A REGRETTABLE SITUATION

It is quite apparent that a factional feeling exists in the town council. This situation should not be tolerated for a moment. The people are not interested in the likes and dislikes of certain trustees, but they are interested in having the affairs of the town conducted in an orderly and efficient man-

Direct charges of incompetence, or worse, ulterior motives, were made against Tewn Attorney Reimer by one trustee, and another made charges of inefficiency and discourteous conduct on the part of Recorder Smith at the conclusion of Monday night's meet-

As to the truth or falsity of these charges the Review is not concerned. There is a way to find out and that is prefer formal charges, and if the evidence bears out the statements of their accusers, both officials should be removed. There is no place on the town board for a bone of contention. Beaverton has reached a crucial point in its history. It must either go ahead or relegate itself to a condition of inocuous inferiority.

Personal quarrels or personal feelings should not be permitted to enter into the deliberations of the council. These men were elected by the people to look after the best interests of the town of Beaverton and not to bring their petty quarrels and dislikes into the council chamber.

At the same time, in order to keep faith with the body politic, they should demand the utmost efficiency and courteousness from the elective and appointive officials of the town. No charge of a culpable character should be permitted, however, unless the accuser has evidence to back up his statements. If and when such evidence is produced, it then become the duty of the council to have a thorough investigation made.

But, in any event, this personal bickering should cease.

NRA AND THE FARMER

The farmer and the residents of our rural communities have a vital stake in the national recovery program. Success of the program means a better, brighter day for them and proportionately more than for the industrial worker and the city dweller in general.

While there has been overproduction of certain farm products, underconsumption caused by business and industrial unemployment, resulting in a huge loss of purchasing power, has contributed principally to the farmer's distress.

Farm prices have been low largely because the drop in the income of the people has sharply curtailed demand and the farmer must take what he can get for his products, not what they are worth.

The farmer rightly has been called the backbone of the nation. At no time in our history has his wholehearted help been needed more than now. He can work the more earnestly in contributing to the success of the recovery drive because he knows that when the big turn comes he will share in the prosperity that follows. President Roosevelt, whose farsighted and dynamic leadership has already initiated comprehensive measures designed to aid the farmer directly in solving his own problems, is depending upon the rural dweller to put a shoulder to the wheel and help get the country back on its feet.

OUR ADVERTISERS

The attention of the readers of the Review is called to the advertisements of Conoly's Grocery and the City Meat Market, which appear in this issue of the paper. These firms are offering a number of specials which should prove attractive to our readers and it is to be hoped that they will take full advantage of the offers. Beaverton merchants have signed up almost 100 per cent under the national recovery act, and they are doing all in their power to assist in bringing the country back to a normal basis of prosperity. Their prices are right and compare favorably with those in Portland. They cater strictly to the local trade, spend their money in Beaverton. They are worthy of your undivided support. And above all, don't forget to tell them that you saw their ad in the Review.

Rev. George F. Gordon of the Methodist Episcopal church advises us that he has a number of racing greyhounds here in Beaverton. If he will bring them up to our barn, where several dogs were housed during the Portland races, we will present them with a million or more fleas which were left behind.

SEWAGE SYSTEM GETS O. K. BY CITY DADS

Concluded from Page 1, Column 4. community itself until such a time that this labor is used up, and at that time outside labor from the adjoining country may be used. He stated that he mentioned this in answer to a number of rumors which have grown up that suburban communities to Portland would be forced to use Portland unemployed labor, which rumor is entirely false because of the provision of the law. As to the benefit of this work for Beaverton, the value of construction of a sewer system in that city, replacing the present method of hundreds of cesspools located in the congested area, was so well known in the community itself that this point was not dwelt upon in the talk to any great extent. However, the financial conditions were discussed in detail,

Up to the last session of the legislature there were only two methods by which a city might obligate itself for the construction of sewers. The first was by general obligation bonds to be paid for by direct taxa-tion, and the second method was by use of the Bancroft act, whereby special assessments were levied against the benefited property, and which became a lien against the property in the same sense as taxes. However, in the 1933 legislature a bill was passed, which is now the law of Oregon, that communities may construct sewers and sewage disposal projects and finance them means of self-liquidating bonds to be paid for from service charges made in the same way as water charges are made. These charges prove nominal and are made a part of the water bill and the property throughout the city is not encumbered in any way.

He stated in his remarks that in every case where this has been placed before the voters this type of financing has been used. There have been approximatly 12 votes taken since the passing of this act, throughout the state, and since July 21, and the people have voted for this type of bonds in every case, better than 2 to 1, and from that ratio up to a maximum of 8 to 1 in Roseburg. The only amount that bonds would have to be issued for would be to secure the government in the 70 per cent which it would loan, and the 30 per cent would not have to be met in any form of repayment, as this is an outright gift.

In summarizing, he stated that this work could be undertaken at a time when it would have the greatest value to the community in emp/cyment and would correct a con dition in Beaverton which is hampering the city in its development and which must be undertaken within the near future because of the danger to health on account of the present condition of the sanitary disposal methods, and further, that it may be undertaken with the federal government cooperating in its expense and loaning the balance at a rate which would not greatly embarrass the people. And last, that it would not have any effect on taxes or on the liens against property.

In conclusion, the offer of the reconstruction advisory board to finance the necessary engineering up to the time of the granting of the loan, was made. This would include the preparation of plans and specifications required for the application, and of the application itself. In return for this service offered by the state the only requirement would be that if the loan be granted the state board would be reimbursed for its actual expenses. In return the board is asking the council to agree that if this money is spent for this purpose to call a special election in order to have the people of Beaverton vote upon these bonds. If the bonds are not voted, or if the loan is not approved by the government for any reason, then the city is not obligated in any way to reimburse the state for the expenses incurred. This offer of the state was to expedite the preparation of the application and also to aid any community in a financial way in the work up to the point of obtaining the governmental loan and grant.

Mr. Palmer, in conclusion, urged that immediate steps be taken to expedite this matter as the time within which this work may be undertaken is not unlimited.
