baking powder and a teaspoonful each of salt and sugar. Rub into this a tablespoonful of very hard butter. Beat an egg very light and mix with two cupfuls cold, sweet milk. Use this to mix the dough with. Roll out one-half inch thick, and cut into rounds. Then spread softened butter over each and fold over one half and place in pans, not touching each other. Rub them with sweet milk and bake until brown in a hot oven.

Drop Biscuits—Two cups of flour, five teaspoons of baking powder, one-half cup water, 3 tablespoons lard, one-half cup condensed milk, one-half teaspoonful of salt. Mix and sift dry ingredients; work in the lard. Add milk and water. Drop by spoonfuls on a buttered pan, brush over with a little condensed milk and an equal part of water. Bake in a hot oven for ten minutes.

Tea Biscuits—Two cups flour, three teaspoons baking powder, two tablespoons shortening, 1-3 cup water, three-fourths teaspoon salt, one tablespoon of sugar, one egg. Sift flour, baking powder, salt and sugar together into a bowl; add well beaten egg and melted shortening to water; add to dry ingredients to make soft dough; roll out on floured board to about one-half inch thick; cut with biscuit cutter and bake in moderate oven about 25 minutes.

Drink Water to Help Wash Out Kidney Poison

If Your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers You, Begin Taking Salts

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which helps to remove the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of good water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they are no longer a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; can not injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, which everyone should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this; also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

SEVENTY ONE VOLUMES ADDED TO LIBRARY

The gift of seventy-one books to the University of Oregon library has been announced.

Dr. G. W. Overmeyer of Chehalis, Wn., is the donor of nineteen volumes of history and travel; Mrs. James A. Miller of Eugene, fifty volumes of fiction, history, biography, and economics; and W. K. Newell of Eugene, two volumes of "The Picturesque World."

LADIES! DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

Use Grandma's Sage Tea and Sulphur Recipe and Nobody Will Know

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She used it to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy and attractive. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is mussy and out-of-date. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get this famous old preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

Well-known druggists say it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, it becomes beautifully dark and glossy.
