It's no use, boys. The fastest runner in the world recently got married!

It looks as though the alphabet bureaus were intended to help the lawyers, after all.

We still maintain that paying cash for what you get is the best way to keep out of debt.

What difference does it make if interest rates are cheap to the chap who can't borrow any money?

The fellow who thinks a "soak the rich" policy wouldn't hurt him is about the most deluded fellow on earth.

We wonder what those people who a few months ago were worrying about inflation are worrying about now.

A scientist says that child psychology rules the world. That's why politicians always have a big supply of taffy.

The difference between seeking business and getting business consists many times, in the way advertising is used.

One of these days the world will be more like you want it to be—but you won't be here to interfere with the way it is run.

Cautious children are putting in some time nowadays finding out what the prospects are for a full stocking next Christmas.

Lapses of attention while driving in traffic have caused more accidents than all the speeding ever practiced on the highways.

Is this fracas over in the old world going to amount to something or is it just another correspondence school for politicians?

By the middle of October there will be no more Liberty's; Morgenthau can now borrow money at a cheaper interest rate than they bear.

At twenty we don't care what the world thinks of us; at thirty we wonder what the world is thinking of us; but at sixty we know it never did think of us.

The Government Bum

I would rather be a government bum than anything else I know, And wear good clothes and drive a car

And take in every show.

I'll buy the booze and a stack of blues,

And plenty of white chips too, And smoke cigars and tailor mades, And gamble the whole night thru.

I'll sign for relief as an unemployed, And have some one rustle me work. It must be a job for the F. R. A., So it matters not if I shirk.

For the boss is a bum the same as I, So what can he say or do? If he fired all us bums he'd be out of a job

And you bet he knows it too.

We start in the spring when the weather is fair

And work the summer through, On forest work or public roads, Or whatever they can think of to do.

It's 30 hours we work each week; The rest of the time we rest

And warming a chair in a pastime Is where I'm at my best.

When winter comes, we hit some town

And ask for Red Cross aid, And get a credit at some store, For our bills by the county are paid.

Never again will I work on a farm— Where they work ten hours a day; Shoveling ditch or building fence, Or pitching the dusty hay.

No more chores for me, I vow, No horses to curry and feed; Never again will I sloop a hog; Uncle Sam gives me all that I need.

No taxes to pay, no rent to dig up, No worries near or far, I'll just save enough money from my next job

To buy me a brand new car. —Grange Bulletin

Miss Gara Gilchrist of Great Falls, Montana, visited Thursday and Friday with her cousins, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. McKell and Miss Juliette Carter.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Grauer and Floyd Hayes of Forest Grove went on a deer hunt on the Trask river Sunday and were successful in bagging a deer.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

SUNSETS

Sunset pictures add interest to your snapshot album.

DID you ever stop to realize how considerate Mother Nature is of the amateur photographer? Month after month she changes the appearance of landscapes, trees, shrubs and even the skies, giving us something new to snap almost every day.

She is now slowly shifting her scenery and preparing for her autumn display of new flowers, colorful foliage and last but not least—beautiful clouded skies to serve us with fascinating backgrounds for landscapes and sunset snapshots.

Don't overlook the opportunity to capture a few of these beautiful sunsets for your snapshot album. They add interest to your picture collections and usually bring that highly prized remark from your friends—"There's a beautiful picture. How did you take it?"

An artistic sunset picture possibility is not waiting for every night in the week so don't wait out the door after reading this. Expect to get one. Maybe you'll find it is doubtful. A good sunset picture is just one of those things you watch and wait for.

You will find that a foreground of water or a background of hills will add much to the interest and artistic appearance of your sunset. By all means wait until there are clouds, for you will find that the clouds "make the picture."

No set rule can be made on the exposure time for sunset pictures but generally you will get a properly exposed negative if you set the diaphragm at f/16 and the shutter speed at 1/100 of a second. This setting of the diaphragm and shutter depends much on the brightness of your setting sun.

Believe it or not, attractive "moonlight" scenes can be made by sunlight. This is best done during the sunset hour and when there are masses of clouds floating in the western sky which create lighting conditions favorable for picturing "moonlight" scenes. The sun can be wholly or partially obscured and if the light is red, yellow or orange a snapshot exposure with a medium stop opening can be given.

To secure a night effect from a negative exposed in this manner, it must be printed long enough so that all but the highlights will be dark. If you don't do your own printing explain what effect you want to your finisher.

You will get a lot of pleasure taking these pictures and the result will be well worth your time and effort.

JOHN VAN GUILDER.

Saved At The Door

A pastor and fourteen of his people on the platform and this a hot August night when any think away from gospel work. All giving ringing testimonies, for Christ is very real and present to this group.

As the crowd passed out the door, a worker layd one of them with, "Are you saved?" The man said he was not and before the session had closed, he received Christ for salvation.

Next night this new convert was back. He had questions. For long, it seems, he had been searching the Book under deep conviction. He wanted to be saved; he had prayed and agonized in vain for peace of mind and for the sign he must have as proof that he was saved. He heard that one man had nail-prints in his hands; something visible like that, was his thought. Then came the night at the Mission when Christ became his Saviour. And now that he was saved, what about the sign? Was he saved after all?

The Coast country is full of this thing; no sign, no salvation. The new convert is taught to look away from the Bible to seek a thrill. If he gets no thrill, no sign, no visions, no upheaval, then no salvation. "God said it; Christ did it; I believe it, and that settles it," no longer honored. Saved by Christ's atoning death, sign or no sign, is no longer enough. There must be a sign. This man in the next half hour of going back and forth through the Bible came out of the fog and made a prayer. He now took God's word for it.

Next day he told one of the Mission converts of the new joy he had and that "everything now looks different".

"Keep your nose in the Book and get up and testify and you will get strong," the missionary told him.
