Water Source Search Resumed By Council

Engineer Appointed At Special Meeting To Investigate Contemplated Supply

The Town Council met at the Town Hall Monday evening pursuant to the motion to adjourn adopted on the occasion of their regular monthly meeting held on the evening of the third of this month.

That meeting was adjourned in order that the Recorder might advertise bonds that are to be sold to pay for the paving of the lower end of Lombard street. These bonds had been advertised in one of the Portland papers previously but there was no one desiring to bid on them, or at least no bids were received.

Several matters of interest were taken up and discussed at some length, one of which was the ever-present water situation. The Water Superintendent had been instructed to read the meter to see how much water had been used, and from his report it was estimated that the water bill for the month since the meter has been getting its supply from the Tualatin Valley Water company would be in the neighborhood of $325. That would indicate a saving of the difference between that amount and $550, which is about the amount of the lowest of the water bills from the City of Portland during the time Bull Run water was supplied. One of the highest bills from Portland during the period Bull Run water was used was about $1300, and they range from that to the usual bill of between $700 and $800.

The Council voted to employ an engineer to make a survey of the springs north of town as a possible available water supply. Mr. Robertson of the firm of Baar & Ferguson of Portland, who was present at the meeting, offered to do the work, everything necessary up to the bond election, for the very nominal sum of $100.00, and the Council voted to accept his offer.

Other minor matters such as storing the fire engine, cleaning the drainage ditches, and a few other things were discussed, but no definite action was taken.

The man taking the automobile had purchased an electric heater from A. Schlegel, Forest Grove, giving him a check for $17.50 payable to J. E. Jansen, and made out by P. E. MARSH INSTALLS NEW HYDRAULIC AUTO HOIST

Essex Marsh, proprietor of Marsh's Garage, at the corner of Lombard street and the Canyon road, has just installed a new auto hoist, the most up-to-date greasing and oiling equipment in the Northwest. There are only two of the kind in all Portland.

This hoist raises the car six feet in the air in 20 seconds. The mechanic, or anyone interested, can walk under the car and watch, or do the work at his leisure.

The hydraulic hoist will be in operation not later than next Tuesday. Everyone is cordially invited to inspect this marvelous piece of machinery.

The car to be raised is driven onto a platform, and a small elevator-like arrangement comes up under the axle of the car, and raises the machine straight and level as it would be on the road.

It is said to be the very latest and most up-to-date garage equipment, and just such as we would expect Marsh's Garage to install.

Endeavor Societies Of County Convene Here

"The Quest For The Best" Is Theme Of 16th Annual C. E. Conference

The Bethel Congregational church entertained the Washington County Christian Endeavor convention for their sixteenth annual conference on October 14th to 16th inclusive. The attendance was exceptionally good at all sessions of the convention, which has been reported as one of the best which had been conducted in the county. The Oregon Society was awarded the prize for the largest group at the convention sessions.

The C. E. Society is an inter-denominational organization, and all united in song and service for Christ and the Church, which is the C. E. motto.

The C. E. County officers and our local committee, Mrs. Milton McCallie, and Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Tucker, deserve much credit for the inspirational and constructive program which had been arranged by them. They chose wisely when they selected Mr. Henry Kuraloff of Hillsboro as leader for the inspiring song services.

"The Quest for the Best" was the convention theme, and numerous speakers presented interesting addresses in the three day period.

The first address, "The Quest for the Best in Recreation" on Friday evening was given by Miss Marion Jenkins, secretary of the Vancouver Y. W. C. A. At the conclusion of her address an interesting social hour, which was directed by Mrs. Milton McCallie, was enjoyed by the delegates in the community room.

The Saturday morning session was first devoted to a series of talks on Grand Endeavor activities. Rev. Donald MacNeil led the Bible study period, and Rev. Zenas A. Olson presented his first address, "The Quest for the Best in the Home." Mr. Olson is a former resident of Washington county, and numerous friends greeted him at the convention after his return from foreign missionary service with the Methodist Church of India.

The individual conference period began at 2:30 Saturday afternoon. James Henderson of Portland led the prayer meeting group. Miss Dulcinea Brown had the poster making period. The secretary of the Oregon C. E. Union, Dallas Rice, met with the society officers. Miss Marion Jenkins had the social group, and the mission study class was led by Mr. D. Devaputra, a native of southern India. Mr. Devaputra is now a student of the University of Oregon, where he plans to take his doctor's degree in education. He has taught in the Indian missionary schools for sixteen years, and he returns to India in 1930.

The members of the Bethel Ladies' Aid society maintained their previous reputation as good cooks on two occasions on Saturday. They served luncheon at noon and the convention banquet at night, which was a big success. The banquet toasts were cleverly arranged from a quotation from the "Idylls of the King": "Man am I grown, a man's work must I do. Live pure, speak true, right wrong, follow the king. Else wherefore born?"

The Washington County C. E. Orchestra played several selections in the evening service, and Rev. Z. A. Olson gave the address, "The Quest for the Best in Friendship."

The delegates attended the Sunday School and Church of the first choice on Sunday morning after the Quiet Hour service which was conducted by Miss Marion Jenkins at 9 o'clock.

All roads led to Beaverton Sunday afternoon, and the various C. E. societies were well represented in the service, which began at 2:15. Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Tucker were highly complimented for the successful program which the members of the Bethel Junior C. E. society presented in the Junior Rally Sunday afternoon. The Junior society will present its program again on next Sunday morning, October 24th, in the church service.

The impressive installation service for the new county officers was conducted by Mr. James Henderson. The main address, "The Quest for the Best in Service" was given by Mr. D. Devaputra. His presence in the conference is a living proof of the universal power of the Christian Gospel, and that foreign missionary work is present worth while. The consecration service which was led by Miss Jenkins completed an interesting afternoon program.

The Bethel orchestra assisted in the inspirational service of the evening. Rev. E. C. Farnham, secretary of the Portland City Council of Churches, gave the final address, "The Quest for the Best in Civic Life," and Rev. H. Dickman of Bethany pronounced the benediction which concluded a most interesting Christian Endeavor convention.
