BILL MATZKE IS SHOT THROUGH HIS FACE

While plowing a field along the west side of Lombard St., William Matzke, familiarly known about town as Bill, was shot through the face Saturday by a high power .22 rifle. Matzke had almost finished his task when he heard some one shooting and bullets striking trees near the field where he was working. He halted a short time and then started his team again when a ball struck him in the face just below the eye, passed through the cheek bone and passing back of the nasal cavity lodged in the bone on the opposite cheek.

Monroe Shannon, who did the shooting claims that he was shooting at a target from over near Watson street.

Matzke refused to sign a complaint against Shannon. He is said to be recovering nicely from the wound.

S. P. AGAIN ANNOUNCES "CENT-A-MILE"

Marking the commencement of the spring cutting season, the Southern Pacific Company today announced plans for another of its so-called "dollar day" sales or train rides, featuring 100 miles for $1.

The forthcoming offer of cent-a-mile transportation, scheduled from April 28 to May 1, inclusive will be of special benefit to May Day excursionists, it was pointed out by C. E. Allen, local agent for the company.

Persons planning long trips, Allen said, will have time to complete their journeys within the dates of the low-fare excursions. May 10 has been fixed as the final return limit, according to the announcement.

As before, it was stated, the roundtrips have been authorized between all points on Southern Pacific's lines in six western states.

Several boys passed first class and second class tests.

ADVICE GIVEN ON GROWING POTATOES

It used to be said that the way to grow high priced potatoes was to plant cheap ones—as most farmers do just the opposite—but such does not appear to be the case this year, warns E. R. Jackman, crops specialist at O. S. C., in reviewing this season's farm crops outlook. Every indication points to poor prices on late potatoes again next year, he says, provided normal crops are produced.

"Farmers who normally grow a certain acreage year after year may well continue to do so," says Jackman. "But this is a poor time for a new man to jump into the business. On the other hand, there appear to be much better prospects for fair prices for early potatoes," Jackman believes. "The early crop in California promises to be greatly reduced so that it would appear to be a good bet for the potato grower to devote more of his acreage than usual to varieties to be dug as early in the summer as possible."

Jackman does not stop with telling what not to plant, but he also lists a number of seed crops that give good promise, particularly in western Oregon. Red and alsike clover are the "backbone" of the seed industry, and despite present prices Jackman believes conditions are right for an upturn in this business.

"The market still looks good for Austrian winter peas," Jackman continued. "Drouth in the South has had as much to do with poor demand last fall as poor farm prices. The acreage for next year is way below requirements."

"Forget about the common Italian rye grass, as there is too much of it for present conditions, but we could grow some English rye grass, English rye grass, orchard grass, tall oat grass, chewing fescue and meadow fescue all offer good returns and are cheap crops to grow. There is no reason why Oregon couldn't be producing these crops at the rate of some $300,000 a year."

Corn and seed flax also provide possibilities of profitable expansion in many sections. Corn could replace potatoes or spring grain on thousands of acres without danger of oversupplying the local northwest market. Seed flax has an assured market in Portland and will do well when properly cared for on much western Oregon land.

ON OREGON FARMS

Heppner—Farmers of Morrow county are showing an increased interest in squirrel poisoning this spring, according to County Agent Charles W. Smith, who reports that 2770 pounds were distributed from his office during the past month. The demand for the poison is greater than at any time in recent years, he says.

Baker—Lee Duncan of Haines has arranged to cooperate with County Agent P. T. Fortner in a demonstration trial of four acres of created wheat grass to be grown for seed on his ranch.

Dallas—Preliminary levels have been run for W. F. Schaad, Herman Miller and Emil Carston of the Grand Ronde district who contemplate a joint diversion ditch from two small streams in their neighborhood, reports County Agent J. R. Beck. They have filed on water for a total of 120 acres. The project is feasible from every standpoint except that of volume of water, Mr. Beck says, and this point will be determined by a further survey during the summer months.

Eighth Grade Students Plant Two Trees

First Graders Starting the Last Reading Book
For This Year

HONOR ROLL GIVEN

Track Meet Is Planned To Be Held
Here, If Weather Permits

Two new trees now grace the local school grounds due to efforts of the eighth grade—two more grow with the P-T. membership at their roots and one more is the gift of Mrs. Marsh, retiring president of the Parent-Teachers' association. Those planted by the eighth grade are a Japanese Cherry and a Mountain Ash. The day after those were set there was a P-T. A. ceremonial planting at which Mrs. Marsh and Mrs. Walker officiated. After the planting of the official trees, Mrs. Marsh presented Supt. Metzler with funds with which to procure another Ash tree to match the one already set by the pupils and which should be her personal gift to the school. The P-T. A. trees are Japanese Flams.

The fourth grade people are making booklets showing model gardens in keeping with the modern theory that all children should be taught to understand and appreciate all classes of industrial activity. The booklets are very logically arranged showing the process of garden making step by step and also revealing some of the originality as do also the bird booklets covers which they have just finished and which are decorated with original drawings.

The people in the second grade are working on a new store project which involves the securing and arranging of toys, the making of money, etc. This store will be called "The Tinker Toy Store" and will be managed by the winner in an arithmetic contest.

The first grade pupils began the last lap of their school journey this week with the beginning of their last reading book. In this grade five reading books are covered.

Honor Roll people in the three upper grades for the period just ending are Russell Hulett in the seventh grade and Lyman Webb in the sixth.

Honorable Mention—Gene Brown and Clara Kehrl. High Bonus Point pupils: 8th—Beulah Baldwin 243, Dorothy Baldwin 227, James Earle Miller 225; 7th—Russell Hulett 251, Clara Kehrl 225, Phyllis Wildman 223; 6th—Lyman Webb 252, Gene Brown 228, Shigenari Nagase 198.

Visitors: Mrs. Johnston, Miss Rosi Kehrl, Miss Olive Goff, Mrs. Tucker, Mrs. Haynes, and O. B. Krause. Gordon Gaul is again in school after an absence of two weeks due to illness.

The weather permitting, a grade school track meet will be held here next Saturday.

MAY ABANDON 4TH STREET ENTRANCE

Wednesdays Portland dailies carried stories to the effect that the Fourth Street entrance to Portland might be abandoned for the time being. They also stated that a route would leave the West Side Pacific Highway just beyond Tigard and following along the east side of the Southern Pacific railroad tracks between Beaverton and Tigard would connect with the Canyon road between Beaverton and West Slope.

These news dispatches state that by adopting a route leaving the East Side Pacific highway at Aurora and striking directly north, across the Willamette at Wilsonville and passing through Tigard would intersect the Canyon road west west of the Multnomah golf links.

MR. AND MRS. BECKETT ATTEND WEDDING

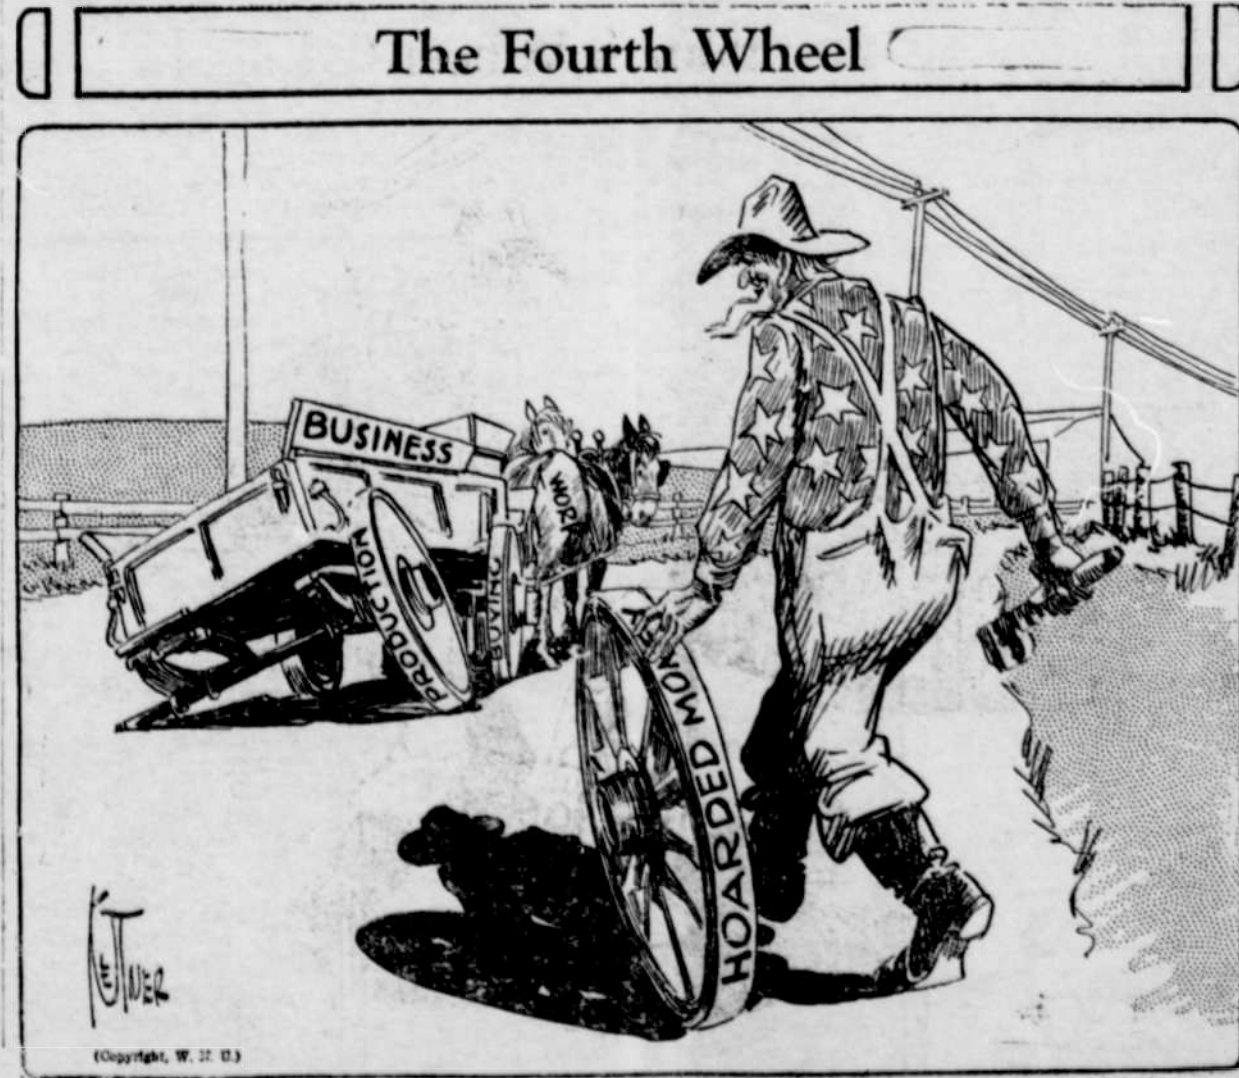

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Beckett motored to Salem April 9 to attend the wedding of their niece, Miss Genevieve Beckett, to Herman Smith. The pair were married at the Friends church.

There were two hundred fifty invited guests. Over one hundred guests attended the home reception where all enjoyed a delightful lunch of cake and ice cream.

The young couple will make their home at Ridgefield Washington.

CONVENTION PRES. VISITS SUN. SCHOOL

Everett Wright, President of the Sunday school convention of this district, paid an official visit to the Scholls Sunday school last Sunday. Plans are being made to hold a convention for the number of school in this district some time in May, time and place to be announced at an early date. Committees have already been chosen and work on the program and dinner are being made.
