BEAVERTONIANS ENGAGE IN BUSINESS AT STEVENSON

The following is copied in part from the Skamania County Pioneer published at Stevenson, Wash.

"Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Tallman of Beaverton, Ore., have purchased the bakery plant, and business from Preston Ash, and have taken hold of the business and are turning out a very fine product.

"Mr. Tallman comes highly recommended as a man and a baker, and his bread, pastry, and other products show that he did not come to Stevenson to learn the game."

Mr. Tallman is the son of Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Tallman, who live just west of town. He used to work in the Yeager bakery here, and was familiarly known as "Tally."

FARM REMINDERS

Home planting of fruits of different varieties appeals to many Oregon home owners. Some of the advantages pointed out by the U. S. A. G. experiment station horticultural department are the economic value of the crops and the pleasure of picking one's own fruit. The former saves expense of buying the fruits thus supplied, and the latter adds to the enjoyment of the home. "Fresh fruit direct from the garden in a fully ripened condition has decided advantages over other fruits bought in the market," says the department report.

BUSTER KEATON COMING IN "THE GENERAL"

decision to film the scene realistically as possible. Buster leaped from the cab just in time to save the film business one of its greatest assets.

Unlike many comedies, "The General" has a real love story running through it, a breath-taking, hair-raising tale of soldiers and engines and sweethearts and a face that never smiles. The girl thinks Buster is a slacker because the recruiting officer thinks an engineer more valuable to the South than a foot soldier. But Buster shows her, and how!

"The General" is an Oregon made picture.
