VALUABLE HOUSEHOLD RECIPES AND SUGGESTIONS

Braised Steak—Wipe a thick slice of round steak, sprinkle with salt and pepper, dredge with flour and brown in a little beef or bacon drippings with one teaspoon finely minced onion, and one allspice berry. When evenly browned, drain off some of the fat, add two cups brown stock or water, one cup strained tomatoes, two small onions, one carrot, one sliced turnip, and a small sprig of parsley. Cover and cook gently for about three hours. Remove meat from the sauce, strain sauce, thicken with flour or cornstarch, and serve with the meat.

Baked Salmon Loaf—One pt. of cooked salmon, free from bone and shredded fine, one cupful of bread crumbs, one egg, one tablespoonful of butter, one-half teaspoon salt. Mix all together. Take two hard-boiled eggs, fold them in center of loaf, and bake for a half-hour in a moderate oven. This is very nice sliced cold for lunch, or can be eaten hot with white cream sauce made as follows: One tablespoonful of butter, one teaspoonful of flour, one cupful of milk. Let come to a boil, and season with salt and pepper.

Steel Tires Don't Puncture

Silly statement—but it carries a moral. It's disconcerting—to say the least—to find a tire flat on the family bus.

It can't happen with the Red Electrics. They're always ready to go—on time, safe, dependable. Economical, too.

You're lucky to be living along their route. Steel tires don't puncture.
