Christmas Spirit Abroad in Town

Different Stores and Places of Business in Beaverton Dressed up for Yuletide Holidays

The spirit of Christmas is abroad in the land. You can see plenty of evidence everywhere of the truth of this statement. Beaverton is taking on quite a considerable holiday attire, although probably not so much as could be done if there was concerted effort instead of individuals each working for himself.

The Beaverton Market and Grocery is displaying a nice little Christmas Tree.

The Telephone Office has a bunch of holly in the window. Kainberger's Confectionery's windows have been decorated for some time. Their display includes Christmas bells and a wreath of holly.

Halsten's Hardware Store is displaying beautiful dishes and other appropriate gifts for the season.

The windows of Dean's Drug Store are changing from day to day, but one of the things featured in their display are the Artistic boxes of candy.

The Bank has very pretty Christmas decorations, gift boxes containing savings banks being displayed.

Stipe's Garage has fine decorations, including a tree.

Mike's Shoe Shop is displaying appropriate gifts in the line of slippers and other materials. Thyn's always has appropriate decorations for the season, as do the Whitehall and the Beaver Inn.

The Jewelry Store, the Meat Markets, and the Apple House are all prettily decorated.

The Summers Shop has a pretty little Christmas tree.

Christmas cards and suitable gifts are displayed at the Beaverton Pharmacy.

The Theatre is gaily decorated.

The windows receiving probably the greatest amount of study and containing really the things most representative of the business, are those in front of Sprague's, Everybody's Store which we find difficult to describe, they can be best appreciated by being seen.

COUNTY AGENT NEWS

Four thousand, five hundred and twenty-six callers visited the county agent during the past twelve months. These callers were principally interested in subjects as listed hereafter: horticulture, 289; dairy, 221; rodent control, 282; soils and fertilizers, 243; insect pests and plant diseases, 238; alfalfa, 222; potatoes, 204; cereals and other crops, 116; blasting powder, 99; poultry, 95; miscellaneous topics, 876.

The county agent made 469 farm visits. Both the farm visits and office calls are the largest in the history of county agent work in Washington County.

The Student Body was very successful in their vaudeville. The net returns were approximately $160. We had a good crowd both nights and reports are that the program was enjoyed by all who attended.

Our Annual sale is coming right along. We have only 27 more to sell. If these are not sold by Friday at one o'clock the Annual project will not go through. We have never yet let anything go unfinished, and we do not expect to let this fall through.

We are now planning for a Christmas program. The classes drew lots to see what part they should take in the entertainment. The Freshmen are to supply the "eats," the Sophomores are to get the tree, the Juniors furnish the program and Santa Claus, and the Seniors are to decorate the tree.

LOCAL HOOP SEASON STARTS

(By George Hemming)
Beaverton will play its first scheduled game Friday night when it clashes with the fast Parkrose quintet.

Last year Parkrose was victorious in their annual battle. This year Beaverton is out to wipe out that defeat, and will fight hard for a victory.

At the eleventh hour it was learned that Sprague, one of Metzler's main springs, will be unable to play, due to a severe case of boils. His loss will be heavily felt as at this time a successor has not been found.

Although Coach Metzler has not announced a definite line-up, it is rumored that the following line-up will start: Harrison and L. Gray, forwards; Johnson, center; Jones and Tignard, guards. If this team does not cut the mustard, he has another complete line-up consisting of M. Gray and Briggs, forwards; Bous, center, and Barry and Livermore, guards, which he can send in. The schedule for the coming season has been announced.

Parkrose at Beaverton, Dec. 18.

Alumni at Beaverton, Dec. 30.

Hillsboro at Hillsboro, Jan. 8.

Gresham at Beaverton, Jan. 15.

TWO NEW MEN IN PERSONNEL OF THEATRE

The Beaver Amusement Company is fortunate in getting Mr. Ed Hutchison from Los Angeles, California, to take an interest in the Beaver Theatre. Donald D. Duncan, a projectionist from Seattle, Washington, is also a new addition to the personnel of the organization.

Besides his theatrical experience, Mr. Hutchison has played in various pictures in Universal City. Several of the late Universal pictures show him in action.

Mr. Hutchison endeavors to bring in high-class, clean-cut, wholesome pictures, and for entertainment he will try to bring Keith Vaudeville to Beaverton. Mr. Hutchison can see great possibilities for Beaverton as being one of the coming cities of Oregon, as the Tualatin Valley has far greater prospects than any California valley he has seen. "What it needs," he said, is the city folk of Beaverton co-operating with the farmers.

Mr. Duncan brings with him many ideas which have been used in many of the biggest Seattle Theatres.

Messrs. Hutchison and Melnis as managers of the theatre, are arranging a big program to co-operate with the local Chamber of Commerce to bring the farmers and city folk together so that they might discuss ideas to make a far bigger and greater valley town of Beaverton.

Benefit Show For Beaverton Library

"The Clash of the Wolves" With
Rin-Tin-Tin Coming to Beaverton Dec. 22 and 23

Rin-Tin-Tin in "The Clash of the Wolves" will be the attraction at the Beaver Theatre December 22 and 23.

Mr. Melnis secured the picture especially for this occasion. It is one of the greatest pictures ever shown in Beaverton.

You will be mystified by the wonderful dog acting. You will be entranced by the beautiful love interest.

You will be thrilled by the intense dramatic episodes.

This picture is soon to be shown in one of Portland's leading theatres. Come and see it in Beaverton. They'll charge you more in Portland. The admission is 25 cents here. Come out and help YOUR library.

A Larry Semon Comedy will also be shown.

CONGREGATIONALISTS DEDICATE CHURCH

The day of dedication of their new building, toward which the Congregationalists have so long been planning, was successfully consummated last Sunday when three big services were held.

The main feature of the morning service was the sermon delivered by the Rev. W. C. Kantner, late of the First Congregational Church of Salem, Oregon. Dr. Kantner is probably the ablest exponent of the old style of platform oratory now preaching in the Northwest, and the local church counted itself fortunate in being able to secure him for the morning sermon. At this service the Rev. and Mrs. G. N. Taylor and Mrs. L. R. Dean united with the church.

In the afternoon practically the entire town was present to assist in the act of dedication; while Congregationalists and friends came from the several churches in Portland, Hillsboro, and Forest Grove. Dr. J. E. Dobbis, president of Pacific University, gave an address on the obligation of the individual to his church which was highly appreciated. Dr. J. J. Staub, who was scheduled to deliver the sermon of the afternoon, omitted the greater part of it, to the disappointment of the congregation. Others taking part in the afternoon service were Dr. H. L. Bates of Pacific University, Dr. C. H. Harrison, state superintendent of the Congregational work, and the Rev. Geo. N. Taylor, pastor of the Bethel Church.

The evening was given over to a union service of all the churches of the town, and the Methodist and Christian congregations were both well represented in the audience. The pastors of these churches were both on the program and extended in a happy strain their congratulations for the achievement of their sister church. Dr. Bates presented greetings from the West Willamette Congregational Association of which the Bethel Church is a part; and Dr. Harrison gave the greetings from the state association.

The church was beautifully decorated for the event and much appreciation of the excellent building was heard on all sides. The Bethel Choir and Orchestra played an important part in the services, the choir singing at all three of the meetings and the orchestra playing in the evening.

Future events scheduled at the Bethel Church include the Christmas cantata, "Adoration," by Nevin, this coming Sunday evening at 7:30, with Mrs. Welb, Mrs. Davis, Mr. Hansen and Mr. Cary singing the solo parts. Also on the next Thursday evening, which will be the night before Christmas, the Sunday School will give its annual Christmas program in the church school auditorium.

L. B. Whiteley has charge of the Second Hand store in the absence of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Bridges.
