TO GIVE RADIO PANORAMA OF OREGON

National attention will be focused on Oregon on Monday night June 6, when a radio panorama in music and story of the state's contribution to historical and industrial development of America will be broadcast to the country.
The occasion, which coincides with the celebration of Portland's famous Rose Festival Week will be the dedication of the "Parade of the States" program of that evening to the state as part of the plan to give the people of the rest of the country a more intimate glimpse of each of the states in broadcast. The program will be broadcast at 5:30 p.m. Pacific Standard Time over the National Broadcasting Company's network and will be heard in every section of the country.
Bruce Barton has written a special tribute to Oregon for the program. It recalls her history in the days of the hunters and trappers and the Hudson Bay Company and describes her industries where salmon, flax, apples and lumber are prepared for a world market.
An orchestral medley of songs appropriate to the Rose Festival, has been arranged as one of the program features and will be played by a concert orchestra under the direction of Erno Raape.
Tom Dodson, one of Oregon's composers will be represented on the program through "Cargoes" set to the words of Masfield's famous poem and sung by Phil Dewey, baritone soloist. Other musical numbers will pay tribute to the state's scenery and her industries.
Among those who have co-operated in supplying the material from which the program has been arranged are the Hon. Hal E. Hoag, secretary of state; the Portland Chamber of Commerce and the State Department of Education.

JOHNSON PRINCIPAL KIWANIS SPEAKER

A. S. Johnson of Portland was the principal speaker at this week's Kiwanis meeting. The balance of the time was taken up by Leonard Adams explaining some of the features and problems of getting the Beaverton float and the queen contest launched off in good shape. One item worth mentioning is that the coronation of the queen will take place at the high school auditorium, Tuesday evening of next week.

BRAKES APPLIED; CAR TURNS OVER

What might have been quite a disastrous accident happened when a heavy Studebaker, travelling too fast, nearly collided with an east bound Oregon Electric train at the crossing on the new Canyon road, Monday. Sudden and firm application of brakes stopped the car to turn around and tumbled over.
Besides a bad scare, a few slight cuts and a bad shaking, the six passengers did not appear much the worse for the experience. The car, a glass enclosed type, was otherwise damaged but was otherwise little the worse.

"VOICES OF BASEBALL"

The poet Longfellow once issued a volume called "Voices of the Night." If he were living now, he might print one on the voices of the day, or the voices of American life. If he did, he should not omit the voice of the ball ground.
The ball field has many voices. There is the roar of rapturous ecstasy when the home player makes his base. There is a derisive scorn as the visiting fielder, his little legs rotating like an engine piston, vainly pursues some long hit. There is the voice of agony and execration, as the "robber" umpire cheats the home player of his well earned run.
A boy leans on a ball ground to expect success only through good ball playing on its merits. Such experience affects character, hence the ball field turns out few crooks and bandits.
Solemn philosophers say the men and boys give too much time to baseball. The youth reading the sporting page, they say, should be studying economics and history. The elder sunning himself on the bleachers, should be at work curing the defects in his business.
Possibly but if so, American life might be like the boiler without its safety valve. Some day when its engineer forgets that boiler goes out of the roof, with damage to the scenery.
Baseball keeps men and boys from going through the roof. The steam of life, generated by toil and difficulty, acquires excessive power. But under the sunlight in the ball park, released by the spectacle of athletic achievement, that steam finds an outlet. Its pressure relieved, youth and age go home normal, and they will keep their feet on the ground some days more.
Every American town, big and little, needs its ball team. Let it select its mightiest neighbors. The money spent there will bring returns of trade, health, and contentment.

LETTERS

Editor, Beaverton Review:
The 1932 Oregon State Convention of the Farmers' Educational and Co-operative Union of America held in Salem, Oregon ended its three-day session May 27th.
The educational committee went on record by recommending the appointment of a committee to investigate educational problems, including the currency of the United States. Lack of knowledge on the part of the general public in regard to the currency system of the country has made it possible for a small group of men to grasp unlimited power. The various systems of currency should be studied by every citizen so that all would thoroughly understand the present Gold Standard and its operations, and the Bimetallite system which would remonetize silver, as proposed in the Wheeler Bill 2487.
Action was also taken in other legislative measures, including the Frazier Bill S. 1197, known as the Farmers' Farm Relief Act, for the liquidation and refinancing of agricultural indebtedness.
A committee was recommended to study the establishment of an Oregon State owned bank, this committee to meet with the executive committee of the Grange.
The real purpose of the Oswald-West bill was also discussed. This bill, drawn up by ex-governor West, is sponsored by the railroads in their efforts to drive motor truck competition from the highways in Oregon. Under the pretense of trying to abolish drunken driving, it cleverly incorporates a drastic blow at independent motor truck haulage, which permits the shipment of farm product at reasonable rates. It would place the farmers and stock men at the mercy of the railroads and their high freight rates. The railroads are seeking to incorporate this measure on the November ballot.
While the Farmers' Union was in session, solicitors were on the streets of Salem with petitions, trying to secure signatures for which they were paid ten cents each. Many were paid ten cents. Neither the petitioner nor the signer knew the petition about the water. The objective of one was to get ten cents; the other, the good natured citizen who so often carelessly signs his own death warrant. Ex-governor West, who helped draw up this bill, is to be congratulated on his deep understanding of human nature.
In like manner the enactment of the oleomargarine bill was defeated last year.
It should not be possible for petitions to be circulated as a business with a financial reward for every name secured. This is one of the many methods by which capital controls and oppresses the country.
Julia S. O'Brien, (Mrs. Bert O'Brien), Secretary, Washington, Oregon, Unit, The Farmers' Educational and Co-operative Union of America.

COMMITTEE MAKING NEW CITY CHARTER

A committee consisting of Francis Livermore, W. H. Boswell, Willis Cady and J. H. Hulett are holding meetings each week with the purpose of preparing a new charter for the Town of Beaverton. This proposed charter, it is hoped, can be whipped into shape in time so that it may be voted on at the regular election at the same time as the Mayor and other city officials are voted on.
Some of the proposed changes involve the tenure of office of the mayor, the recorder, and possibly a treasurer. The matter of a city manager is being given some consideration. Knotty boundaries which will need a lot of consideration.
