

JANNSEN CO. GETS DRILLING CONTRACT

A contract to drill a well for the city water supply was let Monday evening to the A. M. Jannsen Drilling Co., they being low bidders for the project.

The City Council have been contemplating the drilling of a well for some time. They hope by drilling near the city reservoir to strike a sufficient supply of water so they can supply the city at a much lower rate than is now being paid by the water users.

Flies Plane for 35 Minutes With No Lubricating Oil in Crankcase

"Spartan" After Oilless Flight; Pilot Kohner (inset).

For the first time in aviation history an airplane was flown for 35 minutes at Winona, Minn., after all lubricating oil had been drained from the crankcase. The motor had been conditioned for 100 hours prior to the test with a new lubricating fluid perfected by W. V. Kidder, of La Crosse, Wis., which was added to the regular service oil.

The experiment was made by Gerald Kohner of the Conrad Flying Service over the Winona airport with a 36-man-Halske radial air-cooled motor in a Spartan plane and was witnessed by several hundred spectators. The pilot negotiated two loops during the dry flight. Official witnesses of the experiment were the Mayor, Secretary Peter Johnson of the Chamber of Commerce and Dr. P. A. Mattison, all of Winona, who retained the oil plug.

At the conclusion of the test, Kohner had the oil poured back into the crankcase and again took off.

The fluid used in conditioning the plane's engine is a concentrated extract, which when introduced into a motor with the regular oil and with the gasoline, penetrates the pores of the metal and then forms a thin film over the outer surface of the bearings, according to Kidder. This provides not only a self-lubricating surface on the metal, he said, but a built-in supply underneath which, when released by frictional heat due to an inadequate amount or total absence of oil, furnishes the necessary lubrication until its own reserve has been drawn out of the pores and exhausted. An automobile recently processed with this fluid was driven for 318.7 miles in 13 hours, 35 minutes, at Elgin, Ill., with no oil in its crankcase.

Women Invest More Than Billion For Cleanliness in Their Homes

Housewives of the United States have spent more than $1,000,000,000 for electrical washing machines since the first ones were made. In ten years the devices have become the most popular of all the larger money and labor saving home equipment.

In seven-tenths of all newly wired houses the washer is the first of the large appliances that is installed by the woman looking for comfort and ease in her home.

Nevertheless, three women out of every five housewives living in wired homes have failed to acquire themselves with the advantages of such mechanical equipment.

Need for economizing in every home is hastening the spread of money-

TIGARD DEFEATS OR- ENCO BALL TEAM

Tigard defeated Orenco 11 to 1 in a state tournament game last Sunday on the local grounds. Buzz Barron, crack Beaverton player, playing for Tigard made the star play of the game when he made a one-handed stab of a fine drive by himself. He also cracked out a couple with two on bases putting Tigard in the lead. Allen, Beaverton catcher, played heads up ball for Orenco.

LARGE CROWD ATTENDS PROGRAM

About five hundred people attended the program given by the Aloha Grange to raise money to help those seriously injured in an accident which occurred in the building of the new hall. The frequent and spontaneous applause heard during the program was evidence that it was good entertainment.

The Aloha Orchestra, managed by Walter Rosebraugh, although a young organization, played very good music of various types, and made the community proud of its enterprising young people.

The Aloha Choral Club, under the direction of H. E. Ewer, contributed splendid musical numbers in their usual pleasing manner well known and enjoyed in Aloha.

A juvenile minstrel show, directed by Mrs. Barker, was very much enjoyed and gave evidence of much dramatic and musical ability among the very young members of the community.

Mrs. Eloise Barker Johnston of Estacada gave a most amusing dramatization of a young lady at her first baseball game.

Mr. Alfred Richards and Mr. Erick Hansen gave a very funny Hebrew skit "From Soup to Nuts".
The Girls Glee Club with Mrs. R. A. Montgomery as director sang two lovely songs.

The final number was a one-act play, "Grandma Pulls the String." Mrs. Barker, a very interesting Grandma managed to get her own way in spite of the combined efforts of her family. Miss Mary Grand as Nona, a married granddaughter, was beautifully independent and skeptical of her grandmother's ideas. Miss Beatrice Herford played the difficult role of Julia who tried hard to live her own life without hurting Grandma's feelings. Ruth Brome was the charmingly helpful and romantic little sister Hildegarde. Mrs. Schmidt as the mother of the family worked for peace at any price, and Ted Emerson as the bewildered but earnest young man handled a difficult situation in a masterful manner. All the parts were well taken and cleverly interpreted.
