Queen Joy Reigns Over "Happy Days"

The Royal Court Is Chosen By Combination of Drawing and Voting

ARE FOUR PRINCESSES

R. Frank Peters Gives Principal Address at Patriotic Exercises

It was peculiarly fitting that Joy should reign queen over the Happy Days celebration held for an Oregon Washington county at Hillsboro, July 1 to 4. The princesses for the occasion were Thelma Munoy, nominated by the Laurel Ladies club, Mabel Nelson, a resident of Buxton but nominated by the Kansas City Farmers' Union, Wilma Schults nominated by the Forest Grove Chamber of Commerce, and Verna Mae Walters, nominated by the Cedar Mills Farmers' Union.

Joy Hulette, who was Queen of the "Happy Days" was sponsored by the Leaverton tent of the Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War, of which she is a member. She is a grand-daughter of a Civil War veteran, and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Hulette, editor and publishers of the Beaverton Review.

Queen Joy was elected by her princesses when the vote was taken as to who should rule over the celebration, at the dance given on the evening of June 30. The choosing was done rather nicely. All the candidates, some twenty five in number, congregated in the big pavilion in Shute park, and with an escort of their own choosing, marched once around the vast floor of the auditorium, then formed in a long row on one side of the room. Envelopes, sealed, were placed in a bowl on the other side of the big room, and each candidate, beginning at the end of the row, was required to go alone to the bowl and select the envelope which she thought the lucky one. These envelopes were all alike without identifying marks of any sort on the outside. As the candidate marched back to her station she held the envelope out in front of her and held it there until all the candidates were again in the row with their selection of the envelopes in their hand in front of them.

When the last candidate took her place in the row, they were instructed to open the envelopes, and those containing the words, "You are one of the winners...." were told to step out in front of the line. These five retired to the dressing room and proceeded to vote for the queen. Miss Hulette received four votes, and was thereby elected to reign over the next four days of fun and frolic which always characterize the modern celebration.

Queen Joy, with her princesses, their fathers and mothers, and a few invited guests were royally entertained by the Hillsboro C of C at a banquet Tuesday evening, preceding the coronation ceremonies. Earl Snell, republican nominee for secretary of state, and his wife were among those present.

The coronation, which took place at 9:00 p.m. Tuesday, was a ceremonious affair. Earl Snell of Arlington placed the crown on the Queen's head. The Beaverton High School Band played for the professional. The Queen's ball, following the coronation, was enjoyed by a large number of people.

The fourth of July patriotic activities under the direction of the Hillsboro post of the American Legion, were opened at 9:30 a.m. in the open air pavilion. R. Frank Peters was the main speaker. Verne McKinney read the Declaration of Independence. Mrs. H. H. Stannard of the Women's Relief corps directed a patriotic pageant. Group singing and patriotic numbers were arranged by Mrs. V. W. Gardner. Surviving members of the G.A.R., and the royal court, were also on the platform.

The day was ideal, and thousands of people spent a happy day, picnicking in the beautiful grove. Dancing in the large pavilion continued throughout the day and into the early morning hours.

BLACK WIDOW SPIDER FOUND IN BEAVERTON

W. B. Adams, who has been living on 8th and Watson Sts., brought into the Review office Thursday, a dead black widow spider. Mrs. Adams found it in a corner of the fruit closet which is in the house. They said it fought vehemently when they disturbed it. They killed it with gasoline fumes and put it in a glass jar.

FREQUENT WARNINGS ARE NOW JUSTIFIED

The frequent warnings issued by the Oregon insurance department against the public patronizing mail order insurance companies have been justified through recent action taken California against the National Security Life Association and its officers of Beverly Hills.

A. H. Averill, insurance commissioner, states that he has received information that nine Beverly Hills business men were recently arrested, charged with inducing the public of many hundreds of thousands of dollars. The nine were secretly indicted by the federal grand jury on June 20th and included A. L. Rose, president of the National Security Life Association of Beverly Hills, a holding company controlling eleven or more subsidiary companies; Donald L. Rose, vice president; Sidney G. Rose, vice president; M. Rosenthal, vice president; D. S. Kent, secretary treasurer; B. Kent, cashier; B. Abrams, secretary; Arnold D. Krieger, attorney; and George H. Law, medical examiner.

The indictment, containing nine counts, charged that the defendants issued policies against illness and accident at a premium cost of $1 per $3000 of protection and then "through subterfuge" refused to pay their obligations.

Postal inspectors said that the concern operated through advertising in 1700 newspapers throughout the United States. They claimed operations formerly were conducted from Chicago.

Associations said to have been controlled by the parent company include the Sterling Underwriters, Inc.; Sterling Penny-Day, Ltd.; Sterling Penny-Day Policies; Sterling Associations; U. S. Life Association; Sterling Security Life Association; Pacific National Life Association; and Guaranty Union Life Insurance Company.

The indictments charged that the accused would evade payment in case of illness and accident by declaring the policies void by reason of disease of the policyholder, or a like pretext.

The public is again warned against patronizing mail order insurance companies, most of which have limited financial responsibility. Commissioner Averill says they have no representatives in Oregon on whom legal service can be obtained in case of dispute of liability claims. They contribute nothing to the financial welfare of the state through maintaining an office therein, and their first aim seems to be to collect as much as possible from the public and give as little as possible in return.

Many Oregon citizens have unsettled claims against this type of company which they have been unable to collect.

TOMATO BLIGHT IS SERIOUS IN COUNTY

Tomato blight has apparently hit tomato patches all around Washington county rather seriously during the last 10 days. Numerous inquiries as to control have been received by county agent, Wm. F. Cyrus. No satisfactory control has been developed so far as is definitely known. Various remedies have been suggested and occasionally somebody has heard about something or other being effective, but so far most of these remedies have not worked out successfully.

Blight is a virus infection which is transmitted only by the beet leaf hopper. According to information concerning the disease, the virus is carried over the winter in the bodies of these leaf hoppers. No satisfactory control for the insects has been developed. About all the gardeners can do is to pull up the diseased plants as they appear and destroy them. This is not a definite control or even a preventative of spread in all cases, but it may help somewhat in keeping down development through an entire planting. Even plants that have made considerable growth and are thrifty may be attacked and while not killed outright they stop growing, the leaves turn yellow, and what fruit there may be on them ripens prematurely and is of very poor quality. Anything that creates as disagreeable a condition as possible for the hoppers may be of benefit. Sulphur, lime, Bordeaux spray might all be used as repellants, but it should be definitely understood that these things are only suggested as possibilities. They might all prove ineffective so far as spread of the disease is concerned.

Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Kellington and daughter, Joyce spent the week end with Mrs. Lucy Sigler at Hillsboro. Joyce remained until after the fourth.

MOTT BUSY ON PROBLEMS OF DISTRICT

Congressman James W. Mott, since the adjournment of Congress has been busy visiting the various Governmental Departments in behalf of problems in the First Congressional District. His conferences at the Public Works Administration yesterday revealed that projects in the amount of $800,000,000 have been found eligible for allotments and that the total appropriation available for such projects will be approximately $300,000,000. Congressman Mott is making every effort to have allocations made to projects in his District which have already been approved.

Mr. Mott also conferred with officials of the Post Office and Treasury Departments having jurisdiction over proposed Federal Buildings. He was informed that a list of eligible projects was in process of preparation and that it would be released within the next week. He was assured that Oregon would be given a proportionate share of the public buildings appropriation.

The Congressman will leave by automobile the first of next week for the west and will probably reach Oregon about the middle of July, at which time his office will be open at Salem, Oregon. All communications should be addressed to Mr. Mott at Salem, Oregon.

SEATTLE TO BE HOST TO CONVENTION

The Annual National Convention of the Holstein-Friesian Association of America, the largest pure bred livestock recording Association in the world, will be held in Seattle on June 5, 1935. This will be the first time that any National dairy breeding organization has ever held its convention on the Pacific Coast. The 1935 annual meeting will be the Golden Anniversary of the organization of this Association, and plans are now being outlined to make the Seattle convention one of the most outstanding meetings in the history of the Association, both from an educational and an entertainment standpoint.

The Pacific Coast and inter-mountain states Holstein breeders have made a most outstanding record of performance from a production standpoint. The National Holstein Association recognizes 42 World's butterfat records in its various divisions and the Pacific Coast and inter-mountain states now hold exactly one-third of all these records.

A summary of all 365 day butterfat production records, complete to December 31, 1933, reveals that 35,131 Holstein cows and heifers of all ages have been tested in the yearly division and have produced an average annual production of 571 pounds of fat and 16,777 pounds of milk. This tremendous production of the breed can be more readily appreciated by comparing it with the Annual average production of 185 pounds of butterfat of the average cow in America. Since 1911 more than 200 cows in the breed have produced over 1000 pounds of butterfat in a year. This is four times as many cows in this one breed that have produced 1000 pounds of fat in a year as that of all other dairy breeds combined.

More than two and a half million Holsteins have been registered since the organization of the Association in 1885. The largest number registered in any one year in the history of the Association was 142,000 in 1933.

All Holstein breeders in the West should begin now to make their plans to attend the Seattle Convention. Without a doubt it will be one of the greatest conventions in the 50 years of the history of the Association. Holstein breeders wishing to obtain additional information on the convention should see Mr. Wm. F. Cyrus, County Agricultural Agent or write H. A. Mathiesen, Western Representative of the National Holstein Association at the Citizens Bank Building, Portland, Oregon.

Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Shaw, Miss Rhoda Thynge, and Miss Jean Klein enjoyed a picnic at Rippling Waters, and golfing at Forest Hills Sunday.

NATIONAL EXPERTS TO CONFER AT MEET

The first practical conference on higher education in relation to present national and world conditions, scheduled for the University of Oregon for July 11, 12, 13, and 14, will not only draw a number of authorities in political, educational and economic fields, but has already attracted national attention. It was announced recently by Dr. C. V. Boyer, president of the university. Proceedings of the meeting have already been requested by a number of periodicals and by educators and others in many parts of the United States.

A special invitation to attend this conference and take part in discussions has been extended to the staff of the Beaverton Review by Dr. Boyer. Many of the meetings will be open to the general public, and persons interested are urged to attend.

The session, which Dr. Loyel declares will be a "working conference," will bring together experts in several fields who will deliver addresses, lead discussion groups and take an active part in the event. Forums to be held each day will include topics of responsibility of higher education to students, to commonwealth, in adult education, and for social planning. Summaries of these will be given by the chairman on the final day.

One of the outstanding speakers will be Dr. James W. Angell, professor of economics at Columbia University, who will talk on "Gold, Banks and the New Deal." Dr. Angell is the author of several well known works on international finance, among them being "The Theory of International Prices" and "The Financial Foreign Policy of the United States."

A new note in both higher education and politics will be sounded by Dr. Frederick M. Davenport, congressman from New York, who will speak on "The Importance of the Educated Politician in the New Order." Throughout his long career in politics, Dr. Davenport has sought to interest intelligent, university trained young men in the public affairs of this country, and is actively identified with foundations and other groups having this as an objective. He will describe some of these organizations during his address and will also outline the work of a number of college and university men now in Washington.

From his position in Washington as chief of the higher education division, Dr. F. J. Kelly has had ample opportunity to observe this field and its developments in all parts of the country. For this reason his address on "Present Educational Trends" will be watched with great interests by experts all over the United States.

An experiment that may vitally affect higher education in this country, the general college of Minnesota, will be described by Dr. F. L. Hovde, assistant director of this institution. The work of this liberal school is being watched closely by educational authorities throughout the country.

The conference will bring together a number of outstanding men from the Northwest, who will deliver addresses, act as chairman of meetings or head discussion groups. Included are Dr. Boyer, Dr. W. J. Kerr, chancellor of higher education for Oregon; Dr. Norman F. Coleman, Reed College; Burt Brown Barker, vice-president of the university; Willard L. Marks, chairman of the Oregon State Board of Higher Education; George W. Peavy, president of Oregon State College; J. A. Churchill, president of

City Council Holds Regular Meeting

The Deed To the Hocken Property Comes Up For Discussion

BILLS ORDERED PAID

SERA Projects Discussed, But No Application For Funds Made

At the regular Council meeting held Monday of this week, there were two of the Councilmen absent on account of not being in the City on that evening. Mr. Livermore was on a vacation and fishing trip and Mr. Barnes was on his way home from the Century of Progress.

The deed to the Hocken property which has been up for consideration before the Council for a number of months, came in for discussion. This property is to be partitioned and M. H. Stevenson who holds tax deeds for a considerable property in that vicinity is to get a part and a right-of-way across to some of his holdings. Discussion of the sale of property which the city bid in some time ago took up a little time, and it was finally decided to have an ordinance framed so that this property might be sold, or at least the city's interest therein disposed of.

Bills aggregating almost $770 were ordered paid, among which we note that for street lighting which amounts to almost $90.00, for power, a little over $75, and for pipe and supplies some $64.

SERA projects were discussed, but no application for any of the funds was decided upon. Application may, or may not be made later.
