"WE LIVE AND LEARN."

During the past week Henry Ford and William Randolph Hearst expressed their views on the president's industrial recovery program, and in emphatic terms. Their statements were significant because they are two of America's largest employers, and in each instance what they had to say was spontaneous. It is a fair reference that each considered it his duty to make his position clear, and each chose a manner calculated to attract the widest attention of the public as well as the many thousands on their respective pay rolls.

Mr. Ford rarely makes a speech, but over a long-distance telephone hook-up from Dearborn he addressed more than 10,000 of his dealers assembled in 32 cities, as follows: "I feel that 1934 will be a good year for everybody that works. That is one thing the depression has taught us. The only thing that can pull this country through is work. There is plenty of work to do. We have all got to pitch in and do all the business we can to help the president pull the country out of the hole." A few days previously his Dearborn Independent had said editorially: "Let it be said, and even taken as a prophecy, that the NRA is here to stay. It is at least one of the most human and equitable acts passed for the common good in many years."

Under the title "We Live and Learn—Sometimes," Mr. Hearst addressed to all of his newspapers an analysis of the national industrial recovery act and its administration, which clearly revealed his appreciation of the purposes of both. "The NRA," he said, "can advance to complete success as industry recovers, and unquestionably when industry has eventually entirely recovered, the policies of NRA will not only benefit labor but will benefit industry. They will, in fact, benefit the nation. They will make the whole community prosperous. The principle of the measure is just. The fundamental effort of NRA should be to build up industry through governmental cooperation with industry and supervision of industry through elimination of the waste and of harmful competition."

"FIRE CONTROL" FOR 1934

Locking the stable door after the horse has been stolen is a common human weakness. And one wonders how many communities have done this in the case of fire. Hundreds of them have undoubtedly permitted fire departments to sink below the point of efficiency until a major fire destroyed irreplaceable lives and property.

Any time is a good time to rehabilitate the fire department. But the best time is always "before" the potential great fire occurs. That's especially true in small towns and rural areas, where fire loss tends to be abnormally high. Worn-out apparatus, sub-standard apparatus, a poorly trained personnel, these are the friends of conflagration, the enemies of security and prosperity.

Every community should make a new year's resolution to modernize the fire department, provide it with the best of apparatus, and make 1934 a banner "fire control" year.

SAVE THE SCHOOLS.

Delinquent taxpayers are being taxed this year to pay that part which goes to support the schools. It is the only help which the schools can get this year. Even if the sales tax should be approved in the special election on the eighteenth of next May, there will be no revenue available from it until next July.

However, if all delinquents would pay the school tax part of their unpaid taxes it would save our school system temporarily.

Our schools are priceless. Their work is the nation's safety. Every schoolhouse is a fortress of human liberty.

In many communities a drive is on to induce all possible tax delinquents to pay at least that part of their obligations which go to support the public schools. It is a noble movement and if made 100 per cent effective will restore the schools to their normal status—and do it at once. It is the one and only way to save the educational system for this school year.

WESTERN News Features

The Pacific Coast placed two stars on the All-American football team this year. Bill Smith, scoring end from Washington and Irvine (Cotton) Warburton, U. S. C. quarterback were outstanding players.

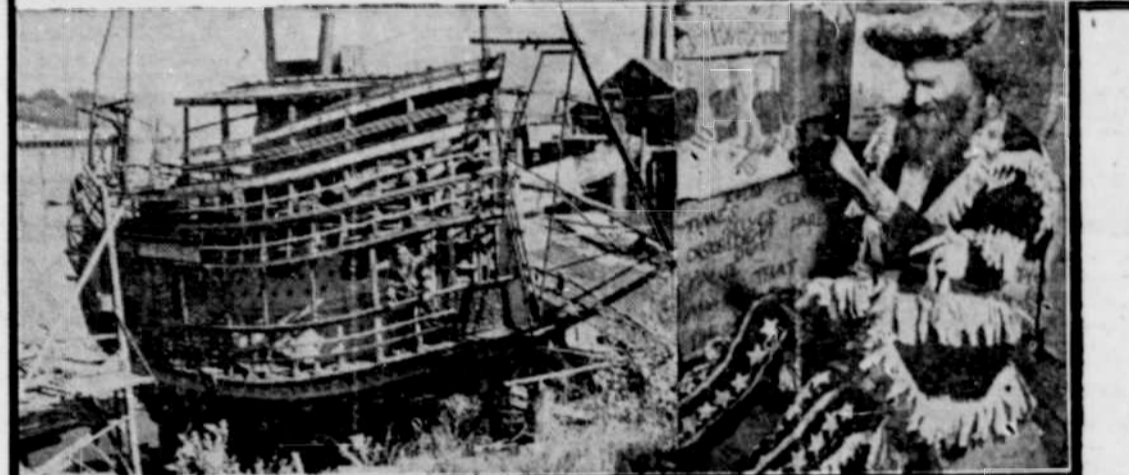

Recently completed is the million-dollar Century brewery, largest in the Pacific Northwest and among the finest in the world. In the background are the executive offices, brewhouse and storage cellars. In the center foreground is the powerhouse, at the right is the bottling works.

Samuel Martin, President of Seattle's park board and clothing importer, is eager to receive information about the migration of any of the 1,000 tagged pheasants or quail which he liberated from his private game farm this season.

Reversing his usual procedure, Santa Claus went north this year to deliver his toys. Here he is with his Christmas gifts being welcomed by Capt. C. B. Westerlund, S. S. Alaska, which carried Santa to Alaskan ports. Toys and candy were given by the Alaska Steamship Co., to over 5,000 Alaskan kiddies. Santa received a glorious welcome in each port.

Capt. William Greenwood, in a religious costume, is shown on the Ark, the 2nd, which is waiting for the second world flood which he says is coming in 1938. The ark floated on Mud Bay at Olympia, Wn., this week during the rising flood waters. "Religions" and "messages" are found throughout the ark and "musika" are stored for future use of the "crew."

MODEL LIQUOR ORDINANCE IS SENT TO VARIOUS CITIES

Uniform Regulation Recommended by City Attorney Grant of Portland. A recommendation that all cities in the state adopt a uniform city ordinance for the distribution and sale of liquor has been made by the executive committee of the League of Oregon Cities, and a model ordinance, prepared by Frank S. Grant, city attorney for Portland, has been sent out to all cities. It was announced at Eugene this week by Herman Kehrl, executive secretary of the league and director of the University of Oregon bureau of municipal research.

"It is now apparent that the Oregon liquor control act (Knox law) can not be placed in full operation for another four to eight weeks," Mr. Kehrl says in a letter accompanying the model resolution. "This means that if there is to be an orderly procedure for the distribution and sale of liquor during the interim that procedure must be set up by the cities."

"The purpose of the recommended ordinance is to place the regulation of the Knox law into effect immediately under a city ordinance. Rules and regulations proposed are identical with those of the Knox law, except for the sale of liquor of over 14 per cent alcoholic content. It is proposed that the city council shall act as agent for the commission during the interim."

"If this ordinance is adopted, dealers and merchants immediately may begin operating under regulations identical with those of the Knox law, and would thus be spared the necessity of qualifying under some temporary city ordinance at variance with the Knox law."

Mr. Kehrl also points out that should the Knox law be held invalid in any way, cities with the proposed ordinance would continue to operate under the law's provisions, and thus would not be plunged into confusion.

Christmas day guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Wright Sr., on Lake road were Mr. and Mrs. George Wright and sons of Hillside, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Pritzloff and daughter, Dorothy, and Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Wright Jr. and daughter.

HITEON.

Zell G. Struthers. Miss Harriet Campbell, who has been visiting in California, returned home Saturday.

Christmas was quietly spent here. A number of families enjoyed their dinners at home.

Miss Dorothea Struthers was a Christmas day guest at the A. C. Robinson home in Portland.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Haggerty were dinner guests Christmas day at the home of their daughter, Mrs. N. P. Nielsen at Tigard.

The telephone crew were repairing damage done to their lines here last week. While it has been plenty wet and all creeks are running over, no great damage was done by the recent storm.

Mrs. Myra Metzentine was rushed to the Hillsboro hospital last week suffering from appendicitis. It was not found necessary to operate and she is improving at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hines.

Hiteon school children, directed by their able teacher, Miss Esther Schrader, entertained parents and friends Thursday evening with a splendid program of Christmas plays, recitations and songs. Santa distributed gifts and treats afterwards. No school will be held until January 2.

Seed Cleaning Method Devised.

When ladak alfalfa seed grown by J. B. Weaver of Union county was found to be so badly mixed with mustard seed that it was impossible to reclean it, he called upon County Agent H. G. Avery and the farm crops department at Oregon State college to assist him with his problem. With their help Mr. Weaver constructed an inclined plane over which the seed was run in a thin stream. The mustard seed, being round, moved faster than the alfalfa. Two narrow bins at the bottom of the plane caught the seed. Mr. Weaver considers the method an entire success and by several runs on this apparatus expects to remove all mustard seed and thus reclaim some valuable ladak seed otherwise lost.

STEADY HEAT fewer colds... ask your doctor! Any doctor will tell you that if your home is too cold one minute and too hot the next, it's a wonder you and your family are subject to colds. To be healthful, your home should be an even 70° all winter. This constant temperature is possible when you burn Gasco Briquets—requiring no special equipment of any kind. Two 2-minute trips to your furnace daily is all the care this fuel needs. It requires no shaking or banking. Yet it burns s-l-o-w-l-y and thoroughly with the drafts completely closed—and leaves no ashes or clinkers to be carried out. Gasco Briquets are entirely combustible. Thus, besides eliminating doctor bills, Gasco Briquets will also save money on your fuel. Compare their advantages with those of any other solid fuel: 1. A 100% petroleum fuel—ideal for furnace, fireplace or stove. (No special equipment needed.) 2. Highest heat content of any solid fuel. 3. No banking or shaking! Hold fire all day or night! 4. No ashes or clinkers to carry out. 5. One ton of Briquets gives as much heat as two cords of first-growth fir; costs less per season than best Utah and Wyoming coal. Ask the dealer in your city for a 100-lb. trial sack at the introductory price of $1.00. GASCO PETROLEUM Briquets
