Spinach With a Foreign Flavor

Italian with an American accent is the only way to describe this casserole of spinach and cheese topped with bacon cubes and crisp corn flake crumbs.

By Barbara B. Brooks

THERE is nothing that will relieve menu monotony as quickly as food with a foreign flavor. The dish itself need not be an authentic reproduction of some foreign culinary masterpiece. The ingredients in the original recipe may be too difficult to secure so far from their native clime.

An adaptation of a foreign dish, however, always inspires interest. Perhaps it is the manner in which it is prepared or served. Take Italian spinach, for example. It is prepared with a rich cheese sauce and served from an oven proof casserole, and is so rich in food elements that it makes a delightful as well as well-balanced main dish when meat is not served as the piece de resistance. To give the dish added appetite appeal, the American housewife adds a purely American accent—a topping of savory bacon cubes and crisp corn flake crumbs.

The result is effective. Under the Italian banner spinach becomes a new and interesting vegetable.

The triple tested recipe follows:

Italian Spinach

1/2 cup milk 1/2 teaspoon pepper

8 ounces packaged 3/4 cups cheese

1/2 teaspoon salt 1 cup corn flakes

Heat milk and cheese in top of double boiler, stirring until cheese is melted. Add seasonings. Drain spinach thoroughly and place in casserole. Over it pour the milk and cheese mixture. Crush corn flakes slightly, mix with diced bacon and sprinkle over mixture in casserole. Bake in moderate oven

(350° F.) about 30 minutes. Yield:

6 servings.

Note: If fresh spinach is used,

cook in small amount of water,

drain and chop.

BOX SCORE

Picked Missed Pct
Last week ... 8 6 .571

Southern Cal vs. Washington State—The Trojans in a close one.

Texas A. & M. vs. Santa Clara—Texas has looked good in its first two games and Santa Clara apparently isn't quite ready. A slight edge to Texas.

Willamette vs. Portland—This should be extremely close; Portland looked good last week losing to University of Montana, and gets a slight edge in this one.

Montana State vs. Omaha—Montana should win handily.

College of Pacific vs. Loyola—Pacific, after beating California, figures to win.

Linfield vs. Oregon Normal—Linfield.

College of Idaho vs. Albion Normal—Albion Normal.

California vs. St. Mary's—Cal will come back raring, but I believe St. Mary's is too strong.

Washington vs. U. C. L. A.—Washington got away to a bad start and U. C. L. A. to a good one. This should give U. C. L. A. a slight edge.

Oregon vs. Stanford—Oregon will be hopped up after its splendid showing last week, and if injuries don't upset them, should win.

Montana vs. San Francisco—Montana has an excellent passing and kicking game, and, if able to bolster a few weaknesses, should win.

Oregon State vs. Idaho—Oregon State is too powerful for Idaho.

but the Beaver's mental attitude may make it a close game.

Gonzaga vs. Texas Tech—I'll take Texas Tech.

San Jose vs. Nevada—San Jose is too powerful, but Nevada probably will make it close.

Brigham Young vs. Colorado State—Brigham Young.

Colorado vs. Utah State—Another close game; Colorado an edge.

Utah vs. Wyoming—Utah.
