DEATH TAKES LONG TIME

RESIDENT OF ST. MARY'S At the Portland Surgical hospital on last Sunday occurred the death of Mrs. Frank J. Jenkins from heart trouble.

Decceased was greatly loved and widely known at St. Mary's station for over 40 years. She was born January 5, 1854 in the state of New York where, on a teaching womanhood, she married George Jenkins, with whom she enjoyed the happiest of filial relations until his demise in 1915. No children were born to this union.

For the past ten months Mrs. Jenkins had been living with Miss Edith Hensing, a niece, at Helena, Montana. In answer to her wish she was brought to Portland in the hope that the change and familiar surroundings, together with an agreeable climate might prove beneficial to her receding health, and placed in the hospital for treatment. But such was not to be, her life gradually and peacefully ebbed into dissolution, the spirit taking flight as she lay quietly sleeping after a restless night, to enter into everlasting life in that home not made by hands—eternal in the heavens.

Left to mourn are two brothers, Thomas and John A. Marsden, of Flint, Michigan; and two nieces, Miss Edith Kassing, of Helena, and Miss Marion L. Kassing, of Menominee, Michigan, both of whom were at the bedside when death ensued.

Funeral services were held from the Reg. Undertaking Chapel, the Rev. Ingalls preaching the sermon. Mesdames Roswell and Wyles sang, accompanied by Mrs. Richard Doty, at the organ. Interment was made at the Union cemetery, the remains being placed beside those of her late husband.

W. J. Haas, assistant general manager of the 20th Century stores, is relieving at the local branch during the absence of Manager Conolly, who is on his vacation.
