"Quickies" From Movies Make Life a Pleasure for Kitchen-Stars

Hollywood gives a name to our easy dishes: "quickies"! In the mad movie business the term "quickie" is applied to a picture which is "quickly made at a good profit to the producer, for a rapid turnover". Isn't that exactly the definition to apply to little dishes, made in a jiffy, eaten in a wink?

"Easy come, easy go" is the motto of the quickie-maker. Who cares that the avid family gobles every crumb if it was no trouble to prepare? Not a single mother's daughter!

If you are self-conscious about the movie term, discard it at the first signs of coyness. Call them emergency dishes; pinch-hitters, easy-doers or just "simple dishes". No matter, at a jiffy with the choice selection given here.

Here's the kind of thing we mean:

Jelly and egg white make frosting; melted butter, confectioner's sugar, a little cream and flavoring make frosting too! Melted chocolate peppermints make dessert sauce (mmmh!); crushed macaroons, crushed pineapple, and chopped cherries become a company dessert when added to whipped cream. Add 1/2 cup toasted nuts to heated maple corn syrup for a luscious sauce for ice cream. Whipped cream and applesauce are just made for hot griddle-bread. Topping for Devil's Food cake is different when it's made by adding one and one-half cups confectioner's sugar and 1/2 teaspoon vanilla to a package of "cream-ed" cream cheese!

Here's a "quickie" which sacrifices none of its goodness to quick preparation.

Rice-Meat Patties

1 2/3 cups cooked rice
2 tbsps. chopped onion
1 lb. ground beef
1 cup evaporated milk
2/3 cup water
1 egg
2/3 tsp. salt
Combine ingredients and mold into patties. Place in greased pan; add 2 tbsps. boiling water. Bake in hot oven (450° F.) for 15 minutes. Serves 6.

Bananas au Rhum

Bananas, partially ripe
Butter, melted
Powdered sugar
Rhum Sauce

Allow 1 or 2 bananas for each serving. Peel bananas and place into a shallow, well-buttered baking pan. Brush bananas with melted butter and sprinkle lightly with powdered sugar. Bake 5 to 6 minutes or until delicately browned. Garnish with orange slices and cherries. Serve very hot with Rhum sauce made this way:

Mix 1 cup sugar and 2 tbsps. cornstarch thoroughly. Add 1 cup boiling water. Cook mixture over direct heat, stirring constantly, until it thickens, then cook 20 minutes in double boiler. Add 1/2 cup rum flavoring and sufficient red vegetable coloring to make the sauce an attractive pink. Serves 6.

"Giddy-up"

1/2 pkg. dates
1 cup marshmallows
1/2 cup nut meats
1 cup heavy cream
1/2 tsp. vanilla
Few grains salt
Cut dates and marshmallows with wet scissors. Chop nuts coarsely. Beat cream, add vanilla and salt and fold in dates, marshmallows and nuts.

Jiffy Muffins

2 cups flour
4 tbsps. baking powder
3/4 tsp. salt
2 tbsps. sugar
1 egg
2 tbsps. liquid shortening
1 cup milk
Mix and sift dry ingredients. Beat egg, stir in shortening, and add 1/4 cup milk and beat half minute. Add rest of milk and stir in dry ingredients all at once. Fill oiled muffin pans three-quarters full. Bake 20 minutes in moderate oven, 400° F.

Baked Peaches

Peel peaches, cut in halves, remove pits. Place in shallow baking dish. Dot with butter, few gratings of nutmeg and a few drops lemon juice. Pour in small amount dark corn syrup to fill cavity of each peach.

Bake in moderate oven (350° F.) 15 to 20 minutes.

DAD'S STORY

Perhaps the pump register was off. Perhaps our speedometer slipped a cog or two. But those two gallons had brought us seventy-two miles if our instruments were right. We've marvelled at it many a time but have arrived at no satisfactory solution. I state but the facts; only two gallons would go in the tank and the speedometer registered seventy-two miles since our previous fill up. Believe it or not.

That afternoon we lost our ax. Dropped it off or perhaps failed to pick it up when we left in the morning. We were in a bad way. Drove after dark and lost our road markers. Camped beside the road in front of some Indian shacks and Tina went foraging for an ax. She found one and no one showing up next morning at the shacks, we loaded the ax on the Ford and went on our way.

That noon we ate dinner beside the Missouri at Moberly. The banks were bad-quickies and one of the children got stuck and we had to hustle to extricate her. Did she scream! It must have been the night of the fifth that we got to Aberdeen South Dakota.

We made camp just east of the town. Nice, starry night, we spread the tent down on the ground and went to bed on it. Big rain drops woke us up, but we crawled under the covers and went to sleep again. Then the covers began to leak through and we got up just as it was breaking day, between three and four in the morning. Some farm buildings were close and we routed the folks out and asked to be let into the barn until after the storm had passed. They were kindness itself. Invited us into the house, got breakfast for us and got our blankets dry. Still it rained on. Noon came and we were still there.

After noon it sort of cleared up and we loaded up and started on. We offered to pay the folks but they would not take a cent. When we got into the road it was like trying to drive through mush; the running boards kept the Ford from sinking down to China. We peddled along till night when we drove into a farm yard and requested permission to make camp. The family also invited us into the

FIRE PREVENTION

A News Headline in the Making

Who wouldn't like to have his name on the front page of the home-town paper and those of the surrounding towns, woven into a story of some big, worthwhile accomplishment.

But suppose the story told of a disastrous fire—a fire which spread to other property, perhaps made families homeless, some of them penniless, with helpless children clinging to despairing parents, wondering what it's all about.

In this picture you see the accusing scar of a previous rubbish fire, and in spite of it, a second pile, awaiting the searching finger of fire, the stray spark, the discarded match or cigarette.

Rubbish and litter is not only a serious fire hazard. It is an offense against public welfare with which no good citizen wants to be charged.

house but we had made such a mess in the previous house that we declined and they allowed us in the barn loft. However, they insisted on our doing our cooking in the kitchen range.

Just try getting into a farm-house now along some transcontinental highway! You'll be laughed to scorn. But in 1918 there were no tourist cabins, no camps, no provision made to frisk the last penny from the unsuspecting traveller. Just rough and ready hospitality.

speaking, I will hear." Isaiah 65:24.

Are you burdened?—Do not be over-anxious about anything, but by prayer and earnest pleading, together with thanksgiving, let your request be unreservedly made known in the presence of God. And then the peace of God which transcends all our powers of thought, will be a garrison to guard your hearts and minds in unison with Christ Jesus.

—Phil. 4:6-7 (Weymouth).

And who can be fruitful in prayer? That man there—He has given God a quit-claim deed to himself and his all. Whatever remains of his life here on earth, all given over. His abilities, treasures, plans—all surrendered. Every sin confessed; every worry and burden turned over to the Lord; this is to ABIDE. "If ye ABIDE in Me and My words abide in you, ye shall ask what ye will, and it shall be done unto you."—John 15:7.

Now hear an old-fashioned mother—"Our son had a girl friend who drank and whose people served liquor in the home. So began to drink. He is at work, earns good money and, at his age, I could only pray. God heard and answered. I saw son quit the fast one and become engaged to marry a fine Christian girl. I credit it all to prayer."

SON QUITS DRINK

When we pray the windows of heaven are opened and blessings wing their way down to make us rich. And to make many another rich too, as we hold their names before the God of all grace. For—"Call unto me, and I will answer thee, and show thee great and mighty things, that thou knowest not."—Jeremiah 33:3.

And when we pray we act as citizens of no mean kingdom. For God ruleth over all the ends of the earth. Out in the Mountains of the Moon in Africa a seller of Bibles and tracts and porters quickens his pace and opens his mouth to speak wondrous things. Surely so—For here at the home-base you were praying. "And it shall come to pass, that before they call I will answer, and while they are yet
