Close Harmony Comes To The Table
Harmony has come into the kitchen. Not the musical kind of harmony evoked by barber-shop quartets—although the current fad for these songs may yet have its effect on the home—but the kind of harmony defined as "an agreeable blending...to produce a pleasing whole."

The manufacturers of kitchen equipment, the makers of furnishings, have seen to it that our kitchens present a pleasing whole. And now the clever "kitchen rangers" are mastering harmony in foods.

Harmony on the table may be in the choice of the foods themselves or in the combinations. Some foods "get along like a song" together, and some do not. Again, harmony may be in the texture or in color or in the mingling of flavors. It may be in the seasoning, or the garnish, and it may lie in its opposite—contrast!

The right kind of food harmonies make you emulate Tommy Tucker of nursery fame, and knowing how may even inspire a little old-fashioned singing at your work ("Home Sweet Home" or "Billy Boy" for instance).

Old standbys point the way and show that harmony is founded on sound nutritional practice. Apples are good with pork because of pork's fatness; duck demands oranges for the same reason. Broccoli's green blandness calls for the tartness and the yellowness of Hollandaise. Soft, white cream cheese goes with firm, brown chewy dates. Crisp brown waffles are better because of golden syrup. Crisp cereal and creamy bananas were "made for each other." Let these be your guide, and try the combinations listed here.

Stuffed Pear Salad

A bland canned pear topped with cream mayonnaise is pallid and soft. But add dates to it and it becomes colorful, chewy, good.

- 12 canned pear halves
- 12 dates
- 1/2 pkg. cream cheese
- 12 nutmeats or bits of preserved ginger

2 tbsps. fruit juice or cream
Fruit salad dressing
Stuff the dates with the cheese which has been moistened with the syrup drained from the pears or cream. Arrange two pear halves on lettuce on individual salad plates. Place a stuffed date in the cavity of each pear. Press a nut meat or a bit of preserved ginger into the cheese. Serve with fruit salad dressing or cream mayonnaise.

Brown Bread

Serve brown bread with—you guessed it—baked beans!

- 1 cup wholewheat flour
- 2 cups wheat flour
- 1 tsp. baking powder
- 3/4 cup dark corn syrup
- 2 cups sour milk
- 1 cup flaked bran
- 1 1/2 tps. soda
- 2 tsp. salt

The Senate wants to fix it this way for next year: When you pay your income tax you add 10 per cent to the bill for tips to veterans and officeholders.

Knowing little boy: "Yes, miss, wherever woman goes."

A woman-writer mentions that evening frocks can be bought on the installment system. Many women seem to be wearing the first installment just now.—Punch

He closed his eyes in ecstasy, And spoke as he started to kiss, "Tis many and many a draught I've had, But not from a mug like this."

Jap Reeves came to town last Saturday, and took us out to dinner. A little blonde waitress stepped up to take the order.

Said she: "I have stewed kidneys, boiled tongue, fried liver and pig's feet."
"Don't tell me your troubles, girlie," says Jap. "Ering me some chicken a la coon."

THE BIG PARADE

—That Nobody Ever Sees

took place last night while you were asleep. It started from different places and passed down different streets, all over the country—thousands of wagons, thousands of horses, thousands of men. It was carrying milk from the nation's farms to the nation's homes.

It happens every night, rain or shine. It is the big parade, bigger than a parade by the United States Army. And it must never cease, because it is the convoy of an essential food, because it provides a market for one of agriculture's most important products.

The American people drink about 50 million quarts of milk a day. A large part of that is delivered to the doorsteps by the distributor. He has to prepare for the parade the night before.

Milk for the cities must be rushed by train or truck from inspected farms to country receiving stations. It must be weighed, tested, cooled, shipped to the city plant. There it must usually be pasteurized, bottled by machines in sterilized bottles, sent out to your door for your breakfast.

That's the parade that you never see; loaded with millions of little white bottles, inspected, guaranteed; the greatest package delivery system in the world.
