Government Job Propaganda of Civil Service School Hoodwinks Job Seekers

Job seekers, and others desirous of finding something that pays better than their current employment, are falling easy prey to an insidious brand of civil service school propaganda. Prospective students are being led to believe that government jobs are plentiful and easy to get, and that, unlike other fields of livelihood, there are no "rainy days"—no hard times—for those who work for Uncle Sam. The advertising of such civil service coaching schools has featured pictures of Uncle Sam; played up the words "Government Jobs"; listed an assortment of apparently available civil service positions; stressed the security and permanence of such positions; and exhorted prospects to rush in their inquiries on how to get these jobs.

So far as the "no hard times" propaganda is concerned, adverse conditions have not only occasioned indefinite postponement of many examinations, but drastic lay-off of thousands of government employees, and the actual elimination of entire departments. Recent government bulletins have carried warn-

DR. LUKE TELLS IT

"All Christmas cheer," this physician and writer of the Gospel, would say, "all cheer runs back to that day when the angel Gabriel was sent from heaven to a young Jewish girl named Mary up in Nazareth."

Mary was to wed Joseph, of the line of King David and Gabriel came to her with:—

"Hail thou that art highly favored, the Lord is with thee: blessed art thou among women."

When Mary heard these words she knew not what to make of it. Then the angel made known God's purpose—

"Fear not Mary; for you have found favor with God and you are to become a mother and bring forth a Son."

Then Gabriel told her of this Son—He is to be great; and be called the Son of the Highest; the Lord God is to give him the throne of his father David. He is to rule over the house of Jacob forever and of his kingdom there is to be no end.

Now Mary raises a question—How can this thing be since I do not have to do with a man in the sense of becoming a mother? So she asks.

Gabriel tells her: The natural way is to be set aside. The child is not to have a human father. Of all born of woman, he alone is to stand upon this earth with but one human parent; his mother. And who shall be his father? It is God.

"The Holy Spirit shall come upon thee, and the power of the Highest shall overshadow thee, therefore that holy thing that shall be called the Son of God." So declares the angel. Human on his mother's side; God on his Father's side; the God-Man. So He came, born of the Virgin; the second person of the God-head. He walked in a human body for a day here on earth; He knows the feel of our lives in their ups and downs. And when the going is hard, He says—"Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden and I will give you rest."

ings and urged investigation. One says: "There is reason to believe that agents of some coaching schools encourage clients to pay for training for examinations which are not likely to be held for a long time.... Authentic information regarding pending examinations may be obtained, without cost, from the Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C., or from any of its authorized representatives." Similar warnings have been given wide publicity by the Bureau, thru its radio broadcasts.

Complaints received by the Portland Better Business Bureau disclose high-pressure tactics and deception upon the part of coaching school salesmen. Complainants advise that they were led to believe that the coaching school was either connected in some way with the government, or enjoyed such close contact and "inside information" that it knew of coming examinations before they were officially announced. They were told that such and such an examination would be held within ninety days, or upon a definite date. The specified time had passed; promised examinations had not been held, nor even announced; and their complaints to the school had been ignored or disparaged. The widespread use of so-called "Refund Agreements" has fostered more misrepresentation. Students have been assured that in paying for one of these coaching courses, they simply couldn't lose. They thought they were going to get jobs within a year, or their money back. They found that the "Refund Agreement" had a catch in it, and the student is invariably required to try the first examination covering the training for which he has paid. In other words, if no government examination is held for a period of years, the job seeker in the meantime can expect no refund, regardless of how dissatisfied he may become with his training or his treatment.

In view of the volume of inquiries and complaints now being received, the Portland Better Business Bureau emphasizes the following: (1) None of these coaching schools has any connection with the government on "inside information" on examinations or appointments. (2) None of their so-called "refund agreements" actually agree to refund your money one year from the day you begin, or complete, your course. They are as indefinite as the indefinite date of the next government examination. (3) Government job-seekers should consult civil service authorities as to the prospect of future examinations, before paying money for any coaching course. (4) Statements by salesmen, at variance with the above facts, should be reported promptly.
