Entered as second class matter December 9, 1922, at the postoffice at Beaverton, Oregon, under the Act of March 3, 1879.

J. H. Hulett .. Business Manager

Children, playing, put the "din" in reading.

This is the time of the year to decide what you will plant in your spring garden.

The average child can teach the average parent a lot of things that the p. p. never learned.

If all our subscribers would pay in advance this month we would believe in Santa Claus ourselves.

There are still some people in the United States who think that the farmer lives off the fat of the land.

It would be funny, if it wasn't tragic, how people continue to run into trains that are using the same crossing.

We still hope to be able to live long enough to discover that what we have in the bank is actually what we think we have.

For a nice peaceful conference between the naval powers imagine France and Italy talking about the Mediterranean sea power.

PROFANITY

They say that man swears far too much.

And yet 'twas Mother Eve, Who started this profanity Which cause will, pea.

"What shall we eat," said Adam once, Banana, date or yam" Eve stretched, smiled happily and said, "I do not care, Adam."

"THE WHISTLING WHIPPERWILL"

At least, that's the way you must pronounce "The whistling whip, oow-will" if you wish to follow the advice of our old friend, the auctioneer.

In fact, no matter how we insist upon pronouncing words beginning with "wh," the fact remains that practically all call for the "hw" sound. "Where" is not "wa," but "hwar," while "when," "what," and "whiskey" are "hwen," "hwat," and "hwisky." The latter word, incidentally, furnishes an excellent method of demonstrating the fluid sound of "wh."

But "whistle," like "whiskey" has the "hw" sound, while "whippoorwill" not only follows suit, but insists that its second syllable be pronounced "per" instead of "poor." No wonder foreigners throw up their hands in dismay when they attempt to master the intricacies of our tongue.

THE LAZY MAN IS VINDICATED

The world, thank heaven, is comfortably full of inherently lazy souls who cringe and shudder inwardly when brought into intimate contact with those fearfully energetic personages whose physical mechanisms seem run by electric dynamos.

Everyone knows the type of person meant—the fellow who, instead of burying his head under the pillow or sleepily stuffing the alarm clock under the blankets in hopes of one more snooze in the cold gray dawn, bounds briskly out of bed at the first tinkle of the buzzer. Once up, he grimly seizes a pair of dumb bells, starts the phonograph and proceeds to get himself all red and sweaty trying to carry out someone's idea of reducing to music.

After the monkey drill is over, he skips light-heartedly into a cold shower where he grits his teeth Spartan-like and consoles himself with the thought that, after all, it is good for him. Then a shave, eggs, toast, coffee—and a little later, he breezes into the office, exuding vim, vitality and vigor, to the extreme discomfort of all the lazy souls thereabouts.

Athletic faddists have for so long laid down that particular formula as being the only one method for a conscientious citizen to start the day, that it puts the mark of shame upon those subscribing to any other method of procedure.

Disciples of the cat method of waking are legion, but they keep so quiet about their degenerate tendencies along that line that one is likely to forget or overlook their existence. This is the class who, after a certain amount of outside stimuli has been applied, opens first one eye and then after an interval, the other; yawns, stretches one arm or leg, yawns again and then stretches the other; At the end of a more or less protracted period of dozing and stretching, he manages to get his feet on the floor and then slumps there, stretching and yawning some more, while reflecting sourly upon a world where people have to get up of mornings, poor slaves.

A sleepy shuffle to the bathroom for a shave and a bath, which starts in just comfortably cool, puts enough life into the old organism to get its feet under the breakfast table. Not until the coffee and toast have disappeared, however, is he really wide awake.

This regime is followed fairly closely by the majority of our fellow humans of both sexes, but, because of the stigma attached to the un-Spartan laziness of such a program, no one admits it unless he is compelled to. The virulently athletic boys are the ones who broadcast their personal habits to the wide world. To incurable sleepy-heads, as well as to those who are averse to exercise except in comfortably moderate doses, the recent words of two learned men, will be as welcome as an oasis in a desert.

Dr. Jesse F. Williams, physical education professor at Columbia University, is virulently attacking the strenuous manner of beginning the day. He scornfully labels setting-up exercises as ridiculous and criminal, says cold baths when first awakening are injurious, and brands the alarm clock as a work of the devil. Furthermore, he comes out strongly for the feline manner of re-establishing one's contact with the early morning world.

Close upon the heels of his announcement came the words of George Jean Nathan, who, writing in the Outlook Magazine, insists that human muscles don't need much exercise of any kind and certainly not strenuous exertion. He says, "Walking, pushing open doors and closing windows, getting in and out of taxicabs, waving one's hand at friends across the street—that is enough exercise for anyone."

This, by the way, is a conservative step toward making the world safe for the lazy man, which it is far from being at the present time.

4-H CLUB MEMBERS HAVE RECORD YEAR

Livestock and crops totaling more than $7500 was owned by 4-H club members of Washington County in 1929, according to W. F. Cyrus, assistant county agent. Prize money won by these club boys and girls totaled nearly $500.

With more than 100 boys and girls already enrolled in livestock and crops clubs for 1930, the new year gives promise of being yet bigger. These types of club work are growing in the size of project as well as in the number of members enrolled. Boys are succeeding in putting their club projects on a paying basis. Corn, potato, swine, and poultry projects are increasing in size.

Keen interest is being shown throughout the county in the plan of the Hillsboro Commercial National Bank to work through the 4-H clubs to encourage the growing of more seed corn. The offer of the bank to supply any boy or girl with enough seed for an acre is stimulating a few boys and girls in almost every community and is increasing the size of this project. The seed used will be adapted to this section and will be the best that can be obtained.

One acre of land must be available for the use of the boy or girl desiring to take advantage of this offer. They may then secure the seed by signing a contract agreeing to grow this for seed or grain and to exhibit 25 ears at such time as the bank may decide to have a corn show. The same corn could also be exhibited at any other shows or fairs.

Generous prizes have been offered by the bank for this project. A scholarship to the boys or girls club summer school at Corvallis will be given as first prize. Other prizes will be cash.

Pig club members are not as numerous as yet but several of them are raising and managing an entire litter of pigs instead of just one animal. Where conditions are suitable, an increase in the size of the club member's project usually results in the boy taking more interest in his own work but in the entire farm, says Cyrus.

Larger calf and potato clubs—d more of them seem certain for the new year. All the 1929 calf clubs are or will be functioning again and several new ones are now being organized. Chehalis Mountain will no longer have a monopoly on potato clubs in this county, as other potato producing sections are forming 4-H groups.

BOXING MATCHES TO BE STAGED SOON

The 1930 Pacific Coast Amateur Boxing Championships will be held in Portland at the Civic Auditorium Friday night, February 28, and Saturday night, March 1, under the auspices of Multnomah Amateur Athletic Club.

A large number of entries is expected. Boxers from the Pacific Northwest winning any of the eight titles, or those making the best showing, will be sent to the National Championships at Boston, with all expenses paid.

Practically all the winners and a large number of entrants in last year's Pacific Coast Amateur Boxing Championships have turned professional. This will mean a large number of inexperienced boxers entering the coming championships, with an equal chance of getting into the finals.

Entry blanks may be had by writing James J. Richardson, in care of the Multnomah Athletic Club, Portland, Oregon.

MAN RINGS IN NEW YEAR FOR 52nd TIME

To ring the old year out and the new year for fifty-eight consecutive years is the experience of Albert Foster, superintendent and historian at the Champeong Memorial building, who first rang the bell when he was 12 years old. He visited Hillsboro New Year's eve to follow his traditional custom of pulling the bell cord of the Methodist church.

"The Little Store with Big Values has opened for business at Rainier in the Bourne building.

Construction is underway on the Crimes building in which Coquille post office will be located after April 1st.

The construction of the Sellwood Masonic Temple in Portland on the East Side of Milwaukee Street is rapidly nearing completion.

Plans are underway for the construction of a five story hotel at Bend on the corner of Wall Street and Franklin Avenue at the cost of $150,000.

Fruit shipments from Rogue River valley for 1929 season totaled in value $6,127,640, according to a report filed with Rogue River Traffic Association.

Bids will be opened for the construction of a highway fill or embankment on South Beach, near Newport, and across the tide flat to ferry landing.

THE GREATEST CHEVROLET IN CHEVROLET HISTORY

Today, Chevrolet presents the Greatest Chevrolet in Chevrolet History—a smoother, faster, better Six—with beautiful new bodies by Fisher.

Basically, it is the same sturdy, substantial Six which won such tremendous popularity in 1929. But it is a greater car in every way—for there are scores of vital improvements which contribute to comfort, performance, endurance and safety.

An improved six-cylinder valve-in-head motor, with its capacity increased to 50 horsepower; four Delco-Lovejoy hydraulic shock absorbers; fully-enclosed internal-expanding weather-proof brakes; a new dash gasoline gauge; heavier and stronger rear axle; Fisher non-glare windshield; larger tires——these are typical of the many improvements found throughout the entire design.

But most impressive of all—this smoother, faster, better Six is available—

-at greatly reduced prices!

During 1929, more than a million three hundred thousand persons bought six-cylinder Chevrolets. This enormous volume has made possible many savings in the Chevrolet factories—and, in keeping with its long-established policy, Chevrolet is sharing ing these savings with the public. No written description can do justice to the extra value and quality provided in this new car. Visit your Chevrolet dealer—see this car—ride in it—and judge for yourself the sensational value it represents.
