Living Room Transformed By Simple Changes in Lighting

New sparkle and color to furnishings, and new eye-comfort for the family, resulted when the lighting in this living room was modernized.

By Jean Prentice

WHETHER you rent or own your own home, there's no need to have a living room that appears dark and dingy during the evening hours for lack of the few little things that would make it a perfect picture of comfort.

For example, the wall and ceiling paper may be in fair condition, but just a few shades too depressing dark. And the ceiling lighting fixture and wall brackets—are they horrible to look at, and worse for the family to see by?

Don't despair for a moment longer. You needn't go on living in a dreary environment. When you've studied the accompanying illustration and have seen what one ingenious woman accomplished, you'll take new heart.

This home maker called in a home lighting advisor, spent about twenty dollars—and worked wonders. Not only did the changes lighten the walls and banish offending fixtures, but they transferred the emphasis at night from gloom to the charm which lies in the interesting detail and skillful arrangement of the lovely old furnishings. Mere pictures cannot be case of seeing that the room now provides so generously.

How was it done? Well, to start with, the unsightly old wall brackets flanking the map above the mantel were replaced with plastic urns, while the ugly cluster unit in the ceiling was superseded by one of the new, ready-made, modernizing units that has five sockets using 40-watt bulbs and concealed by a 20-inch parchment drum.

Then, an old two-arm bridge lamp that stood behind the rocking chair at the right was ousted in favor of one of the new I.E.S. floor lamps. A similar lamp was placed behind the sofa at left in the picture. Here its flexibility in providing three different amounts of light from the same bulb, a 50-100-150-watt size, is a boon, since it adapts itself easily to any lighting demand, be it for tete-a-tete or knitting! The table lamp ceases to hide its light under a bushel. Its shade was raised, sprayed white on the inside, and equipped with two 75-watt bulbs. And the lighted plastic urn on the book-case adds a finishing touch.

Perhaps light can solve some of your problems as happily as it did those in this room. Why not look into it, and see? Until you do, you'll never really know how attractive and inviting your home can be, nor how much happier you can be in it.

Hints for Homemakers

By Jane Rogers

A old sewing machine can easily be converted into a smart dressing table. Saw a piece of stained wood, obtainable from a lumber dealer, to the right size, nail it to a frame made of 1/2-inch square wood, and cover the entire top with a colorful chintz or other heavy material, taking care to tack it tightly around the edges. Then give it a coat of shellac and you have a serviceable table top. A ruffled skirt should be made of the same material and tacked to the frame. If you wish to use the machine, simply lift off the top and skirt.

Serving a fruit garnish or compote with the meat course adds a pleasing touch to the dinner. It is not only delicious in itself but provides a pleasant contrasting flavor to heavier dishes. Another all-important point for the busy housewife is that such garnishes and compotes are easily and quickly prepared.

Right Out Of The Air

Rudy Vallee's Thursday night Variety Hour is the only two-time winner of the Women's National Radio Committee Award. Radio's star discoverer covered the prize in 1936 and repeated in 1937. Bing Crosby's Music Hall was runner-up this year.

"Grace Moore is the only famous singer who spends two days in the studio rehearsing for a half hour broadcast. Her program is broadcast Saturday night over CBS but Friday and Saturday find her in the studios with Vincent Lopez' orchestra.

"The prize dramatic role on the radio this season went to Josephine Hutchinson when she played opposite Clark Gable in Radio Theatre's production of "Farewell to Arms." This was the first time the Hemingway work had been on the air. Miss Hutchinson had the part Helen Hayes played on the screen.

"That Husband and Wives' forum, conducted by Sedley Brown and Allie Lowe Miles, has counted more than 80,000 letters suggesting questions. It is in its third year, with a new broadcast schedule on the NBC blue network Tuesdays.

"Raymond Paige, musical director of "Hollywood Hotel," does not believe in talking shop during hours of recreation. When one steps on to Paige's 8 metre boat the "Pre-lude," one is greeted with a sign reading "Guests may discuss any subject but MUSIC."

"Phil Baker, famous comic, has a corner on voice impersonations. Agnes Moorehead and Ward Wilson of his cast are able to "take off" forty famous characters.

"His inclusion in the new Sunday You Want to Be an Actor?" on the NBC red network definitely places Edgar Bergen, the ventriloquist, as radio's "man of the year." His rapid rise to radio's top rank, after being discovered by Rudy Vallee, is the outstanding microphone success story since Bob Burns rose to fame.

"Lum and Abner startled the residents of Hollywood on their return from Chicago, by driving along the boulevard in an old fashioned horse drawn buggy.

"Frances Adair, youthful singer, is being presented Tuesday and Saturday nights by Johnny the Call Boy on the two "Johnny Presents" programs—one heard over NBC, Tuesdays and the other over CBS, Saturdays. She is a new-comer in the vocal ranks.

"Phillips Lord is now back on the air with his Sunday "We, The People" show and his Wednesday night "Gang Busters" program, after a vacation.

"Frank Black, noted maestro, is up in the air a great deal of the time because he flies to Chicago for his Monday programs immediately after he concludes his Sunday afternoon broadcasts.

"Now that the program starring Victor Moore and Helen Broderick is being heard Sundays over CBS, Carlton Kaddell is doing the announcing.
