(Editor's note:—Apparently the proposition of the West Coast Telephone Co., to expand and improve their service in Beaverton and territory, and increase the rates, is not approved by everybody. The Review editor signed the petition for the increase because we wanted better telephone service, which under the present system s inadequate. We thought the rate proposed was fair. However, we believe in a thorough discusion of matters pertaining to the public welfare, and welcome letters on debatable subjects.

Editor of the Beaverton Review,
Beaverton, Oregon.

According to the papers the West Coast Telephone Company proposes to increase telephone rates in this district seventeen to seventy-five per cent. They have the gall to call this a small increase in rates. If the telephone subscribers promise to pay this increase henceforth and forever after, the telephone company in return promise to modernize their equipment.

If the shack, which they now occupy, begins to leak they might put on a new roof; if the rafters are sprung and beyond repair they might even put up a new building—with subscribers' money. The new building was promised years ago but, as all of us know, was never built.

Just imagine a business man going to his customers with a proposition that if they will agree to let him raise his prices seventeen to seventy five per cent he will moderinze his store and give them better service.e. The customers would soon tell him to go some place where it is ever so hot, in season and out of season. The up-to-date merchant modernizes his store and gives the very best service he is capable of in order to attract customers who now pass him by. It is only reasonable to suppose that better equipment and better service will also bring new customers to the telephone company.

The idea, of course, back of it all, is to raise rates, and any promises they make is only a bait for the customers. An organized opposition will be necessary in order to forestall the grab. Even if you have agreed to let them increase your rates it is not too late to go in opposition. It is time they are told that the people of this community are not millionaires; neither are they suckers.
