Aunt Sophrony's Column

Dear Auntie:
During the past year I have been paying very much attention to Ila J. but now that she doesn't come to school anymore I am at a loss. What to do?
What to do? —D. H.

Dear Wilbur:
I am sorry Ila quit school, I know just how you feel (I had a lover once that left me flat, too) Try sulphur and molasses. —Auntie

Dear Aunt Sophie:
Many, many times during the school year have I mourned over the fact that my name has not adorned your columns. Now, I think I'm a pretty good looking guy; in fact I'm above the average. So why can't I get acquainted with "one of the prettier girls"? A. Lowry P. S.: I'm sick of hearing of Ila J.

Dear Allen:
Try some of the tactics D. W. uses. He doesn't seem to have any trouble. —Auntie

Dear Aunt Sophrony:
So far no one has asked me to the Prom tonight. It is very embarrassing for me to come stag. What shall I do?
—D. Finnell

Dear Dorothy:
What's the matter with H. L. or D. W.? Don't be snobbish dearie Go tell them you haven't been asked yet and if that doesn't work, try that dear, sweet alumni, Eric Hansen. —Aunt Sophrony

Dear Aunt Sophrony:
What is this power I have over women?
—L. Wirtz

Dear Lloyd:
It's probably your imagination. Catch on? Lovingly yours, Auntie

Dear Aunt Sophrony:
I don't know of anything I want more than to see my name and that of E. Alexander in the paper. However, if I tell this to anyone I am afraid they will take me wrong. Now what I want to know is this: how can I get our names in this paper without causing a lot of scandal?
—Worried, T. Hetu

Dear Theodore:
So glad you wrote me. Yours is the problem that confronts me many times during the year. I see what you mean. You pretend to

CEDAR MILL

A petition tending to hold up, through the referendum route, Senate Bill No. 241, being circulated here is finding a strong opposition. The letter sent along with it appears to be erroneous and misleading. Let the light shine on our elective enactments.

Old Biddy, the once famous Baroness of the roost, is, again rapidly achieving fame as a dividend producer, while her cackling proficiencies are not monstrous, yet the indications are that she, and her prolific family together with old Dad Biddy, will not only keep the table a-go-in, but will be the means of a funding origination. A renewed ambition in the poultry business has invaded our section.

While at play, some weeks ago, Beverly, the three year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Phil Thorne, cut her finger on a shovel, the finger was promptly given house-hold attention, thinking it would soon be in normal shape, but as the finger doubled in and could not be automatically straightened, it is feared that the tendon may be severed, and they have taken her to the hospital for a thorough examination. As the little one has inherited musical talent from its parents, they are especially concerned lest the injury may be a serious handicap in their ambitions for the future of the little one.

Mr. Thorne is a vocalist of no little ability, he is also an instrumental player.

STUDENTS FORGET USUAL DIGNITY

To the casual observer who visited Beaverton High School last Wednesday afternoon the extraordinary scenes he saw must have been highly interesting. It is not everyday that one will see the grave and reserved seniors shouting with delight as they frolic about, playing some such game as "drop the handkerchief", while the little first graders stand looking on in wide eyed amazement at their unsuspected ability. That "practice makes perfect" is after all no idle saying. Even the austere members of the faculty, ordinarily grimly intent in the difficult business of educating their youthful proteges seemed to have forgotten for the moment, their momentous task, as they too joined in the fun. And who would have suspected that the haughty Sophomore and the not-as-meek-as-he-used-to-be Freshman would ever join hands in a springtime frolic, or that the Juniors could forget to act lost without a pile of books under each arm. Spring is truly a wonderful time of the year—certainly a time of rejuvenation.

The cause of this unheard of informality and desertion of tradition was a simple quirk of mental psychology that is rather difficult to explain. Why is it that we feel so flattered as we prepare to look at the shutter of a camera? Whatever the cause, the fact remains that the studious gloom that is supposed to pervade the corridors of Beaverton High School was completely dispelled last Wednesday while the school and class pictures were being taken.

PUBLIC SPEAKING CLASS HAS TRIAL

I object, your Honor, the lawyer is bamboozling the witness!" "Objection overruled." "But your Honor—" The time 9:45 A. M. any morning last week; the place, the Public Speaking room; the occasion, the annual trial held by the class. (Continued On Back Page)

"LOOKING FOR MARY JANE" IS A SUCCESS

The Senior Play was a wonderful success. The large attendance nearly filled the auditorium. Everyone seemed to enjoy the play and the members of the cast acted their parts well.

Between the second and third acts Lloyd Wirtz, on behalf of the play cast presented Miss Schaefer with a beautiful bouquet of snap dragons and sweet peas, thanking her for her patience and effort which had made the play a success.

The net proceeds amounted to approximately one hundred dollars which will greatly lower the deficit in the student body treasury and perhaps balance the scales again. —Lila Fay Boyce have an inferiority complex and you are afraid that if you appear forward people will find out it's all pretense. Well take my advice, kiddo, stay out of the papers and play safe. —Aunt S.

Dear Aunt Sophrony:
I think Fay Haines is the cat's meow! How shall I let her know the way I feel? Shall I write a note or what? —E. Woods

Dear Billy:
Don't write—telegraph. —A. S.

Dear Aunt Sophrony:
Nearly every week Mr. Hughes will tell our class a joke and if we don't laugh he seems to think we have no sense of humor. Now, how are we going to let him know it's not our sense of humor but his jokes? —A Student

Dear "A Student":
Next time Mr. Hughes tells you a funny story, laugh very heartily. This will be such a shock you undoubtedly will hear no more for the remainder of the year. —Aunt S.

Dear Auntie:
Hi, ole kid! Nice weather we're having isn't it. What do you think of the inflation of currency? (Pardon all this nonsense but I include it in all my notes. Pretty good isn't it?) Well, my brain teaser for this week is this: Do you think I ought to take a Beaverton or a Portland girl to the Prom. I know this is rather late, but so far I have been undecided. Lovingly,
—Your Nephew, Willy C.

Dear Willy:
I think a Progress or a Cooper Mt. girl would be more your speed. The other girls would be much to fast for you kid, much too fast. P. S.: Your line isn't so hot. I've heard it before. —Auntie

The library will close on May 22. All library books are due Monday May 22. Fifty students have been neither absent or tardy during this school year.

NEWS NOTES

Lila Fay Boyce and Lois Russell went to Rockcreek on all-high school day.

Many grade school students visited here last week due to eighth grade examinations.

Last Friday, Mr. Hughes, during 6th period American History class, answered all questions asked by the students. Much was asked about college life.

Mrs. Snyder discovered the artistic talent of the Junior class when she examined their literature notebooks. The students have spent much time and labor in making their books attractive.

The main topic in the G. R. room during the noon hour is the Junior Prom. The room is buzzing with such questions as "what's the color of your dress?" "Has it puffed sleeves?"

Miss Barn's Junior Science 2 class has christened it's two carp fish "Adam and Eve".

First year French class is learning a song entitled "Ma Normandie". The cafeteria will continue another week for teachers and the grade school children.

Girls in the Home Economic class 2 have nearly completed sewing their dresses.

ASSEMBLY ADVERTISES SENIOR PLAY

An assembly was called last Tuesday afternoon for the purpose of advertising the Senior play. A scene from the play was given on the stage in which Charles Shively Gene Saindon, Lloyd Wirtz, June Gillmore and Ruth Fulgam took part. Each ticket salesman gave a report of how many they sold. More ticket salesmen were called for and each was urged to do his or her best to sell as many tickets as possible so as to win the prizes that were being offered and to help clear the student body deficit. —Dorothy Boy

JUNIORS TO PRESENT THE ANNUAL PROM

The Junior Prom will be given tonight in the high school gym. This is a yearly event being given as a farewell party to the Seniors. All alumni are invited.

The hall will be decorated for the occasion with spring blossoms and the Senior colors. Punch will be served during the course of the evening. The girls will be dressed in their loveliest gowns; the boys in their best suits. The prom will be chaperoned by the teachers and members of the school board and their wives.

The music will be furnished by Jim Dierckx's Pied Pipers, one of the most popular and peppiest dance bands in the county. —Annabelle Benson
