What to Put in "Bon Voyage" Box To Speed Your Parting Friends

"Sailing, sailing, over the bounding main" or whizzing over the landscape in motor, plane or train, go our various friends on vacation trips. Those of us who remain behind and want to make their "Voyage" as "Bon" as possible, will see that the send-off includes a "Happy Trip" basket. It's just an old custom—but a very nice one!

Nobody will give "just something out of a shop." The cleverest and most acceptable basket contains attractively packed goodies you've made yourself. That gives you a chance to put in the things the departing friend likes best to tuck in little notes here and there, to make it an intimate gesture of friendship as well as a goodbye gift. And it affords an opportunity for a little cooking fun besides!

The person who takes an ocean liner won't lack for quantities of food, but she will want something to offset the elaborate fare of ship board, some wholesome fruit confections and something to nibble on in "off hours." Vacationists bound for camp or mountain retreats will appreciate having a box of goodies to take along, or to keep for their first meal on arrival. Even the person who takes but a short train trip will relish a box of confections packed in entertaining fashion, with a letter tucked in the top.

Goodies which pack well, keep well without refrigeration, and do not suffer from transportation, are best to put into the "Bon Voyage" box. Wholesome goodies they must also be, for rich "messes" do not make for pleasant vacations. With these considerations in mind, healthful pasteurized dates are judged the best for such gifts. They are universally popular and are so attractive when stuffed or made into Parisian Sweets!

Picture a gay basket or amusing box, tied with festive ribbon or maline and containing some of the confections for which recipes are given. Wouldn't you be proud to have your name inscribed on the gift card?

Marshmallow Cocoanut. Cut 1/4 lb. marshmallows into quarters with wet scissors. Stuff each date with a piece of marshmallow, placing the cut side up. Dip sticky surface of the marshmallow into pink or orange cocoanut frostettes. Marshmallow cream may be used.

Nut Fondant: To 1 1/3 cups confectioners' sugar add 1/4 teaspoon vanilla, 2 tablespoons thin cream, and 2/3 cup chopped nut meats. Place only a small quantity of the fondant in each date so that the filling may be completely enclosed by the date and kept moist. Brazil nuts are especially recommended.

Candy Applettes

1 pkg. pasteurized dates
1 pkg. shredded cocoanut
1/2 cup nut meats
1/2 lb. seeded raisins
1/2 lb. figs
1 tsp. orange juice
1 tsp. orange rind
Cocoanut frostettes

Raisins, cocoanut, nut meats, raisins and figs through food chopper. Add orange juice and rind and mixture is being kneaded into a smooth mass. Roll portions of the mixture into "apples" about one inch in diameter. Roll balls in the cocoanut frostettes (pink or green. Insert cloves to represent stem and blossom. Use citron for leaf. Makes 60 apples.

Bon Voyage Fruitsies

1/4 lb. layer figs
1 pkg. pasteurized dates
1 1/3 cups shredded cocoanut
1/2 pkg. sliced orange peel
1 cup nut meats
1/2 cup candied cherries
1/2 lb. marshmallows

Put figs, pitted dates, cocoanut, orange peel and nut meats through food chopper. Melt marshmallows over hot water. Add fruit paste and mix. Spread evenly in a well-buttered shallow pan. Paste should be 1/4 to 1/2 inch thick. With scissors slice cherries and press into top of mixture. Let cool, cut in squares and roll lightly in granulated sugar. Yields 1 1/2 lbs.

A PEACH OF A SANDWICH!

Choose large fresh peaches, cut through center, removing seed. Fill each half with a half teaspoon butter and a teaspoon of sugar, and broil until tender and delicately glazed. Serve on hot buttered toast slices with a spoonful of sauce made this way:

1/4 cup sugar, 1 tablespoon cornstarch, one-third cup cold water, two-thirds cup boiling water, 1/2 tablespoon butter, 1 teaspoon grated orange rind, 1/2 small banana sliced, and 1 tablespoon lemon juice. Mix cornstarch with sugar and stir in cold water until smooth. Add boiling water, rind, and banana, and cook slowly for ten minutes until mixture thickens. Add lemon juice and butter and serve hot.

Stuffed Dates a la Trip-Box

Stuff pasteurized, pitted dates with any of the fillings suggested below. It is usually desirable to have the stuffing visible, although the date may be wrapped entirely around a bit of nut meat or candied fruit. After stuffing dates should be shaken in a paper bag, a few at a time, which contains granulated sugar, or rolled in the tiny grains of cocoanut known as frostettes.

Orange Peanut: To 1/3 cup peanut butter, add slowly 5 tablespoons of orange juice and 1/2 teaspoon grated orange rind or a tablespoon chopped candied orange peel. These dates may be sprinkled with chopped salted peanuts.

and Mrs. August Obrist of that town.

Mrs. Irma Taylor Sparks of Portland, piano pupils from this town, their parents, and other friends were pleasantly entertained Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Sparks' sister-in-law, Mrs. Robert Pomeroy. The students played solos, duets, etc. Dainty refreshments were served.

The grain in this part of the county is nearly all threshed out, and it has kept the numerous outfits busy during the past week. Noticeable among the locally owned machines were: Chas. Henrich, J. VanKleek, Jake Faix, Conrad Algesheimer, Ed Rood, Leland Flint, Hesse Bros. In most of the fields the yield was up to the average.

Red Hair No Sign of Temper and Cousins MAY Marry, Says Wiggam

"It isn't always darkest just before the dawn. Every cloud doesn't have a silver lining. Opposites do not usually marry each other and beauty very often does go with brains."

These are just a few of the many popular fallacies that are based on general acceptance of a faulty premise rather than on scientific fact. Actually, according to Albert E. Wiggam, author of "The Marks of an Educated Man," conclusions based on such commonly-accepted cliché phrases are wrong.

Under the title "You're Wrong About That," in the July Cosmopolitan magazine, Wiggam gave the validity of a score of popular beliefs. These run all the way from the fact that Betty Ross didn't design the American flag to the belief that cousins shouldn't marry and that blind persons have an extraordinary sense of touch.

"General notions, impressions and beliefs about matters of fact and natural law," Wiggam insists, "provided they are not the outcome of scientific investigation, are always wrong." And in proof of this statement he proceeds to attempt to wreck a lot of commonly accepted opinions.

Oddly enough, and as if in support of the claims of this writer, Alice D. Kelly, a mother of five children, presents in the same magazine the story of how her children separated her from her husband instead of being a bond which drew them more closely together—as is popularly preached and believed—this mother found her babies to be a wedge which gradually forced herself and her husband apart. In developing this condition Mrs. Kelly reaches—by a different route—the same conclusions presented by Wiggam. As she states it:

"For a presumably practical, shrewd and money-grubbing race, we Americans have more quaint folklore more strange mythology and more unfounded legends than the people of any other country—not excepting Scandinavia—that I have ever visited. And I have visited a lot!"

Whether these iconoclastic attacks on popular ideas will win any readers away from their favorite beliefs remains to be seen. The chances are, however, that they will, instead, marshal an army of believers in their defense.
