I. R. Metzler, principal, begins his third year. He is boys' coach and has charge of the commercial department.

E. G. Webb, the manual training and mathematics instructor, begins his third year.

Beth Metzler, French, and Latin teacher, begins her 4th year.

Miss Geneva B. Kinney has charge of the domestic science and art department. This is her second year.

Miss Gertrude Lanning, girls athletic coach, teaches English and science. This is her second year.

Probably the oldest teacher in time of service, though of this we are not sure, is Miss Merle Davies, principal of the grade school, and who teaches the eighth grade.

Elizabeth Myers returns for her second year with the 3rd grade.

Edna McCord, second grade teacher, also returns, as do Lena Goddard, fourth grade, Reba Martin, 7th grade, and Hattie Genoud of the Primary Department.

Jeanette Smith-Patrick of Newburg, sixth grade, Frances Bixby of Portland, Primary Department, and Mrs. M. W. Dinwiddie, fifth grade, are new teachers who will replace Mrs. Suttle, Mrs. Ferrey, and Mrs. Reynolds.

A LA VALENTINE

The rose is red,
The violet blue;
This little bill
Is overdue.
Please pay it now—
Don't wait till when
The rose and violet
Bloom again.
For if you do
Delay it thus,
No violet
Will bloom for us;
Unless you pay,
The rose will rest
Upon our fair
And manly chest.
The birds will sing,
But what of that?
We shall not hear them
Where we're at.
So come across;
We need the dough—
Not in the spring,
But now, you know.
The rose is red,
The violet blue;
Do we need cash?
I'll say we do!
—Exchange.

LIVESTOCK EXPOSITION HAS SPECIAL FEATURES

The premium list of the fifteenth annual Pacific International Livestock Exposition, which will be held in Portland October 31 to November 7, inclusive, has just been received at this office. It carries a total premium from all sources of nearly $100,000.

There will be two special features this year in connection with the show: one the campaign to show "Truth in Meat" and the other one a dairy exhibition which shall feature cow testing work. The "Truth in Meat" campaign will bring before the people of the country very clearly indeed the importance of knowing meat, both the prime, medium, and common, the idea being that the farmer shall receive a better price for his higher grade meat whereas the cheaper type will sell for less money. The consumer will receive the benefit of this proposition. In the dairy cow testing work, a string of average farmer cows will be seen giving about 4000 pounds of milk a year; another string, of purebreds will probably give an average of say, 8,000 to 12,000 pounds, a very small average for a good string of well bred cattle. The cattle will all be picked from the various five breeds so that people can have a good opportunity to see results from a good average herd of pure breeds.

Boys and Girls Club Work is considered one of the leading activities of the Exposition and will be more highly emphasized than ever this year.

TOO MANY NON-PRODUCERS

According to criticisms of modern American education as voiced by the annual report of the Carnegie foundation, there has been a tendency "to draw school pupils away from the productive work of the highly skilled and exact trades, into non-productive positions." It favors instead "discipline of mind" and "accuracy of knowledge."

The idea has gotten a deep hold, that more money can be made by selling something that other people have produced, rather than by taking hold and producing something oneself.

Of course selling is an absolutely necessary part of modern industry. If commodities can not be sold efficiently, the cost of distribution will mount up high. Yet if more people are trying to become store clerks and office workers and salesmen than the country has need for, wages will be forced down in these lines, while the people who take hold and get their hands dirty in real production will stand a better chance.

THE GREAT CIVILIZER

Farm population was placed by census authority 31,134,000 January 1, compared with 31,316,000 a year earlier. The Atlantic coast states showed net increases in farm population, other sections leading in decline.

Young and old leave the farms because they think city life is more attractive, but the same agency which has given attractions to the city is now turning its energy toward the farm. Electricity will revolutionize farm life just as it has the city life.

Light is the great civilizer. When a farmer's wife can press a button and flood her house with light, wash her dishes, pump and heat the water, run the churn, sewing machine, washing machine, ironing machine and vacuum cleaner, make ice in the refrigerator, curl her hair, and do innumerable other things with electricity, how much more attractive will be the farm homes.

When the farmer can press a button and light his barn, milk his cows, chop food for the cattle, saw wood, thresh grain, and do scores of other things which are now downright drudgery, farm life will become more attractive for him and the boys.

Electric road lights will begin to appear at crossroad corners. The telephone and the radio will give the same universal communication facilities that are enjoyed in the city. Moving picture houses will gradually appear in advantageous locations which can be reached from a five or ten mile radius by automobile.

Thus, as electricity takes light to the farm, it will emphasize the advantages of farm life over crowded city life and draw the people from the thickly populated districts back to the rural districts.

ATTEMPT ROBBERY
AT STORE

One night last week someone broke into the rear room of the Halsten & Son hardware store, breaking open a door. They left a few of their tools, and must have been scared away, as they did not get into the main part of the store.

It is thought that they got away with a small quantity of dry paints and maybe a little oil, but not very much of value was taken.

THE BROADER VIEW

People in former years used to work mostly for their own personal welfare, without caring much for community causes, and a spirit of jealousy and antagonism was the natural result. It held back business progress, since the towns were so divided by personal differences that co-operation was difficult.

People who live lives just of selfish grasping do not get the higher satisfactions. They may get a certain amount of money, though probably not so much as if they were generous spirited. There is a law of life, that you must give if you want to get.

The time that people put in to work for community causes brings a reward of gratitude from people who have been benefited and helped by community gains. It gives people greater power and makes them more practical as organizers and executives. The time that is spent for the benefit of the community brings rewards, not dreamed of when it was given.

AN APPRECIATION

As we decided to leave so suddenly time will not permit of our meeting all our old friends and bidding them a personal goodbye, so we are taking this opportunity of extending to all a personal greeting and thanking you for your past patronage.

Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Johnstone.

The Pathfinder declares that Mrs. Nora Gavaghan of Washington lost a purse containing $15 and when she found it a few hours later it had nearly $100 in it. Now you tell one.

New Toll Road May Be Built

Distance From Portland To
Tillamook 36 Miles

At a meeting of the county courts of Tillamook and Washington Counties convened in special session Monday, August 31, the draft of a franchise and contract between E. M. Chandler and A. G. Beals, parties of the first part, and Washington and Tillamook Counties, parties of the second part, whereby the first above mentioned are to construct a toll road from Agards mill to a point five miles east of Tillamook city.

This contract and franchise must be approved by the State Highway Commission before it can go into effect, and at present the State Highway Commission is noncommittal.

A tentative toll schedule of $1.00 for automobiles plus ten cents per passenger has been approved by the two county courts but the rates can be controlled by the State Public Service Commission.

The plan is for an 18-foot concrete pavement with grades fully up to the state highway standards. It is estimated that the road will cost three million dollars. It is to be thirty-eight miles in length, and will be thirty-six miles shorter than the present highway between Portland and Tillamook.

In the event the franchise and contract do not meet the approval of the State Highway Commission the county courts jointly requested them to draft a franchise and contract that will be acceptable to the commission and to submit it to the county courts for consideration.

Under the law enacted in 1925 the Highway Commission must approve any franchise for a toll road before the franchise can be granted. For some time Messrs. Chandler and Beals have been negotiating for the franchise and have now agreed to practically every stipulation and condition made by the members of the county courts.

The life of the franchise is 25 years with the privilege of renewal on conditions mutually satisfactory to both parties, or the public may purchase the road for not to exceed the cost of building. One clause of the contract provides that the franchise holders have only one year in which to complete financing the proposition and before the expiration of the year must deposit $100,000 in bonds to guarantee the installation of the road.

THE THREE FORMS OF ADVANCEMENT

In the effort for progress, different communities make gains along three lines: Business, educational, and spiritual. Frequently they fail to keep these gains proportionate. A good many cities have gone ahead finely in a business way, but their educational facilities are not as good as they ought to have, and their churches and other spiritual and moral agencies are not well supported.

Sooner or later such a community must suffer, for it will be subject to a subtle form of decay unless it maintains progress along all these lines. If people do not gain in intelligence and character as fast as they gain in money, eventually their material prosperity will decline.
