Crow Turns Errand Boy

Listen now as Dr. Maria White tells of the big black crow that saved the day for a family of three.

Dr. White furloughs on a ranch out from Oregon City when in America. For years there in India she has been praying down out of heaven the support for her hospital and orphanage, into which she has received hundreds of widows and little ones—and remember: "In India, better be a dog than a widow." So Dr. White's care is for the ones deep in woe.

But to this big black crow. Perched on a near-by tree, he must be watched lest he swoop down and grab from the platter a tid-bit when dinner is set out on the upper gallery (porch) during the heated spell. And one day he did just this; he certainly did in spite of all their watchfulness. But instead of flying back to the branch to caw-caw his derision, Mr. Crow did a new thing. He flew away out of sight, carrying the meat.

Scene two. Off on a side-path some miles away, there stands a woman and two little children. She had heard of Dr. White and had begun a weary trek. Finally, weak from starvation, unable to go on, she sinks down and gives the cry of the desperate—"White man's God, help me get my little ones there before I die."

What is that promise? "Before they call I will answer; and while they are yet speaking, I will hear." Just like in the Bible it happens now. A crow suddenly swoops down and drops a piece of meat at the side of this woman and in the strength of the morsel she moves on to that citadel of love where tender hands undertook for her need. Then came her story of how the white man's God came in at the moment. Dr. White, veteran, beloved, trusted on both sides of the ocean gives us this to declare that God still lives and hears and is mighty to save. "Faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the word of God"; therefore, "Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel to every creature." George N. Taylor, Beaverton, Oregon. p3. adv.

BEAVERTON REVIEW

Beaverton's Home Newspaper

First National Bank

Located at First National Bank Bldg. Phone ATwater 7141, Portland, Oregon. Has been faithfully serving people of Oregon is a pillar of strength in Financial Circles of this section—Under guidance of men of rectitude and well known financial ability.

One of the oldest and most reliable banks in the community is this well known institution and it is a striking example of substantial and conservative progress. Its officers have been many years in the service of the people in local financial matters, being most efficient bankers in point of service in this section. The wide experience thus gained has added to the growth of the community and to the attractiveness of its service to the people. Familiar with the needs and demands of the general public in this section of the country by reason of their long identification with the banking activities of the country, it is not strange that the First National Bank in Portland has become one of the most popular of the reliable and conservative financial depositories of this section.

A special feature of this bank is the saving department. One dollar will start an account in their interest department and the account will be given the same attention as though you were depositing thousands of dollars. Once you begin this bank has left nothing undone in its efforts to make banking easy for its patrons.

Any business or profession which renders modern, reliable and efficient service to its patrons will progress with its environment. This is quite true of the banking business and is particularly true of this admirable bank. So well have they served the community that they have provided for every convenience for their customers.

Business men with puzzling problems, and business women or home managers will appreciate the cordial atmosphere to be found at the First National Bank of Portland. Yet will approve not only what they do for you, but also the spirit behind each operation.

We are glad to compliment this admirable financial institution upon its splendid record of achievement, upon the great success its customers have in the business world, and upon the commanding position this admirable financial institution occupies in the financial circle of this part of the country. adv
