OLD WOMAN

By
Verne Bright

I met an old woman
At Alden-Wier
Who shook with the cold
Of an awful fear.

And she said, "Three likely
Sons were mine
To follow the cattle
And tend the swine;

"But the sea, the sea,
It called my boys,
With its blue wild eyes
And its luring voice."

"Three boys I had,
Each a likely son,
Three lovely boys
Who now have none!"

Hollywood Men To Take Serial Here

J. C. "Doc" Cook and Harry Moody In Beaverton On Tuesday Evening

J. C. "Doc" Cook of Hollywood arrived Tuesday for a short stay in this vicinity. He was formerly connected with the picture studio here but more recently has been producing pictures in Hollywood.

He is accompanied by his family, who will live at the Ritz Hotel at Portland. Doc, along with Harry Moody, expects to produce a serial here. They are going to take the locations here, but the interiors will be shot at Hollywood.

Doc says that he has done almost everything in pictures from properly man to director and from scenario writer to cameraman but this time he will do the "grease paint" and get out in front of the camera. Their serial will be of ten chapters and will deal with the lumberwoods of the Pacific Northwest. There will be train wrecks, auto running over cliffs and almost every thrill imaginable.

BAD CHECK MAN PAYS VISIT TO BEAVERTON

Last Friday a typical bad check passer visited Beaverton and one business man, Mike Pignoni, got stung to the tune of $22.50. The check was drawn in favor of J. E. Mason by an alleged Peterson. Mike put the check through the bank for payment almost immediately after receiving it and by Thursday morning the check was taken back from Oregon City marked "No Account."

Mike has turned the paper over to the Sheriff, who will try to locate the culprit but it is rather a long chance that he can be found.

RETURNING BEACH PARTY GETS IN AUTO SMASH-UP

While returning from Seaside Monday evening, the car driven by Mike Pignoni ran in to and overturned a Chevrolet sedan about two miles the other side of St. Helens. The Chevrolet had stopped beside the road and was apparently going to resume its journey in the same direction that Mike was traveling. On Mike's approach, the sedan drew into the road but as Mike swung out to the left to pass, the other car swung across the pavement. Mike continued to swing to the left and did not see the private road the Chevrolet was heading for and hit the car amidships.

CANYON ROAD CLOSED BETWEEN SYLVAN AND CITY

Work on the Canyon road began in earnest this week and the lower end is closed to traffic below Sylvan. Cars are directed there to take either the Barnes road to the north or to go to the Terrillier highway by way of Council Crest. This is going to inconvenience traffic to a certain extent but the new road will be a very great improvement.

F. M. Garmire and wife, Fred Garmire, wife and two children, of Seattle, were guests for several days at the H. P. Shannon residence on south Watson street.

Councilman A. E. Wilson, with four of his children, Homer, Alden, Lebert and Reynold, motored to Wahlam Lake Sunday, returning Monday.

CASEY WINS PLACE IN HALL OF FAME

Babe Ruth, Tris Speaker, Ty Cobb, John McGraw, Zack Wheat, Frank Frisch, Rogers Hornsby, Walter Johnson, Grover Cleveland Alexander, Frank Chance, "Ping" Bodie, Nick Altrock and Casey are all entitled to places on baseball's roll of honor. What's that you've never heard of Casey?

Casey started out in life as a junkman but soon developed his natural swatting ability upon joining the New York Giants. The metropolis adored its new hero and the Metropole Bar became the place to be if one wanted to meet him. Of course, those who knew their hygiene whispered that beer and baseball didn't go together but Casey wouldn't listen. Finally, O'Dowd, the scout who'd "discovered" him, resolved to place a diversion in Casey's path, something that would make the batter's attention wander far from the bar. Trixie, prettiest member of a musical comedy chorus, won the assignment and the havoc she created was well—never has there been a Follies girl who broke as many hearts! After the dust had cleared away, Casey gathered the broken pieces of his anatomy and attempted to make good on the last day of the season. A hit would have tied the score and a homer won the game. But poor Casey—fate and a trick ball were against him, so—he struck out. But everything righted itself later on when the manager discovered—

"Casey at the Bat," the best comedy "bat" of the season arrives at the Beaver Theater Sunday and Monday, July 10 and 11. Wallace Beery is said to contribute his funniest characterization as baseball's prime blunderer, Ford Sterling, ZaSu Pitts and Sterling Holloway head the star's supporting cast. Monte Brice directed for Paramount.

There is something about baseball that is hard to determine. You think that a certain fellow looks like an old woman on the ball field. He catches the ball wrong, he throws it wrong, he can't run, he can't hit, he doesn't seem to do anything; but when you take the score book and see who made the put outs, who hugged the bases, who caught the ball for a put out, you will often find that fellow doing all these when the on-lookers say "he can't play ball."

Returning to the game Saturday, there were only Davies, Barron, Barnes and Halsten of the regular squad in the lineup. With five new men—men who had never played together before—the Beaverton squad was up against much the same proposition that it faced at the beginning of the season. None of the men knew just what the other fellow was going to do. Uncertainty never won a ball game, and it probably never will. When each man feels certain of just what his teammates are going to do, he is in a much better position to do good work than when he is just a little bit uncertain what will be done.

On Saturday, William Hammer and family, Mrs. (Judge) Swenson and Mrs. (Dr.) Swenson and son, Carl Reed Swenson, returned from a week at the Nelscot beach. Mr. Hammer is an angler of no mean ability and he succeeded in landing several fine catches of sea perch and trout, bringing a fine mess of the latter home to the Judge who had been spending the week at a restaurant. The first of the week the Hammer family, visitors here from California continued on to Vancouver, B. C. where they expect to spend a fortnight before they make a return to Beaverton and their home. Mrs. Hammer is Judge and Mrs. Swenson's oldest daughter.

Verboort Takes Holiday Game

Beaverton Pyrotechnics Of No More Avail Than An Exploded Fire-Cracker

The baseball game with Verboort at Hillsboro, the first game of a tournament, was lost by the Beaverton team, 1-6. Delaun, who pitched for the Beaverton squad, showed such good form that efforts will be made to have him join the team permanently.

The game was featured by errors which always came at the proper time to count against the locals, and, when the Verboort team made errors, they did not result in scores for the Beavertonians.

Meuwisen, who pitched for the Verboort team, is a young hurler who has been having great success in winning games. He did not seem to exhibit such good form but he managed to strike out eight men, which is no small thing for a young pitcher to do. Men who faced him thinking they could hit his deliveries, readily fanned.

LOCAL NEWS

Mrs. Fell spent the week-end with friends at Tacoma.

Mrs. P. A. Hicks left Wednesday for Salem to spend a week as a guest of her law parents.

A. C. Chinn and family, accompanied by Robert Drouin and family spent the Fourth at Seaside.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Loushy and family spent the week-end with relatives at Everett, Washington.

Little Seigfried Wolfe was operated on Thursday for removal of tonsils. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lorenz Wolfe.

P. M. Madden, one of our local realtors, spent Sunday in Portland and Monday in Hillsboro, taking in the celebration at the latter place. On Wednesday he was out in the valley near Carlton showing several prime orchards to a prospective client.

Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Doering, accompanied by the Verner Domogalla family, motored to Tillamook, Oregon, to celebrate the Fourth. Mr. and Mrs. Doering own a large wheat and stock ranch in that vicinity and enjoyed the company of many old-time neighbors at the celebration.

C. H. Fry returned home Tuesday from Newport where he left the family on a vacation sojourn. While there he tried deep-sea fishing, with the proverbial fisherman's luck, getting rather wet and hungry. He looked rather peaked and we are wondering if he spent too much time "feeding" instead of fishing.

William L. Finley, the naturalist who took two of R. A. Hanna's pet racoons to Portland to photograph, writes that he is having no little trouble in damping them sufficiently to secure a natural noise in their surroundings. Perhaps Mr. Finley has changed their diet to a wild oat porridge, and it just won't work with 'coons.

Mrs. J. R. Wheeler, accompanied by her nephew, Homer Hanna, and Miss Hutchinson, of Tigard, motored to Newport for the Fourth. While there they were guests of Stewart Hanna, Homer's brother, who is employed by the Foshoy Electric Co., of that city. Stewart returned with them yesterday for a "short visit" at the parental home, being a son of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Hanna.

Donald Duncan, assistant manager of the Beaver tells us that one of the features for Friday and Saturday, July 15, 16, will be the International News reel featuring the R. A. Hanna pet 'coons, which were taken by Jesse Sills some time ago. It shows in one part the mother 'coon holding her baby in her mouth in a perpendicular pose, under the caption, "Mrs. Coon, of Beaverton, Oregon." Thus will Beaverton receive world wide publicity.

Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Hicks, famous for their barbecue sandwiches dispensed over the counter at Bobbie's Barbecue Restaurant, operated a similar concession at the Hillsboro celebration with their usual success. Mr. Hicks has arranged for barbecue concessions at each of the following fairs, Gresham, August 4, Centralia, Spokane, Pendleton, Yakima, and Salem, in the order named. During the absence of Mr. and Mrs. Hicks, their Beaverton business, "Bobbie's Barbecue Restaurant," was and will be in charge of Miss Adeline Reiff, an amiable lady living on south Watson street.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE WILL MEET TUESDAY

Tuesday, July 12 is the next regular meeting of the Chamber of Commerce. A large attendance is expected as there will be some one there to discuss the proposed road to the Pacific Beaches along a different route than any that has ever been broached in this vicinity.

Wednesday of this week the Board of Directors of the organization met with G. H. Wisting, of the Portland Chamber of Commerce, who is out formulating plans to set what he calls the "Metropolitan Area" reorganization at the Hillsboro celebration with their usual success.

ALOHA PEOPLE CAMP NEAR MOUNT HOOD

Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Cornell and children with Mrs. Cornell's sister, Mrs. J. R. Clark and Mr. Cornell's sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Cornell, camped in the mountains near Mt. Hood over the week-end.

Rockne and Schissler Visit In Beaverton

Famous Notre Dame Mentor Looking Over Local Material For Team

Knute Rockne, famous football coach of Notre Dame University, was in Beaverton Saturday and made a call at St. Mary's Home. It is whispered that he came on a scouting expedition looking for players for his famous eleven. There is, also, a persistent rumor to the effect that he made one of the star players on Beaverton's team of last fall a very attractive offer if he would go to the noted University and play with the team there—but, perhaps there is nothing to it.

Rockne was accompanied by Coach Schissler of the Oregon Agricultural College. He may have also been looking for players, and it is possible that he might have been interested in getting the star quarterback who played on Beaverton's team last fall to go to the Farmers' College to build up their eleven.

Rev. Fr. F. P. Leititz, pastor of the Catholic church at Corvallis accompanied these coaches on their trip here. And it may have been a coincidence, but James Robinson, football coach at St. Mary's, made the trip down from Ilwaco, Washington, Saturday. James knows football, he knows the players hereabouts and—well, there were three good coaches gathered at St. Mary's, where they have turned out one of the best football teams of their age and weight that has ever gone down the gridiron in this section.

WEDNESDAY EVENING FIRE LEAVES FAMILY HOMELESS

On Wednesday evening at about seven o'clock, fire of undetermined origin but thought to have started from a defective chimney, totally destroyed the residence of Hans Nielsen, renter on the W. B. Emmons place about a mile southwest of Beaverton.

The fire was first discovered while the family was at supper, one of the children going out after stove wood and noticing the flames shooting out around the chimney.

The house, which was an old frame structure, a story and a half high, was veritable tinder for the hungry flames. The fire spread rapidly, giving but little time to salvage the contents of the home after the children had been removed to a place of safety. However, considerable of the down-stairs furniture and effects were saved by the quick work of Mr. Nielsen and a couple of neighbors who were soon on the scene after the fire had been discovered. All the upstairs furniture with the greater portion of the wearing apparel was burned with the house.

The Beaverton Volunteer fire department responded to a call for assistance and by valiant efforts succeeded in saving several other nearby buildings, one of which was a large barn, partly filled with hay. They were badly handicapped for want of water there being only one well on the place, but as very little wind was blowing, the sparks didn't fly far, thus permitting the workers to concentrate their efforts.

The value of the house is thought to be fully covered by insurance, and Mr. Nielsen had $500 insurance on his household effects.

The pathetic part about this fire was that it is just another episode of the hard luck that has stalked Mr. Nielsen more or less since 1918 when he lost his wife during the "flu" epidemic, leaving him with five little children, the oldest being but ten years, the youngest, a babe in arms at that time. He has worked hard against many adversities and kept his little family together. The older ones are now well along in the teens, one being temporarily employed in the canning factory at Hillsboro.

Many of his dead wife's belongings and a number of baby garments, which Mr. Nielsen treasured with a sentimental love, were lost in the flames, as were many other articles he cherished as keep-sakes.

As he remarked, "The things we saved could all be replaced, but the things that were burned are gone forever."

A Fellowship dinner was given at the Methodist church Wednesday evening at which the Hustlers, a class of boys taught by Mrs. Walter Caveness, were the honor guests. The boys won for the second time in the contest being held in the Sunday School.
