Motoring Humility

The hardest thing in this world to "sell" is humility.

I mean the hardest thing to impart to anybody else is humility.

The very act of trying to give somebody else humility about anything arouses everything else in him BUT HUMILITY.

We are all inclined to shun HUMILITY because it is a virtue that is so close to the weaknesses of cowardice and craven submissiveness. We are all so scared somebody will get a little the better of us, if we give them an inch.

Yet HUMILITY is exactly the quality that humans need a whole lot of, to solve a whole lot of their problems.

We have it in golf and in other sports. We yield. We give the other player the benefit of doubts. We praise his poor shots and discount our own good shots. In other words, we are not scared to be gentlemen.

But when we climb into an automobile, we put a chip on our shoulder and a feather in our cap. We are not going to let anybody slip anything over on us on the road. "Well, who does that so-and-so think he is, trying to beat me to the crossing!"

Nor do we admit for a minute that we may have our driving faults. Nor do we concede that there is a possibility that we MIGHT some day be the cause of an accident.

No, we are the exception to the rule. We are the person who drives fast but drives well. Only dumbbells have smashes.

The sooner we all realize that humbleness and deference and courtesy at the steering wheel are sporting qualities, and the sooner we admit that, even in our hands, an automobile is an instrument capable of dealing out death and disaster if we handle it carelessly or cockily, even for an instant, the sooner we shall learn humility towards other drivers, towards Fate, and towards laws of momentum and centrifugal force, and the sooner will we cut down the motorcar's annual American toll which according to The Travelers Insurance Company, is $6,800 killed and 967,841 injured.

The automobile is a blessing—but a dangerous one. Drive it with great humility in your heart.

Hints for Homemakers
By Jane Rogers

If you are building a bookcase or kitchen cabinet, or want more shelves in an old one, an adjustable shelf arrangement can be made by nailing a piece of corrugated tin roofing on each side of the bookcase or cabinet, with the corrugations running horizontally. If the span of the shelves is not more than 18 to 24 inches, shelves of heavy tempered pressed wood can be cut to size and placed at any desired level.

Light-Conditioning Opens New Era in Home Comfort

This light-conditioned living room provides eye-comfortable illumination for every member of the family.

By Jean Prentice

NOW comes "light-conditioning" to be added to the comforts of home. When rain beats against the window pane or when early twilight tinges the sky, light-conditioning will make the room conserving and beautified and available at the turn of electric switches.

Scientific Standards

A home is light-conditioned when lighting meets scientific standards for eyesight protection. The term may refer to inexpensive but correct new lighting in a cottage or to the approved illumination in a luxurious home.

A single room may be light-conditioned by following the new rules. The entire home, from basement to attic, can be conditioned against rainy days and long evenings.

For many years have there been so many developments as recently in home lighting.

First important departure came with the unearthing of new scientific facts on the relation of light to sight. To give the more abundant light which researchers found was needed, shades of lamps grew bigger and table lamp bases grew taller. An instrument was perfected to measure home lights quickly and without fuss. Providing enough light to see safely was thus taken out of the realm of guesswork.

Light-conditioning has sprung from all these developments.

Planned for Comfort

How to light-condition your own living room is illustrated by the accompanying picture. The lights here were planned for the comfort of a father, mother, and two children, as well as for the beautifying of the home.

Notice that the lighting presents a symmetrical appearance. It is well-balanced. Also it is well-diffused. There are no depressing shadows. The illumination is stimulating.

Since, for eye comfort, we should not read or sew in a single island of light in an otherwise dark room, the ceiling fixture was selected to provide an over-all smoothness of light. It reflects most of its light to the ceiling, to be distributed into the room.

I especially like light-conditioning's provision for a good lamp near every sitting place!

Provision for All Eyes

The scientifically designed study lamp on the desk serves both desk and chair. The large comfortable fireside chair is made still more comfortable with an approved bridge lamp . . . which produces 25 foot-candles of light at book level.

At the davenport, twin end-table lamps, also of scientific structure, assure good lighting for two or more persons. And for an unseen grouping of furniture in the left foreground there's a floor lamp giving three levels of light.

For beauty's sake alone there's a bowl of electric light, or decorative urn, on the radio. It is the finishing touch for a cheerful room where overcast skies outside cannot put a damper on one's spirits . . . or one's eyes.
