Painless Way to Serve Vitamin C—Ponce De Leon Ate Grapefruit First

Ponce De Leon, adventurer and discoverer of Florida, may not have hoped, but he did start one meritorious practice when he fed his buccaneers on the "pomelo" because he thought it must be good for them. We know how Ponce "bulldozed" better than he knew, because the pomelo, sweetened, adapted and improved, was the ancestor of our grapefruit, a most valuable source of vitamin C.

The home-maker and menu-planner, knowing that while only small amounts of the "anti-scorbutic" vitamin will keep us from the afflictions resulting from its lack, a large amount is necessary for full health and vigor, will be glad to find she can serve grapefruit painlessly! Experiments have proven that vitamin C in grapefruit is not destroyed by the canning process. Not a segment, not a core, not even a seed to remove!

Grapefruit is versatile—serve it as a canape or cocktail for the first course; as a main dish, as a salad for the central course; or as a fruit dessert. And by all means remember it's famous for its "wake-up taste" for breakfast!

Frosty Fruit Mold (A Frozen Dessert Salad)

1 No. 1 can grapefruit
1 No. 2 can mixed fruit
1 cup diced celery
1 cup mayonnaise
1 cup chopped almonds
1/2 cups heavy cream
1/2 pkg. pasteurized dates

Drain canned fruits thoroughly, cut in small pieces, combine the fruits, celery and almonds. Whip cream and add it to mayonnaise. Add cream and mayonnaise to fruits. Pack in trays of mechanical refrigerator or in a tightly sealed mold in a mixture of ice and salt until frozen (about 4 hours). Unmold. Serve on lettuce and garnish with a small amount of cream mayonnaise. Yield: 1 1/2 quarts. (12-14 servings).

Senorita Salad (Accompaniment Salad)

1 No. 1 can grapefruit
1 canned pimiento
1 ripe olive or pickled walnuts
Mayonnaise dressing
Iceberg lettuce or other green

Arrange segments of grapefruit on bed of lettuce to form a star. Lay strips of pimiento between segments. Place a halved ripe olive or slice of pickled walnut at center of star and decorate segments of grapefruit with tiny bits of relish. Serve with plain mayonnaise or any favorite salad dressing. This recipe serves four.

COFFEE BEFORE BREAKFAST

YOUR guests will appreciate a cup of coffee first thing in the morning—if it is properly made and served. Make coffee in the proportion of a heaping tablespoon to a large cup of water and serve piping hot in demi-tasse with or without sugar. In hotels and on dining cars this is called a "Coffee Cocktail." If the private home it is a mark of courtesy that guests will appreciate and remember.
