Little Drops of Sweat One of Baseball's Big Problems

BABE RUTH

ROGERS HORNSBY

OVER THE FENCE

CHICAGO—Baseball suffers from sweat. Little drops of perspiration are one of the national pastime's biggest problems.

If there were no such thing as sweat, Babe Ruth probably would long ago have broken his world's record of fifty-nine home runs in 1921, and Ty Cobb and Rogers Hornsby would bat every year above their high average of .400. Sweat is the most important thing in the daily box scores and the only thing in the game that does not show.

—Exposition, said O. D. Reed.

head chemist of the Odonoro Company of Cincinnati, "reduces the efficiency of baseball players and lowers batting averages. Babe Ruth many a time would have knocked the ball out of the lot if his hands had not been slippery from sweat or a drop of perspiration trickling from his forehead had not interfered with his batting eye. Sweat has caused innumerable batmen like Cobb and Hornsby to fan the air who, if their hands had been dry, would have delivered a single or a two-bagger."

—Scientific estimates, recently developed, would do away with this. They have put perspiration under the individual player's control. By applying them to the hands and forehead twice a week, the sweat glands are closed and their excretions de-toured to other parts of the body for elimination.

"The old method of drying moist hands was for the batsman to swish them in the dirt and rub the grime on the handle of his bat before playing ball. The elimination of this habit would undoubtedly speed up the game."

IT SEEMS TO ME

That friendship may be eternal, as a great writer once remarked, but it isn't wise to use the average friend too much if you want him to last.

That when Cupid hits the mark, he generally Mrs. it.

The difference between a cow chewing her cud and a flapper chewing her gum is that a cow always looks as if she were thinking.

That it was indeed great luck which gave girls short skirts this year. Even at that, it is reported that in some sections the floods almost touched the hems of their skirts. Beside, what could an old-fashioned girl have done in the Florida hurricane, we rise to ask.

That some people have so much business they have no time to waste in minding their own business.

That it is a beautiful sight to see a young lady growing into womanhood. The present styles permit you to see so much of them grow.

ALOHA GIRL MARRIED TO HARNEY COUNTY MAN

Aloha, June 22, (Special)—A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Neal in Aloha Sunday morning, June 19, at 9:30, when their daughter, Miss Mary Neal, became the bride of Mr. Frank Kurey, a young sheepman of Andrews, Harney county, in the presence of a few relatives and intimate friends. The service was read by Dr. Walter Henry Nugent, of the Central Presbyterian church, of Portland. The house was beautifully decorated with flowers of many varieties. The bride carried a beautiful bouquet of white sweet peas and bride roses. Miss Neal has been teaching for a number of years in the high school at Enterprise, Oregon, but has spent her vacations with her parents in Aloha since they have been living here.
