Karpstein Sets New State Record

Time Cuts Off One And Two Tenths Seconds From Record

Second Year As Track Captain At B.S.S.

See Picture on Back Page.) Albert Karpstein, Beaverton star athlete, set a new state record in the 110 yard dash at the High School State Track Meet held at Beaverton in Corvallis last Friday and Saturday, May 20-21. His record time was 50 seconds flat for the event. The old record was made by Jim Schriver in 1935 in Portland. Karpstein cut 1.2 seconds from the 51.2 second record made by Schriver.

Bend high school was successful in winning the state meet for the second successive year by winning a total of 37 points. Grant high of Portland won second place with a total of 20 points. New records were established in five of the fourteen events on the program.

Albert missed the world's interscholastic record by 1.6 seconds. This record was made in 1937.

L. Marble Cook, Beaverton coach stated that he thought if Albert had been pushed and had had heavier competition he would have made the interscholastic record.

Albert has just completed his fourth year of track and his second successive year as track captain. He is also a football and basketball letterman. He is the first Beaverton high school athlete to qualify for membership in the National Athletic Federation.

He plans to attend the University of Oregon next fall.

LACK OF SLEEP INJURIOUS TO DRIVERS

Added evidence that lack of sleep is a leading cause in fatal automobile accidents was brought forward this week by Secretary of State Earl Snell, who said that according to Oregon accident statistics for 1937, the proportion of fatal accidents to non-fatal accidents is highest between the hours of five and six o'clock in the morning.

"Drivers at this hour who have gone without sleep since the preceding morning are apt to be dulled by fatigue," Snell said. "In this condition they are not only more likely to become involved in accidents, but the accidents which do occur are more likely to be fatal, since the driver will be unable to avoid direct collisions with other automobiles or fixed objects."

Least deadly are the morning and early afternoon hours, from seven o'clock until about three. From three o'clock on, however, the proportion of fatal accidents begins to rise, shooting up most sharply in the "wee small hours" after midnight when there are few cars on the road, speeds are high and accidents which do occur are most likely to bring death.

Less than one-fifth of one percent of the accidents reported between eleven o'clock and noon last year resulted fatally, while about three and one-half percent of those which occurred between five and six in the morning were fatal, according to Snell. Thus the early morning hour accident was 20 times as deadly as the accident just before noon.

In view of these facts, Snell suggested that drivers make every effort to avoid traveling during the late night hours when they are suffering from fatigue and that they take a short nap if they find it necessary to drive at such a time.
