Tunnel Committee to Show Pictures

Scholls, Kenton, Huber, Reedville and Other Cities Selected as Places to Show Pictures

An intensive campaign to inform property owners in Oregon Tunnel District No. 1 of the benefits to other communities, which have bored vehicular tunnels through hill barriers similar to Council Crest, will open Friday evening, September 18 at Kinton Grange Hall. A joint meeting of the Kinton and Granger school districts will be held then. The members of the Tualatin Valley Tunnel Committee will be present and present about fifty views of tunnels and the resultant development in other cities and their vicinities and in addition a motion picture will be given free.

This meeting will be followed by another at Jacktown school Tuesday evening, Sept. 22 and one for the Cooper Mountain, Aloha, and Huber districts at the Huber clubhouse Friday evening, September 25. Other meetings in other districts will be held before the election on October 20.

RASPBERRY RUST NOT DESTRUCTIVE

Western raspberry rust is not serious enough in Oregon to justify grubbing the bushes up, as viewed by Dr. S. M. Zeller, plant pathologist at the O. A. C. experiment station. No adequate control measures are known.

The rust appears in early summer as small yellow spots on the upper and under surfaces of the leaves. The spots are spore masses produced by the fungus that lives in the leaf tissues, and are sometimes so numerous as to cover the leaves with yellow powder. The spore masses on leaves and cane cankers become black in the late season.

In its worst form the rust devitalizes the plants, but not so seriously as to stunt the plants unaided by other causes such as poor soil and degeneration diseases. Infection of new canes near the ground is the most serious phase of the disease in Oregon plantings. It causes cankers which eat into the cane, causing brittleness. Such canes are hard to trellis and not infrequently break off in removal of the old canes.

The western raspberry rust is not to be confused with the orange rust, prevalent in the east but seldom found in the west, which renders the plant worthless. This form of rust completely covers the under side of the leaf with an orange powder. This rust is perennial in infected plants, lying dormant in winter and breaking out again in the spring. Because of this the plants so infected should be dug out and burned, but this radical treatment is not recommended with the western rust.

Taking out the fruiting canes as soon as the crop is picked will greatly reduce the source of infection. The old canes are cut as near the ground as possible. Where practical, the old leaves are taken out and destroyed. Otherwise, they are plowed under before the new leaves come out in the spring.

CHURCH OF CHRIST

Sunday, September 20th, 1925
10 A. M. Bible School. Lesson, "Paul Writes to the Thessalonians."

11 A. M. Worship. Communion. Sermon, "The Test of Greatness."

September 13th, we had a fine service, with splendid interest and increased attendance. Come and help us make September 20th an even better day. If you don't believe you will like the Bible School, come and give it a trial.

Shoes filling standard requirements will be furnished all contestants. However, any contestant may use his own shoes if he so desires, providing they are standard shoes. Each game shall be 21 points. There will be no team pitching. Anyone who desires may register for this event.

UNIVERSITY WORK TO START IN PORTLAND

The Portland Center of the University of Oregon will open Monday, September 28th. The classes will meet in Lincoln high school and the Central library.

The schedule of courses is wide and varied. More than one hundred classes will be offered in the following subjects: English and literature, short story writing, journalism, magazine writing, German, Latin, Greek, health education, English and European history, mathematics, philosophy, psychology, public speaking, Italian, French, Spanish, sociology, art, music, elementary and advanced accounting, advertising, business law, banking, education, biology, physiology, public health, and physical education.

Last fall term, 1684 students registered for the different courses, and from present indications, the enrollment will be larger this year. The University office, at 651 Court-house, will accept registration for the classes and answer any questions concerning the work.

FOOTBALL TEAM OUT FOR PRACTICE

Coach Metzler of the High School issued a call for practice for the football team Wednesday afternoon. Eighteen of the boys showed up for practice, three of whom were lettermen last year.

Practice is going on and the team is being put into condition and it is expected Beaverton will put out the best team it has been able to put in the field.

What a lot of Beaverton children can't understand is how their parents have ever managed to live so long knowing as little as they do.

IT'S AN EASY PATH TOWARD DISHONESTY

In spite of all the claims that one hears alleging dishonesty in business and political life, it is not probable that any considerable proportion of people set out deliberately to defraud others or the public. But the downward path that leads to a dishonest attitude is a very easy one. People are insensibly led into it by sophistical philosophy.

There are many people who would sincerely claim to be honest, yet who have a facile way of making themselves believe that which they want to believe.

Take the case of a man who officiates as a buyer for some business organization or public department. The salesman for some concern may approach him with a subtle offer of graft. He may not offer the buyer any money, but just throw out hints that if his goods can be purchased, the buyer will be given certain opportunities to make money in a legitimate way. Many people, if offered such a proposition, would not at once be repelled by it. They would look at it as a natural reciprocity of favors, and argue that it did not hurt anyone.

Their minds would begin to work to demonstrate reasons why they should buy that particular line of goods. The arguments in favor of taking them would look strong, and those in opposition would look weak. Before long, they would have persuaded themselves that it was for the interest of their employer or the public to accept that line of stuff. They would make such deals as this and receive the benefits intimated to them, and yet would deny that they were not honest men.

There are too many people who can make themselves believe just what they want to believe. What is needed is sensitiveness of conscience, a feeling of keen pride in one's honor, that would decline to consider any proposition that had any suspicion of unfair influence about it.

LOCAL PEOPLE ATTEND LECTURE AT WOODBURN

Last Sunday twenty-four of the members of the local Church of Christ motored to Woodburn to hear Teddy Leavitt, the evangelist who spent some time in Beaverton recently.

They went by way of Newburg and took Teddy's father and mother along.

They waited until the music of "Let Them Come In" was started, then they marched into the tent singing. Mr. Leavitt was so surprised to see them that he forgot everything else and came down to shake hands.

Mr. and Mrs. Neely, who were here with Mr. Leavitt, were also present at the meeting. Everyone had a very enjoyable time.

Beaverton Schools Open Monday

Enrollment in High School Shows Increase; Parochial School has Twenty-six in Attendance

School started Monday with a slightly decreased attendance in the public school. Last year there were about two hundred and fifty the first day while this year only two hundred and one enrolled in the grades.

Some of this decrease in attendance is probably due to the opening of the parochial school in the St. Cecilia church. There they have twenty-six enrolled, and a few more are attending the school at St. Mary's Institute. The first to the fifth grades only are taught at the parochial school here. This, Father O'Neil said, was due to the scarcity of teachers and the additional work imposed on the Sisters of St. Mary's by the new St. Mary's Home for boys.

Sister Agnes of St. Mary's is teaching at the St. Cecilia's School here.

The high school shows a slight increase over last year. The attendance last year was about 160 and at present about 180 are enrolled in the high school.

One of the school busses is functioning from Erickson's Garage, with Lee Carr as the driver. It delivered twenty-four students Wednesday morning, and Dr. Mason, chairman of the School Board, directed that about thirty will be brought in with the bus. The other bus has not arrived as yet and two or three touring cars are being pressed into service until such a time as the regular vehicle will be on the job. The heavy loads that all the conveyances are carrying indicate that it will be advisable for the Board to purchase a third school bus in order to take care of the demands for transportation.

All the teachers reported for duty Monday morning except Jeanette Smith-Patriek, who was assigned with the sixth grade, and who was ill. Her place was supplied by Mrs. Ferrey.

TOO BAD!

"How's yo' feelin's now, Sam?"

"Liza, I've a sick man. Do doctor says I got berkolosis."

"Dat's afight, Sam. We'll take keer of yo' and get rid of dat berkolosis."

The following day Sam was more dejected than ever.

"Tain't no use, Lize. I ain't never gwine ter get well. Do doctor say dis mawning I got two berkolosises."

SNAPPY

This is from an eastern small town daily: "To whom it may concern: My wife, Nina Johnson, having left my bed and board, I will not pay any bills contracted by her, Charles Johnson."

And here is Mrs. Johnson's snappy comeback the next day: "My husband, Charles Johnson, never paid my debts, nor his own, so why advertise me? Nina Johnson."

FOOLED HIM

She—According to Pliny, kissing is an infallible cure for colds.

He—I'd like to try the old boy's recipe.

She—It is: "Three kisses on the mouth of a mule."

YOU DON'T SAY SO!

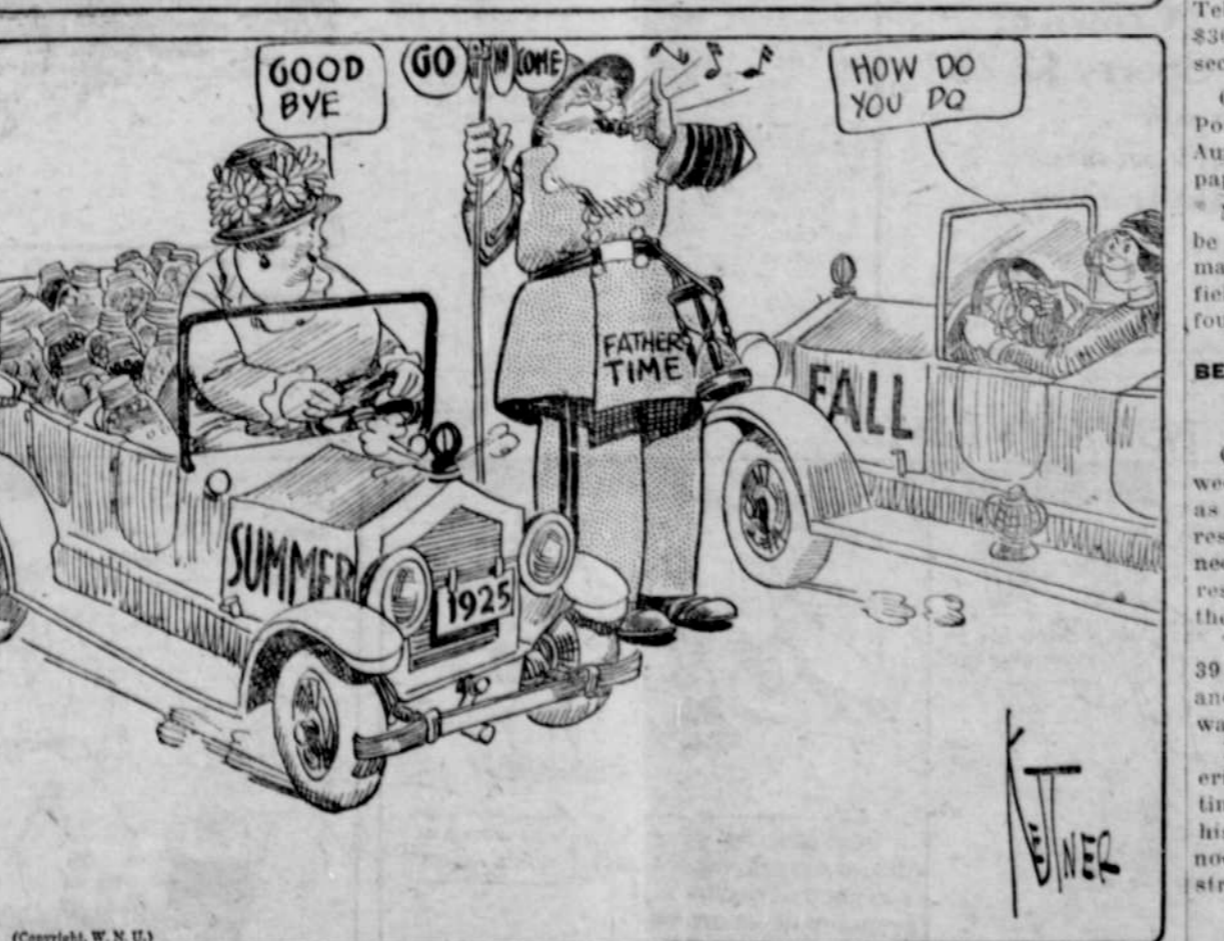

He—Ah—her gown—it was wonderful—a wonderful—ah, a wonderful—er—er—

Other he—Wonderful occasion?

He—No—Revelation.

Jake Stroud left on Sunday morning for a sanitarium. He has been ailing for some time and feels that he must give up his work with the Beaverton Transfer Company and devote his time to regaining his health.
