WHO WROTE IT?

"Sweet Adeline"
Sweet A - del - ine.

His parents had the idea he might become a great pianist; but he preferred to "rag" the scale and was always improvising on the old upright in Cambridge, Mass., where the family had moved from Somerville.

Harmonizing with the boys on street corners was a pastime of his youth; he became a prizefighter in Boston; he went to New York with $2.65 in his jeans after a year of leatherpadding. In his pocket was the ms. of a song he had written at seventeen called "My Old New England Home."

Pugilism was at a low ebb in the big city and the youngster took to playing piano in music halls and beer gardens. Here he ran into songwriters, politicians and performers, and tried to sell his opus. A poster showing Adeline Patti, reigning opera star and beauty of her day, inspired the youth to change the title of his song to "Sweet Adeline" and a set of new lyrics was written by Dick Gerard. After publication the song lay dormant till the Quaker City Quartet took it up and it became the close harmony song of the world. The composer, meanwhile, had found his livelihood in vaudeville. To-day, a member of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, he still makes personal appearances in stage shows, fiestas, etc., but relies largely on his royalties from protective ASCAP. His name is Harry Armstrong.

IN APPRECIATION

It is a great pleasure to live in a locality where people are neighborly, helpful to one another and agreeable. But one's real friends stand in bold relief in time of great trial or misfortune.

Having been struck by a great calamity (fire) during our absence Wednesday, A.M., July 13, our good friends and neighbors set to work to save what could be saved with wonderful results.

We have received so many reports of the wonderful efforts and work of different ones that it is impossible to thank each one individually. We therefore, use this medium to thank every one without exception, including the Fire Departments, and to express our sincere gratitude. We are pleased to announce that our business did not even close its doors though carried on in a limited way. We are therefore prepared to continue
